U.S. Backs Peking for UN

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary William P. Rogers announced today that the United States will favor seating of Red China at the United Nations General Assembly this fall and will oppose any move to oust the Chinese Nationalists.

"We think the realities of the world require that both be represented" in the world body, Rogers said in issuing a long-awaited Nixon administration announcement.

He noted that Communist China has some 700 million people and Nationalist China some 14 million.

He said of the Peking regime: "After all they represent about one-fourth of the people on the surface of the earth."

"United States accordingly will support action at the General Assembly this fall calling for seating the People's Republic of China," Rogers said. "At the same time the United States will oppose any action to expel the Republic of China or otherwise deprive it of representation in the United Nations."

The Rogers announcement market a historic switch from U.S. efforts over the previous years to prevent Peking's entry into the United Nations.

In Taipei, Nationalist China tacitly accepted the new U.S. position apparently in a turnabout intended to keep maximum flexibility for a fight to save its own seat in the world body.

A foreign ministry statement did not mention directly the U.S. change of policy but it did call for its rejection of a Communist-sponsored move to expel Taipei and seat Peking in the United Nations.

The statement, issued just after Rogers spoke in Washington, stressed Nationalist China's right to remain in the United Nations.

The state secretary left ambiguous just what position Washington would take about Communist China's replacing the Nationalists on the important UN Security Council. He said, however, that the United States is prepared to have this question resolved by the decision of UN members.

Both Red China and Nationalist China claim they represent all of China and therefore are entitled to China's seats in the General Assembly and in the Security Council.

B.C. Tel Predicts Cutbacks

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — British Columbia Telephone Co. said Sunday projected construction and expansion of facilities will be cut back because Friday's rate increase award falls short of what was required.

The Canadian Transport Commission authorized rate increases amounting to $9.4 million in extra revenue for B.C. Tel annually, just over half of the $17 million the company had requested.

B.C. Tel said it is taking "another hard look" at its capital program and undoubtedly there will be cutbacks in planned modernization and improvement projects, particularly those relating to rural upgrading, expansion of flate-rate calling areas, and introduction of touch calling.

"Deferrals will be required in our projected construction and expansion of facilities and planned additions to personnel to carry out that and other work will have to be pared."

Adjustments will be made "in a manner designed to minimize impact upon service and to assure that we are able to provide initial basic telephone service to new customers."

'MODEST IMPROVEMENT'

The company predicted its consolidated ordinary share earnings for 1971 would probably show "a modest improvement" over the $5.10 a share paid in 1970, and that a further increase was likely in 1972.

It said it would undertake a study of hotel service rates and charges as quickly as possible, following charges by hotel owners of discrimination.

B.C. Tel said it would move immediately to implement the new rates, which include a 2.5 per cent monthly increase on residential and business phones.

Subscribers to single-party lines will pay between 15 and 50 cents a month more while those on two-party lines will pay five to 15 cents more.

A 25 cent fee will also be levied on requests for time and charges on long distance calls.

China Rejects Russian Bid For N-Talks

By JOHN BURNS
Special to The Times

PEKING — China has formally rejected the Soviet Union's call for a nuclear disarmament conference, and called instead for an undertaking by the United States and the Soviet Union never to be the first to use nuclear weapons.

In an official statement distributed to embassies in Peking, the Chinese also demanded that the two superpowers dismantle all nuclear bases they maintain on foreign soil.

The statement added that the reaction of Washington and Moscow to the demands "will be the test as to whether they have the desire to realize nuclear disarmament."

As for China, the statement declared that its nuclear weapons are still in an experimental stage and at present it is not yet a nuclear power.

Recent intelligence estimates in the West have suggested that the Chinese have, in fact, already deployed a number of first-generation intermediate-range ballistic missiles, capable of reaching Soviet targets in Asia.

The Chinese statement, distributed on Friday, became available only yesterday. There has been no mention of it in the Chinese press.

"Matters affecting various countries in the world should be jointly discussed and settled by all of them, and permit of no monopoly by a few big powers," the statement said.

Apollo Finds Prize Rock

HOUSTON (WP) — The Apollo 15 lunar rock hounds think they found what they went to the moon for — a piece of crystal rock that may date from the creation of the universe.

They found the rock Sunday on the northern rim of Spur crater, about a third of a mile up Mount Hadley delta in the towering Apennine range. Earthbound scientists felt the astronauts would have the best chance of finding a sample of the moon's original crust there.

The find was signalled to a world-wide audience watching the lunar exploration when David Scott said excitedly, "Guess what we just found? We found what we came for."

CRYSTAL ROCK

His partner, James Irwin, added, "Crystal rock."

"Yes sir. You better believe it. Plage (short for plagioclase, a mineral) in there. Almost all plage," Scott said. "As a matter of fact," he continued, his voice raising in excitement with every word, "Oh boy, I think we might have ourselves something close to an anorthosite. Cause the crystals in there are almost all plage."

"What a beaut. That is really a beauty. And there is some — there's another one down there."

Anorthosite is a type of rock that is very rare on earth. Grains of anorthosite found in soil from the Apollo 11 and 12 landing sites have been dated at 4.6 billion years — the age of the solar system.

PRISTINE MOON

"This sort of sample discovered in such a place could quite possible be material that the pristine moon was formed of," said Dr. Joseph Allen, a physicist-astronaut who acted as capsule communicator during Sunday's seven-hour and 12-minute exploration of more than 85 miles of the moon.

"Perhaps the material has been unchanged from the very first day our solar system was formed," Allen continued.

UNCLE BEN FLOWS TO RESCUE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Thirsty British Columbians feeling the parch of the continuing Lower Mainland brewery workers' dispute got some relief today when between 10,000 and 13,500 cases of beer from Uncle Ben's brewery in Winnipeg will go on sale.

The shipment is the first of a 50,000-case order placed by the provincial Liquor Control Board to combat the shortage of local beer that developed after 750 Labatt's and Molson's brewery workers went on strike or were locked out.

The B.C. government has authorized the board to import beer from other provinces or the United States if necessary to prevent the supply from drying up all together.

Red Envoys Ejected

By The Associated Press

Sudan ordered the top Soviet diplomat in Khartoum to leave within 48 hours and also gave the Bulgarian ambassador orders to get out. The leading Soviet diplomat is counsellor of the embassy.

The Sudanese government, angered by Soviet press attacks on its anti-Communist policy, earlier had recalled its ambassadors from Moscow and Sofia. A government spokesman said the rest of the embassy staff in Moscow would remain.

Earlier, Egypt's Middle East news agency said that Sudan had threatened to break relations with Moscow unless the Soviet press stopped its attacks on President Jaafar el-Nimeiri's regime.

CANADIANS SHINING AT PAN-AM GAMES

CALI, Columbia — Canadian athletes won three more gold medals — all in track and field — in Sunday's competition at the Pan-American Games.

Vancouver's Stephanie Berto matched her own Games' record as she won the women's 200-metre final, another Vancouverite, Brenda Eisler, won the women's long jump and Torontos runner Abbie Hoffman finished first in the women's 800-metre final.

Canada, which collected one triumph on opening day Saturday when Montreal weightlifter Chan Hon Chan won gold, silver and bronze medals in the flyweight class, started today's events with a total of four gold, three silver and five bronze medals and holding third place in unofficial team standings behind the U.S. and Cuba.

Penny May of Victoria collected one of the third-place bronzes in the women's 100-metre hurdles and placed fourth in the long jump.

Victoria oarsman Bob Cunliffe shared a fourth-place finish with John Wilkinson of Kamloops in the paired oars with cox.

Loophole Plug Hinted

Liquor products advertised on U.S. stations beaming into British Columbia may not be sold in liquor stores in B.C., Premier Bennett has warned.

Beer, wine and liquor manufacturers who try to get around the Sept. 1 liquor advertising ban by buying time on U.S. stations could find "no orders" coming in from the liquor control board for their products.

Bennett told the Financial Post in an interview that a ban on such products hasn't been set as a definite policy but "if they try to get around the expressed will of the people of British Columbia through their legislature, I should think the orders will be slow in coming."

Bennett said he thought such a move by the board would be "automatic."

LOCKHEED GETS LOAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Senate approved $250 million today in federal loan guarantees for Lockheed Aircraft Corp., assuring the leading United States defence contractor it will get the money it says it needs to avoid bankruptcy.

The vote, climaxing two months of testimony and debate, was 49 to 48.

The House of Representatives had approved aid for Lockheed on Friday.

NEWS BRIEFS

Crackdown on IRA

BELFAST (Reuter) — More than 700 troops carried out a series of pre-dawn searches in Northern Ireland today as part of a crackdown on the outlawed Irish Republican Army. The main searches were concentrated on the Roman Catholic Falls Rogid area of Belfast, but houses in four other towns including one near the border with Ireland were also investigated.

Quake Rocks Japan

TOKYO (Reuter) — A strong earthquake shook northern Japan today, registering five on the Japanese scale of seven. There were no immediate reports of casualties or damage.

STEEL PRICE HIKE FOLLOWS PACT

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The United States steel industry averted a strike with the signing Sunday of a contract with the United Steelworkers Union, and today the leading company announced sweeping price increases which it attributed to the "inflationary" contract terms.

U.S. Steel Corp. said increases will average eight per cent on carbon and alloy steel products, the firm's entire line with the exception of stainless steel.

The White House was quick to make known its displeasure at the price hikes, saying they would have a detrimental effect on both production and unemployment in the industry and would damage its already-unfavorable competitive position.

Another labor development during the weekend was settlement of an 18-day-old rail strike which has shut down 10 lines and crippled the entire U.S. freight system. Representatives of the United Transportation Union and the rail firms reached agreement on a new contract providing a 35 per cent wage increase over three years.

POSTPONEMENT VOTED

Amchitka 'Up to Nixon'

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. Senate voted Saturday to postpone the planned underground explosion of a five-megaton nuclear warhead in Alaska unless President Nixon gives his direct approval.

The Cannikin experiment, planned by the Atomic Energy Commission in October, is designed to test the warhead for the Spartan missile, a part of the Safeguard Anti-Ballistic missile system.

Expressing fear that the blast a mile underground at Amchitka Island in the Aleutians would touch off earthquakes and tidal waves, Senator Daniel Inouye (D-Hawaii) proposed denial of funds for the test.

The Senate accepted a modification by Senator John Pastore (D-R.I.) to forbid the blast before May 31, 1972, "unless the president gives his direct approval."

The modified amendment was added by voice vote to a $4.7 billion appropriation bill for the Atomic Energy Commission and water and power development projects.

Pastore read a letter from David Packard, undersecretary of defence, saying that without the test the nation's developing ABM system would be imperiled.

Inouye argued that the test should be delayed at least until after strategic arms limitation talks with the Russians and the president's visit to mainland China in quest of world peace.

Moonwalk Ends—Falcon Docks

HOUSTON (AP) — Two Apollo 15 astronauts blasted off from the moon today after three days of historic exploration and successfully caught up with their orbiting command ship.

A television camera gave earthlings their first look at a launching from the moon as the Falcon of David R. Scott and James B. Irwin vaulted off the moon's surface toward a safe orbit.

For nearly two hours Scott and Irwin executed skilful manoeuvres to track down the command ship Endeavour with Alfred M. Worden at the controls.

The two ships manoeuvred into position nearly 70 miles above the moon and moved together until locked firmly nose to nose.

Scott and Irwin were to transfer through a connecting tunnel into the command ship. Then the three astronauts were to spend two additional days in lunar orbit conducting scientific experiments.

The ascent stage of the lunar module Falcon lifted quickly away and sped into the black sky toward orbit and a rendezvous with Alfred M. Worden in the command moduled Endeavour.

Particles flew in all directions as the craft lifted away, and the astronauts played the United States Air Force song Off We Go Into the Wild Blue Yonder as they soared upward.

The television camera left behind and controlled by Mission Control followed Falcon's flight for only about a second before the craft was out of view.

Following the liftoff, the television camera focused on the descent stage of the lunar module, deserted on the empty moon's surface.

Within 10 seconds the lunar module was at 300 feet and climbing rapidly in both speed and altitude.

"Falcon," said Mission Control, "You're looking good at three minutes."

At 700 feet, the spacecraft curved east, quickly passing over Hadley Rille, the moon canyon Scott and Irwin photographed so carefully during their exploration.

Scott and Irwin rode their moon machine quietly, saying little.

Tory Leader Says Peking Attitude Good

By DOUG SMALL

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, back from a trip to the People's Republic of China that nearly didn't take place, said Sunday China and its people are well disposed to Canada.

Mr. Stanfield, who visited the Chinese cities of Canton, Shanghai and Peking following a trip to Japan and Hong Kong, waited almost seven weeks prior to his departure for the Far East for a response to his application for a visa to enter China.

He received an invitation from the Chinese three hours before he left Vancouver July 15.

On his return to Vancouver and later in Ottawa Sunday, Mr. Stanfield said he had gained valuable impressions of China's leaders and the life of their people.

The highlight of his tour, he said, was the insight obtained into the Chinese government's attitude towards relations with the United States, Japan and matters affecting Canada.

WILL TALK LATER

He did not go into detail during brief talks with reporters at airports in Vancouver and Ottawa but is planning to hold a comprehensive news conference later this week.

He said, however, that it is "very clear in the view of the government of China that it has no political dispute with Canada."

He reiterated statements he made after leaving China that the U.S. would have to make important concessions if relations between those two countries are to improve.

"It is not my position to interpret what position the U.S. has to adopt in order to make progress with China. I simply say the Chinese leaders that spoke with me indicated that the U.S. would have to change its position very substantially if progress is to be made."

LET THEM EAT CAKE! That's just what about 500 guests did Saturday after Premier and Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett cut into a five-foot-square birthday variety. The cake-cutting was a highlight of a Beacon Hill Park picnic commemorating the 19th anniversary of Social Credit government in British Columbia. Fears that Sandringham Private Hospital workers would disrupt the all-day affair were largely unfounded.

IN ONTARIO

HEALTH STORES UNDER GUN

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario College of Pharmacy will prosecute all health food stores which sell certain high-potency vitamins, registrar W. R. Wensley said in an interview Sunday.

Vitamin C tablets of more than 100 milligrams strength or other vitamins of more than 10,000 international units, a measurement of potency, are considered drugs under the Pharmacy Act and can be sold only by licensed pharmacists.

Investigators will be sent out to inspect the health food shops, said Mr. Wensley, and "if they're breaking the law, it's our job to prosecute."

The Canadian Health Food Dealers Association will advise its members this week that they should "sell vitamins the way we've been doing for years," and that includes vitamins which would be in violation of the act, said Lionel Pason, association vice-president.

Mr. Wensley said that wholesalers who sell the strong vitamins to the health food stores are also in violation of the act.

"Falcon," came the call a minute later. "You're go at four," meaning after four minutes.

"Radar lockup," called out Scott, meaning his radar set had made contact with the Endeavour.

On achieving orbit, Scott and Irwin immediately began pursuit of Worden, orbiting 68 miles high in the Endeavour. They were to catch and hook up with him in one hour, 45 minutes.

The three astronauts plan to spend two extra days in lunar orbit conducting scientific and photographic experiments before heading toward earth late Wednesday.

A burst from the engine at the base of the cabin section of the lunar module vaulted Scott and Irwin on the first step toward home.

The astronauts left their moon buggy, the first car man has driven on the moon, so that its television camera could relay live pictures of a lunar blastoff for the first time.

They had driven the buggy on three expeditions totalling 17 miles, the most ambitious and extensive exploration of the moon.

Packed in their lunar module Falcon was a treasure chest of rocks and soil that might include primeval rock and evidence of old volcanoes at the moon.

They had collected more than 230 pounds of samples that may hold secrets of the creation of the solar system.

On their third and final excursion today, Scott and Irwin drove to the edge of a deep canyon and climbed part way down the wall to gather rocks that could tell scientists whether it was carved by ancient lava flows.

* * *

"The whole Mission Control team congratulates you on a supert job," flight controller Gerald Griffin radioed astronauts as they concluded their exploration.

Mission scientist Dr. Joseph Allen said the fact that the astronauts reported layering in the walls of the canyon is evidence that it might have been formed by several lava flows. Other lunar geologists said they could draw no conclusion until they examine the pictures and rocks being returned.

Scott and Irwin spent four hours and 45 minutes outside today, about one hour 15 minutes less than originally scheduled. They fell about 90 minutes behind time Sunday because of minor equipment problems, and that delay carried over.

On the three excursions, they totalled nearly 19 hours outside and drove their $8-million moon car about 15 miles. The curtailment today cut off nearly five miles of planned driving.

* * *

They drove the runabout a mile today through a desert-like field of craters to the rim of the boulder-strewn canyon, one mile across and 1,200 feet deep.

They had not intended to climb down into th canyon, but they found the upper 30 to 40 feet was a gentle slope and they walked down easily that far to a terrace. Beyond that the wall dropped off sharply.

Scott and Irwin brought back more geological treasure, hoping to equal what they collected Sunday when they discovered what some scientists believe may be rocks dating back 4.6 billion years to the birth of the solar conference that neither Peking nor Taiwan (Formosa) had indicated they favor the new Nixon administration policy on Chinese representation in the United Nations.

The secretary also said that President Nixon has been forging foreign policies "directed to the future while taking fully into account the legacies of the past."

He said further:

"Representation in an international organization need not prejudice the claims or the views of either government. . . . Rather it would provide governments with increased opportunities for contact and communication."

The secretary of state said the U.S. decision is in line with Nixon's desire to improve relations with Peking "in the interests of world peace." Nixon's announced plan to visit Red China has in fact spurred momentum for Peking's entry into the UN.

Motorcycle Gang Sought for Murder

SAINTE MARIE DE BEAUCE, Que. (CP) — A province-wide search for six members of a motorcycle club wanted in connection with the deaths of two members of a rival gang Saturday night has been started by the provincial police.

The badly-beaten bodies of Jacques Giguere, 19, of Sainte Marie de Beauce and Serge Bourque, 24, of nearly Notre Dame des Pins, were found in the charred remains of a gang club house here 30 miles southeast of Quebec City.

The two victims were in the house with six other members of the Jarrets Noirs motorcycle club when six men wearing nylon stockings over their heads burst into the "shack".

Police said the intruders, armed with baseball bats and a rifle, beat up Giguere and Bourque, tied them up, doused them with gasoline, set them on fire and fled.

The two young men burned to death before other members of the Jarrets Noirs could help them.

Police said they found gasoline cans near the destroyed house.

Police would not release the name of the gang the fugitives belong to but said the group is believed to be travelling in two 1969 automobiles.

It was the third double slaying in Quebec in the last 16 days.

Ex-Beatles Bow to Dylan

NEW YORK (WP) — One half of the Beatles turned out for two Madison Square Garden concerts Sunday, but a local boy wound up stealing the show.

"I want to introduce a friend of yours and mine," said Beatle guitarist George Harrison, and out walked Bob Dylan for his first public appearance since the Isle of Wight festival in the fall of 1969.

Sunday's performances — one in the afternoon and the second Sunday evening — brought together many of the giants of rock music's superstar galaxy. They volunteered their services along with Indian musicians Ravi Shankar and Ali Akhvar Khan to raise funds for the relief of refugee children of Bangla Desh (East Pakistan), victims of the Pakistani civil war.

More than 40,000 music fans crowded into the garden for the double-header concerts — mostly young people who seemed to be in search of some vestige of the Beatle magic.

"I missed them on tour in 1964, and I've been waiting ever since to make it up," said Dave Farzalo of Meadville, Pa., who had hitched 500 miles to get here.

Farzalo's main problem — and that of hundreds of others who milled around outside the garden — was finding a ticket. He was prepared to $30, but scalpers were easily commanding between $50 and $100 for tickets which sold at original prices ranging from $4.50 to $10.

Penn Station, adjacent to the athletic-centre-turned-concert-hall, swarmed with thousands of long-haired, blue-jeaned, hot-pantsed, wine-drinking, dope-smoking back-packing commuters some of whom had come from as far as San Francisco and Seattle to relive the days of Liverpool glory.

The program itself began with Harrison introducing Shankar and Khan, both natives of the Bangla Desh region.

"This is a totally non-political event," said Shanker as he, Khan, and their two accompanists seated themselves on a large red Indian carpet. "We want you to think about what is happening in this civil war."

'Mayor' of Chinatown Dies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Foon Sien, former unofficial mayor of Chinatown, author and lecturer, died in hospital Saturday, he was 70.

Foon Sien was born in Hong Kong and came to British Columbia as a boy. As leader of the Chinese community here, he was spokesman for thousands of others who came to Canada from China.

As Canadian president of the Chinese Benevolent Association, a post to which he was elected in 1948, he visited Ottawa 11 times to present briefs on alleged inequities of immigration laws as they affected Chinese.

He resigned as association president in 1959 and was named lifetime head of public relations for the organization. He left the association in 1961 as a result of policy differences with other leaders.

Foon Sien's tall silk hat and formal dress were a familiar sight when he welcomed visiting ignitaries, including visiting dignitaries, including royalty, to Chinatown.

He lectured on topics concerning Chinese Canadians and was author of a book, "Three Years Resistance," on the topic of the Japanese invasion of China.

He is survived by his wife, Joan, three grown-up children and eight grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

Forest Service Guards Fires After Storm

DUNCAN — B.C. Forest Service in the Duncan and Cowichan Lake areas have crews guarding the 15 spot fires caused by lightning during an electrical storm Sunday morning.

An air patrol was sent out today to check for more fires.

A spokesman from the Duncan Ranger Station said it usually takes a couple of days after an electrical storm before all fires are discovered.

"Many could be just smouldering but it will take time for the area to dry out after the rain. We won't see the smoke for a while," he said.

30 MEN

About 30 men have been fighting and guarding the fires, none of which are out of control, on Mount Sicker, north of Duncan; two in the Shawnigan Lake area; one on the Koksilah Ridge; and one on the San Juan River.

A spokesman from the Lake Cowichan Ranger Station said they had 35 men fighting the 10 fires in their district Sunday. Now they have a crew of 15.

None of the fires, which were caused by lightning and extreme dryness, were out of control.

"One might give us problems in the Fleet River area," the spokesman said this morning. "We just sent a crew of nine in to the one-quarter acre fire."

Most of the fires in this district were in the Robertson and Fleet River areas.

27-Pounder Wins Trophy

A strike at 7 a.m. Saturday in Misery Bay resulted in a 27-pound spring salmon and the Tsartlip Fishing Derby Trophy for Garry Vaughan, 573 Broadway, Victoria.

Entries at Brentwood were fewer than usual this year for the two-day competition and, apart from the Vaughan catch, the big ones seemed to be seeking cooler waters.

Presentation of the trophy was made by Julia Thunderbird of the Tsartlip Band. Vaughan also won $25.

'Suspicious' Fire Probed

A fire having what officials described as "suspicious origins" destroyed a car and garage at 812 Walker Sunday night.

Victoria Fire Chief Eric Simmons said the estimated loss of building and vehicle was $3,000.

He said firemen were called shortly after 8 p.m. and left the scene just before 9 p.m.

The Walker Street home is owned by Simon Nelson.

Campaign: Phase One

PRIME MINISTER TRUDEAU'S recent references to the need for closer contacts with the Canadian electorate and his intention to provide more "explanations" of government policy and actions have had the obvious result among parliamentary observers. There has been a resurgence of speculation as to the likely date of a general election, and some experts have abandoned their previous choice of next October in favor of June, 1972.

This could be a case of superprescience inasmuch as Mr. Trudeau himself may not yet have come to a firm conclusion on the point. Obviously, the state of the economy and the level of employment throughout the country will be major factors in any decision. A year could produce considerable improvement in the employment picture, but a quick recovery in this regard could also carry the threat of renewed inflation.

As evidence of his concern for public opinion and his need to assess it more closely, Mr. Trudeau over the weekend began a tour of Maritime points and this may well be expanded to cover other sections of Canada during the coming weeks. There has been some concern that Mr. Trudeau's participatory democracy has not been working as he originally conceived it. The dubious device of Information Canada may increase the flow of government information to the public, but there is a lack of facilities and organization for getting the public's ideas back to the government. That is, apart from the ballot — which comes a little late for governmental second thoughts.

There can be no doubt, of course, that the original Trudeaumania has decreased considerably over the past three years, although the exact degree of decline may be difficult to assess. No one understands this better than Mr. Trudeau himself, since he predicted it when his popularity was at its peak. But there is also a notable list of legislative achievements to the government's credit, and this will count strongly in any election campaign.

Perhaps of most immediate importance, however, is the possible alternative to the Trudeau administration. Neither Mr. Stanfield nor Mr. Lewis show up as national figures likely to replace the present Prime Minister. The Conservative leader, despite heroic efforts by his advisers to create a public image of nation-wide appeal and to discover a party policy, and despite his own obvious assets of personal integrity and real devotion to party and country, has been unable to win the type of acclaim that is necessary to beat one of the most fascinating and unpredictable figures ever to hold Canada's top office. And the addition of a most attractive chatelaine to the Prime Minister's household has done nothing to diminish his popularity.

The prospect, therefore is that when Mr. Trudeau calls an election he will be giving himself a renewed term of office. But the actual size of his support will be the unknown and worrisome factor that should keep him actively campaigning from now on.

The Listeners

THE ANNOUNCEMENT FROM Tokyo that the Japanese embassy in Moscow was planted with listening devices is another footnote to the disturbing trend in modern diplomacy to use mechanical devices to supplement and even replace conventional means of gathering information. Indeed, as readers of former British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's fourth volume of his autobiography will be aware, the trees outside the Moscow embassies are probably bugged as well.

It would not strain credulity to learn that other governments besides the Soviet use these mechanical devices to spy on foreign missions. The notion that espionage is "part of the game" has come to be tacitly accepted in the international community.

But acceptance should not be confused with desirability; the climate of international dealings is made more tense and unpredictable by illicit forms of intelligence gathering. Whatever advantages accrue from espionage, the end result will probably be resort to the same tactics by the injured country, and a vicious spiral comes into play.

The definition of what constitutes legitimate information is being constantly revised, and as the world becomes more inter-dependent the extent of such information will constantly widen. There must, of course, remain an area of private transaction and data which deserves protection. But active democratic diplomacy through frequent and candid exchanges of information could help to eliminate at least in part a murky side of international life which does nothing to improve international confidence or friendship.

The Global Job

HAVING BEEN TAKEN ILL because of the pressures of his office, it is coming to be accepted that Secretary General U Thant will relinquish his post at the United Nations at the end of this year. The Burmese diplomat has striven courageously to administer the vast UN bureaucracy and to attend to the political problems which beset the world. The search for his successor has begun.

Those who have already announced their candidacy are: Jakobson of Finland, Amerashinghe of Ceylon and Makonnen of Ethiopia. Other possibilities include Waldheim of Austria, Prince Sadruddin Aga Khan of Iran and Lee Kuan Yew of Singapore. It may be that the eventual appointee has not yet made his appearance.

It will be difficult to find a man with U Thant's qualifications and with his courage to persevere in criticism of the foreign policy of member states. Mr. Thant's charges against U.S. foreign policy became well known; he felt that Vietnam could prove to be the first phase of the Third World War and reacted accordingly. In addition, the Secretary General warned the member states repeatedly to halt their ancient quarrels and to begin cooperating in the solution of common problems.

Whoever succeeds him will have the good fortune to be in the chair when a new and hopeful change in world affairs is getting under way: the admission of China to the world organization. In its way, Mr Thant's incumbency has accustomed the world to look to Asia as an increasingly important world centre. His tenure is likely to prove to have been a preparation for even more dramatic events in that ancient crossroads of civilization.

Time and Place?

I wish to comment on a quotation by Alderman Baird which appeared on Page 15 of the Times (Wednesday, July 28). Alderman Baird is quoted as saying: "The other day I saw a young Negro and a white girl who were going through the motions preceding sexual relations. I don't want to sound old-fashioned, but the Bible says there is a time and place for everything and this showed a total disregard for time and place."

I am a 24-year-old registered nurse, and feel that my own powers of observation are quite adequate. In my travels through Bastion Square (though I must say they are less frequent than those of Alderman Baird), I have never observed any "basic preliminaries of sex" which seem to indicate "a low moral standard."

One wonders if the cause of Alderman Baird's moral objections might go beyond any physical display he felt he observed. Of course, one can only conjecture on this point, but his quotation does perhaps smack of a certain concern with a situation which, even now, seems to threaten some individuals. I refer to the relationship between a black man and a white woman. I suggest that any indiscretions as to "time and place" that Alderman Baird noted may not have been the only factors prompting him to make this statement. — Erica C. Fowles, 2133 Oak Bay.

FROM TORONTO

By HAROLD GREER

For the Caledon Story, Set Aside All Incredulity

THE 10-volume, 2,165-page transcript of the Ontario government's public inquiry into the Caledon lands affair is hardly light summer reading, but I recommend it highly both to those with a taste for political mystery and to students of political science. It is a fascinating revelation of intrigue in high places, the vagaries of governmental bureaucracy, and how to win political friends and influence people.

Greer

More than the willing suspension of disbelief is required to appreciate the Caledon story. All incredulity must be set aside; one must accept that certain things happened without cause or explanation, that memories can suddenly go blank, that words can mean the opposite of what they say.

When for example, the president of Caledon Mountain Estates Ltd. is found to have recorded the words "Bill Davis" in his office notebook, that means he had no idea who Bill Davis is, and certainly not the Premier of Ontario. Or when the same note-book later records "Donation to Bill Davis campaign", at a time when the Caledon company was both trying to sell certain lands to the government for a provincial park and get government approval of its subdivision plans for other lands, that means "no donation to Bill Davis campaign" because it was really, you see, a reminder to tell the company's directors that it wouldn't be proper to make a donation at such a sensitive period.

Thus forewarned and prepared, the reader can better enjoy the comic aspects of what would otherwise be a heart-rending tale of government maladministration. There is a hilarious chapter on the missing file from the department of Lands and Forests which, when eventually turned up by a smart policeman, disclosed that some of the land which the government got from Caledon Estates Ltd. at $1,450 an acre could have been bought a few years previous for $475 an acre, and was not bought because of sheer stumble-footedness.

Tears of laughter will also be occasioned, surely, by the recounting of how government appraisers decided the 506 acres which was eventually bought from Caledon (and which Caledon had bought some months before at an average price of $802 an acre) was worth $1,450 an acre. This value was assigned because of the land's potential worth when subdivided into country estates, even though most of it is river gorge, no such subdivision was possible under the government's planning policy for the area, and the company itself (as was revealed by the minutes of its directors' meetings) regarded it as parkland even though it promoted it to the government as subdivision land.

Comic Relief

But such episodes are mere comic relief to the deeper mystery of why and how the government bought the 506 acres in the first place. The record does not answer these questions and the reader may indulge his fancy as to solutions, bearing in mind that Caledon Mountain Estates Ltd. is a company in which Sen. H. A. Willis, the prominent Conservative Party fund-raiser, is a major shareholder, and that another major shareholder is one "Bansor and Company, Number 6 account", about which no one seems to know anything.

The salient facts are these. On Sept. 3, 1970, the Ontario Parks Integration Board (which is really a committee of the cabinet, being composed entirely of Ministers) decided after considering various alternatives to acquire 1,070 acres of land at Caledon Mountain and the Forks of the Credit River, as recommended over two years previously by the Niagara Escarpment Study Report, on how to preserve this unique feature of southern Ontario topography for future generations. The Department of Public Works, according to the minutes of this meeting, was instructed to contact Caledon Mountain Estates (which was known to own almost all the acreage in question) to determine how much it would cost.

On Oct. 8, 1970, Public Works reported back that it could buy about 500 acres from Caledon Estates for maybe $750,000 to $1,000,000, and the Board authorized it to negotiate for a firm asking price. The Board also agreed that if the negotiations were successful, the government "might" permit Caledon to proceed with subdivision development on some of its other land in the area. Subsequently, a price of $744,700 for 506 acres and certain easements was agreed upon and the Department of Lands and Forests was asked to withdraw its objections to Caledon's subdivision program.

In the event, these objections were not and have not been withdrawn but that may only be because questions were being asked in the Legislature which developed into a donnybrook debate and the establishment of a public inquiry. It seems likely from the record that if no one had blown the whistle, the government would have settled for much less of a public park at the Forks of the Credit than had been recommended (and initially decided upon), and that Caledon Estates would have been allowed to continue private development of the Escarpment as country homes for the well-to-do, contrary to announced government policy.

There was no lack of testimony, at the public inquiry, of course, that such was not in the cards. But the facts themselves almost defy any other interpretation.

Entertaining

Between the September and October meetings of the Parks Board, for example, G. H. U. Bayly, the then deputy minister of Lands and Forests, was entertained at the Caledon Trout Club by company directors, escorted through the area and shown what would, in the company's opinion, make a good provincial park and what would not. A week before the October meeting, Mr. Bayly had lunch with B. E. Willoughby — a major Toronto realtor, Caledon shareholder and director — at which similar representations were made. There were, over a longer period, visitations on Ministers by Sen. Willis and a steady run of contacts between Caledon's president, Michael Meredith, and government officials, all directed toward getting approval of Caledon's subdivision plans.

There is nothing wrong, of course, with such representations; everyone is free to urge whatever he pleases on the government as best he can. What is wrong is the government's acceding to them, if they are an unjustified or unexplained exception to declared policy and against the public interest as defined by declared policy.

In the Caledon affair, the evidence of the public inquiry shows clearly enough that the government, having declared it would preserve 1,070 acres at the Forks of the Credit for public purposes, was prepared to allow much of it to go for private development. The only mystery is who made the decision — and why.

FROM PEKING

By JAMES RESTON

'An Optimistic, Even Amiable Outlook on the Future'

THE extraordinary thing about this oldest civilization in the world is that it seems so young. You do not have the feeling here — so depressing and oppressive in some other parts of the Orient — of weariness, sickness and death, of old men and women, spent before their time struggling against hopeless odds. To an American visitor China's most visible characteristics are the characteristics of youth: vigorous physical activity despite some serious health problems, a kind of lean, muscular grace, relentless hard work and an optimistic and even amiable outlook on the future.

Reston

In the vast expanses of the Soviet Union, you get the feeling that this is the way the world must have looked when it began, empty and untamed, all land and sky. China is not like that. It is alive with people. In the 1,500-mile train ride from Canton to Peking, my wife and I never once looked out the window and saw a vacant field, and the land is not untamed.

These people do not till the earth, they sculpture it, shape it with their own hands, bend and level it so that they can move the irrigated water from one level to another, not only on the level ground, but up into the lovely terraced hills.

There are some machines around, heavy trucks on the tree-lined, two-laned main roads, some 12 and 14-horsepower garden tractors in the fields, a plague of bicycles in the cities, but everywhere the scenes are intensely human and alive.

Youthful

This sense of youthful activity is not only physical but mental. In the 21 years since the Communist takeover, the people have not had time to settle into any stable routine, and even when they seemed to be doing so in 1966, the leadership convulsed them into new and dramatic patterns of life with the Cultural Revoluton. This has now passed through its violent phase, when the young were encouraged to challenge the leaders of the bureaucracy (and even some of the leaders of the Communist party, but it is far from over.

Accordingly, China is still in a highly active state of transformation where all workers, peasants, teachers, students and even technicians and other professionals are challenged daily to self-criticism and self-improvement in the performance of their tasks.

Thus there is no time even for older men and women to settle down and relax. One is constantly reminded here of what American life must have been like on the frontier a century ago. The emphasis is on self-reliance and hard work, innovation and the spirit of cooperation in building something better and larger than anything they have known before.

Of course, they have desperate problems in trying to mobilize and feed between 700 and 800 million people — nobody knows how many. They have a problem of snail fever, a killer parasitic disease, prevalent in the Yangtse valley. They have a shortage of fertilizer and an obvious shortage of machines.

We drove over a hundred kilometers out of Canton to see a pioneer agricultural community at a place called Lo Tung. All the way out and back, we never saw a single passenger car other than our own. We did see some garden tractors in the rice paddies, but mainly the peasants were plowing the muddy fields behind water buffalo and of course planting the new rice seedlings by hand.

Primitive Road-Building

On the way back to Canton, we came across a work brigade of what seemed to be over a thousand young men and women who were helping build a section of highway in a gorge. So far as we could tell, they had no equipment other than long-handled picks and shovels which they were using to dig the earth out of a hillside, and baskets which they carried on long poles to transfer the earth to the bed of the new road.

This was draft labor by city youngsters who were living in makeshift straw huts and cooking their own food, but they were treating it as an escape from the city and an outing in the countryside.

Visitors, of course, go where they are taken. On this particular trip, we had to stop once at a police check point beyond which foreigners are not permitted to go without a permit. Also, this was in the rich agricultural land of the south, which is quite different from many bleak areas in the west, and even here most of the houses we passed were poor by almost any standards except China's own in the past.

Accordingly, there is no way for a stranger to know whether China is likely to be the first major Communist country to solve its agricultural problems, but some things even a stranger can observe.

The people not only seem young, but enthusiastic about their changing lives. There is no sense of intimidation in the relationship between the revolutionary committee leaders and the workers, and while the People's Liberation Army is undoubtedly the key to the future leadership of China, one is not really conscious of its pervasive influence.

Still there is a second paradox: China is not only an ancient country that acts young, but its youthful energy is sternly controlled by a government of old men. This is a question very much on the mind of the leaders here, but that is another story.

From the Times of August 2, 1911

It is announced at the Department of Education that Hon. Dr. Young has just worked out a plan for inspiring and fostering a spirit of patriotism in the children of the public schools of the province.

His plan is to present to the children a simple and intelligent resume of all that is most admirable in the achievements of the great men of the Empire — statesmen, writers, painters, soldiers, sailors, heroes in civil life; in a word, the leaders of public thought and action in every line and all ranks.

They Pay Price Of Olympic Glory

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

"Appalling" was the word used by The Gazette last month to describe the health situation of Montreal's poor. It is the proper word, not only for the health situation itself, but for the Montreal, Quebec and Ottawa politicians who have knowingly permitted to to endure.

The Gazette has been publishing the results of a study and treatment program in eight schools in poverty-stricken Montreal districts.

The program was conducted by the city's deparement of health in collaboration with the medical staff of Montreal Catholic School Commission.

It found that more than half of the 3,424 children examined were physically ill, and more than 10 per cent of them were so ill that they had to be treated in hospital.

In one typical school 51 per cent of the students' homes had "inadequate sanitary conditions" (39.1 per cent having neither bath nor hot water, 6.6 per cent having only cold-water baths, 5.7 per cent having hot water but no bath). Diabetes was in the direct family history (it is hereditory) of 39.1 per cent of the children and tuberculosis in 20 per cent.

Mental illness plagued 35.1 per cent of the parents and 24.4 per cent were alcoholics, 11.5 per cent were epileptic and 8.4 per cent mentally retarded. Some 21.3 per cent of the children were undernourished, 41 per cent emotionally disturbed, 28.8 per cent "backward in school", 51 per cent physically impaired.

An extension of the study is expected to show that similar conditions exist among the pupils of all 40 schools in deprived Montreal areas.

Montreal politicians could not care less. Mayor John Drapeau was not available to give an opinion. Executive Committee chairman Gerard Niding said, "I think we live in a free city. Each man's movements are free. We won't send inspectors into homes." All other committee members declined to comment: they had not, they said, read the report The Gazette had published.

They did not need to read it.

In 1966 the Conseil des Oeuvres de Montreal surveyed the slums of Montreal and reported 44 per cent of families underfed, 20 per cent of children unable to speak until they were 3 years old, many with lasting speech defects.

In 1967 the Montreal health service compared the health of 577 Grade 1 children in privileged areas and 256 in underprivileged areas. Nine out of 10 of the poor children had been in hospital within a year, only two out of 10 of the well-to-do. Of the 265 poor children, 16 had had scarlet fever, 23 whooping cough, 46 stomach disorders, 31 pneumonia, 7 otitis, 19 accidents, 93 tonsilitis, and five mastoids. Of the 577 privileged children, only 6 had had scarlet fever, 1 whooping cough, 19 stomach disorders, 23 tonsilitis and none had had mastoids.

In 1968-69 a study by the University of Montreal and several social agencies found the death rate in three poor areas to be one-and-a-half the city average, the death rate from tuberculosis 30 times higher, the maternal mortality rate 4.7 per 1,000 compared with 1.4 for the city at large.

In 1970 a report to the Senate Committee on Poverty by the Quebec Corporation of Professional Social Workers found infant mortality in underprivileged Montreal 35.1 per 1,000, twice that of other areas; it found a third of Grade 1 poor children undernourished and half suffering from emotional problems; it found three times as many of them with intelligence quotients under 80.

Low intelligence, as explained in another 1970 report could be accounted for by undernourishment. A child who is undernourished in his first months of life, or whose mother is undernourished during pregnancy, has less than the normal rate of cell division and ends up with fewer brain cells.

Or, as explained in the 1970 report of the Claude Castonguay commission to the Quebec Health Department, "A great lack of food during the first 18 months of a child's life prevents a normal cerebral development." Mr. Castonguay is now the Quebec Social Affairs Minister.

All the politicians knew what was going on, and let it go on. While concentrating on the glories of Expo 67 and the future glories of the Olympics they perpetuated low welfare payments, failed to provide sufficent public housing, starved the poor of medical attention.

It is a ghastly indictment of Montreal and Quebec; but not one which Ontario—or any other part of Canada—can certainly escape. Toronto, for example, has more public housing, better welfare rates, more adequate medical services than Montreal; but a study in 1969-70 by Dr. Ursula Anderson of the Hospital for Sick Children disclosed that children in our poorest areas were three times more likely to die in infancy than those in our richest areas.

●

As Senator David Croll well knows, the ugliness which the Montreal health department has revealed is only a beginning.

The victims of Montreal's crushing poverty

Nixon Still Testing Water

NEW STATESMAN

How lucky are right wing political leaders. When they change their minds, or alter what for them has been a consistent political course they are immediatly acclaimed for an act of supreme statesmanship.

Like de Gaulle over Algeria and before that Eisenhower on Korea, President Nixon is now reaping the reward for betraying the very convictions that first launched him as a major political figure.

Not that Mr. Nixon's has been any overnight conversion. Within 12 days of arriving in the White House at the beginning of 1969 he had, as we now know, already instructed his assistant for national security affairs that developing friendly relations with China was to be considered a priority for the new administration.

★ ★ ★

As early as the end of last year a high level inter-agency survey on the issues and problems involved in the official recognition of China and the seating of its representives at the United Nations had already begun at the explicit instructions of the president.

Why, then, the obvious tone of caution in which Mr. Nixon wrapped his broadcast? One answer could be that the President was still testing the temperature: that he had not yet satisfied himself as to how important the ickets who subsequently marched around the White House would in the end prove to be.

No one need reproach the President for timidity. He had, after all, already learned last April that one man he was not going to carry along with him in any new approach to China was his own vice president Mr. Agnew; and the president is enough of a politician to know that, while Mr Agnew (appropriately celebrating with General Franco the birth of Spanish Fascism in 1936) may be no threat to him, there are other Republicans — like Governor Reagan of California — with whom he still has to reckon.

★ ★ ★

But the domestic political explanation cannot tell the whole story. When Mr. Nixon talked about any new relationship with China 'not being at the expense of our old friends' he was not only seeking to reassure the Birchites and Freedom Lobbyists of the Far West: his words were far more directly aimed at the politicians and power brokers of the Far East.

Now that he stands on the brink of regularising America's whole relationship with China, the very enormity of the deed he is contemplating may have given pause even to Mr. Nixon himself.

In going to China (and it now looks as if his visit is more likely to be this year than next) the president is not just opening a new chapter in American foreign policy.

★ ★ ★

He is tearing up the script on which all American actions in Asia have been based since 1949. It was no coincidence that in Lyndon Johnson's final days in the White House his own Secretary of State should publicly have defended the Vietnam War by evoking the spectre of 'the Yellow Peril'.

But for America's pathological fear of Communist China, no U.S. soldier would ever have died in Vietnam — or, for that matter, in Korea.

What Senator Fulbright, Senator Eugene McCarthy, Walter Lippmann and other rational men could never quite pull off, Mr. Nixon has now achieved for them: the whole ill-fated 'domino' theory behind America's policy making has been demolished.

At one shove the president's broadcast knocked down all the supposedly mutually-dependent pieces: lovingly played with throughout two bi-partisan decades they now lie forlornly on the floor.

Whether entrenched in Seoul, Saigon or Taipei the client war lords of the United States now have to face the fact that for them the game is up.

★ ★ ★

Few tears — outside America's emotional right wing fringe — are likely to be shed on their account. But as there are casualties of war, so there can be victims of peace.

It is, no doubt, highly politically gratifying to Mr. Nixon that some of the sharpest criticisms of his Chinese initiative should have come from Hanoi. But in its fear of a Great Power carve-up trampling over its own interests (as happened, to some extent at Geneva in 1954) North Vietnam is not alone.

The same apprehensions must certainly now be taking their grip in New Delhi and even in Tokyo. Admittedly, every step that Mr. Nixon has taken so far suggests that he believes in preparing his ground very carefully before making any move. But now that he is having to walk in the open his tread will need to be more delicate than ever.

Basford's Blockbuster Targeted at Business

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — The Canadian Parliament first considered legislation to control monopolies more than 85 years ago.

Two years ago, the Economic Council, in an "interim report on competition policy" described the subject field as dealing with "combines, mergers, monopolies and restraint of trade, or, as we prefer to call it, competition policy."

Thus, the name of the Competition Act, which Ron Basford, the minister of consumer and corporate affairs, is sponsoring.

There has been a canny silence of "the interests" since the bill got first reading in the House a few weeks ago. I suggested this was a time bomb.

May Hurt Grits —

It could make Basford a most important politician and/or hurt the Liberal Party very much in the business community. I believe that he, like a few other cabinet ministers, really believes the Liberal Party is not the party of big business but of the little people. I generalized that big business has not yet forsaken the Liberals for the Tories, despite the tax reform uproar.

The bill has many segments although its general themes were taken from the ECC report mentioned above. Officials in Basford's department worked out papers on all the segments (for example, one on including pro sports with the service industries to be brought under "competition" policy for the first time). These papers were worked into an over-all position draft and this was reviewed by an unpaid advisory committee drawn from the legal profession and the universities.

The scenario on the bill is this: Through the summer and early fall representations will be heard privately from all the lobby groups, associations, etc., who wish to criticize the bill.

When this Parliament resumes the tag-end of its third session the bill will be given second reading if the tax reform legislation is through. Then it will go to a parliamentary committee, probably a joint House-Senate committee, for examination, including public hearings for anyone wishing to attack or support the bill. Then the bill, probably amended moderately, will come back to the House and be put through.

All this will take long months, enough to guarantee the bill will be at centre-stage in the last weeks of the last session of this Parliament.

Closer Scrutiny

The broad new consumer legislation has taken Basford and his department into a much closer scrutiny of the people's side of the market place. The Competition Act would put him and the new agency it creates smack into the business side.

A prominent Ottawa lobbyist told me that the business community must respond with both anger and powerful critiques to the competition bill. "It is just full of hooks and trap-doors."

If it is passed without major change, this man believes it will drastically alter the ground rules for almost every business in the country outside of banking and insurance.

Is the bill such a bitter pill for business? In essence the bill tries to straddle a contradiction: On the one hand to enforce competition in the private sector with all its benefits of price restraints and efficiency, on the other hand, to appraise and approve and register arrangements for mergers and monopolies where these give benefits in economies of scale, Canadian ownership, and ability to compete in foreign markets.

Devil They Know

This fundamental contradiction in the bill will not raise so many grievances as bringing the diverse service industry field under legislation.

And the very word "tribunal," to appraise and register corporate rearrangements, worries executives. They prefer the devil they know (i.e., the present anti-combines and restrictive practices laws) to a new devil.

Their apprehension has been increased by Basford's reputation as an aggressive missionary for the consumer.

The last substantial revision of note to the anti-combines laws took place in 1960. Shortly after, two professors,

RON BASFORD
. . . tough new bill

Hugh Thorburn and Gideon Rosenbluth, published an appraisal of the legislation and its administration. Here are some insights from their conclusions. They are topical for the political situation into which Ron Basford is dropping his blockbuster.

The professors said: "Governments try hard to avoid antagonizing large blocks of voters, and at the same time to maintain the support of substantial business interests, not only because political campaigns are expensive, but also because, in a multitude of ways, the environment in which government operates is influenced by the actions and attitudes of the major business groups.

"Very often, particularly in non-economic areas, there is no conflict between these objectives, and even in the economic field, important aspects of government policy may not involve conflict between the interests of these elements, the government is compelled to work out a 'compromise' . . .

Appeal to Farmers

"Anti-combines policy is an instance of this kind of conflict. One has only to read the Combines Investigation Act . . . to realize that it is bound to arouse the opposition of major business groups, while it will appeal to the mass of farmers and employees and to individual businessmen, who are the victims of monopolistic restrictions.

" . . . In the Canadian economy, monopolistic practices are not the infrequent acts of a criminal minority. Monopolistic market structures and practices are widespread and constitute the typical business environment."

Thorburn and Rosenbluth believed that anti-combines legislation should be made more effective (much along the lines of the new competition bill) and should be enforced. Mr. Basford and his enterprise may suit the professors, even suit the masses if it can be made understandable and popular to them.

But what about the interests?

Keep Us Informed

THE PROVINCE

The fetish of many public bodies for secrecy about land purchase or rezoning plans has again been discredited, this time in Ontario.

A Globe and Mail reporter was fined $500 in Toronto for refusing to tell a judicial inquiry who gave him a copy of a confidential Ontario government report on lands needed for parks along the Niagara escarpment and how much it should pay for them.

Since the report was made in 1968 and handed out to more than 100 or more persons (with colored maps of areas where land purchases were recommended, how "confidential" would it be?

The argument against public disclosure of such plans is that land speculators would be tipped off and able to charge public bodies exorbitant prices for the land they want to buy.

In this instance the Globe and Mail claimed that the Ontario government had paid exorbitant sums anyway — to private developers and individual property owners in the area involved. In some cases, the paper alleged, the prices were 30 times those paid by the original owners 10 years ago.

Whatever the facts of the case, the effort to preserve secrecy creates an aroma of suspicion and distrust. When 100 or more individuals are given special access to such privileged information there cannot help but be gossip and innuendo.

Clearly the best thing to do in these cases is to keep the public informed and follow expropriation procedures that make it impossible for anyone to "hold up" public bodies for land needed for public purposes. This is a good precept for public bodies everywhere to follow.

Simplicity

Today things can be simpler . . . but with enough tradition to be mindful of all concerned.

WAGES OF COMFORT IS A FLABBY VISAGE

Did you notice that picture of Chou En-lai, the Chinese Premier, with Henry Kissinger, the American Presidential adviser who arranged Richard Nixon's forthcoming visit to China?

Chou, 73, looked lean, fit, tough, what I'd call a handsome man. Kissinger, 48, had a weak face, double chin, an air of softness and self-indulgence about him. Typical, typical.

Going back to Chou, you might say that his face was that of a Thoreau or a Lincoln—faces the United States doesn't seem to produce any more.

Hence, I would think, many of America's current defeats and disasters, both at home and abroad. Comfort and welfare, security and peace, kill a nation; and Canada's one of the nations being killed by them today.

$20,000 SPACE SUIT ENTRUSTED TO DRYCLEANING!

A space suit such as that worn by Neil Armstrong on his flight to the moon, was cleaned in the Permac Bowe pavilion at the Paris Fair in the presence of critical experts and journalists. This space suit is worth $20,000. It required very careful attention, as it contained very varied materials such as nylon, vinyl, polyester, as well as nomex and teflon fibres. This new Permac machine uses the amazing Valclene Drycleaning Solvent which is so gentle, it will safely clean vinyl, rubber, leather, furs, plastic beads and buttons, and all bonded fabrics.
The second of these machines in Canada, has recently been installed in Victoria, B.C. at Nu-Way Cleaners Ltd., "Home of the Fabric Doctor". Victoria families will now be able to have all delicate and difficult fabrics drycleaned with complete safety. Jim and Fred McEvay, owners of Nu-Way, feel this is one of the major advancements in drycleaning in the last twenty years.

Opinion Of MPs 'High'

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — It turns out that the public's opinion of members of Parliament is pretty high after all.

The prime minister's office last week made public a government-commissioned survey carried out for the special committee on federal information services.

It showed, among a lot of other things, that communication with government through the local MP is regarded as by far the best means of getting one's request or beef across to the administration.

About 82 per cent of Canadians looked on their relations with their MPs as "warm" and "co-operative."

This is about the nicest thing anybody has said about an MP since Prime Minister Trudeau described opposition MPs as "nobodies" and criticized some of his own backbench supporters for not doing enough homework.

So highly regarded is the MP, the survey showed, that a Canadian prefers to write him about his problems rather than make a free telephone call to a civil servant.

Forty-six per cent of the 7,000 persons interviewed in the survey described their dealings with officials — as opposed to MPs — as cold, impersonal and strained.

However, 30 per cent said such dealings were co-operative while 24 per cent had no particular opinion on the subject.

Trudeau's decision to set up Information Canada as a government agency appears to fly in the face of one of the survey's findings.

Twenty-one per cent wanted an expansion in information services but 36 per cent were opposed to expansion and 43 per cent wanted things to stay about the same.

However, another finding by the survey shows probably better than anything said on the matter why the government decided to establish Information Canada.

The survey found that knowledge of government responsibilities and exposure to sources of government information was less common among the less educated, housewives, students, the retired and the unemployed.

SOLID COMFORT could have been the theme of a 12-hour rock marathon at UVic from noon to midnight Saturday, but it also just happened to be the name of this electric mandolin player's Vancouver group. Co-sponsored by the Alma Mater Society and five students, the benefit concert featured 10 bands and attracted about 2,000 rock-folk enthusiasts. Over $1,000 was raised for local charity groups.

BUGS SLOW SIR RANULPH

FORT NELSON, B.C. (CP) — Mosquitoes in the carburetors of their outboard engines were a problem for the British expedition into Headless Valley in the Northwest Territories, a member of the expedition said Sunday.

Cpl. Stan Cribbett, one of the group led by Capt. Sir Ranulph Twistleton - Wykeham - Fiennes said mosquitoes and dust caused several blockages in the fuel systems of the engines.

The group arrived in Fort Nelson Friday night after travelling to Virginia Falls and back. Sir Ranulph was not available for comment.

"The engines stopped several times," he said. "When we were about five miles from the falls, the engine on the boat Capt. Fiennes and I were in packed up and we hit the side of a cliff.

"We got off the cliff but were pushed out into the main stream of the current. The engine wouldn't start and we went about a mile downstream before we could paddle out of the current."

CAUSES PROBLEMS

The seven-man group also had problems with a riverboat they borrowed at Nahanni Butte for the last leg of their trip upstream to the falls.

"Shortly after we left Nahanni Butte the transom broke on the boat and we began to take water and almost went down.

"We had to stop for a day and a half while we repaired it, and we had to work with odd bits of wood.

"Also, the engines weren't powerful enough and on Lafferty's Riffle we had to pull the boat with ropes for about four hours to get it through."

Cpl. Cribbett said the waves in the rapids on the river at times pushed the boats backwards, with waves running five to six feet high.

He said the group would remain in Fort Nelson for several days, repairing the boats and engines and organizing their equipment for a trip which will eventually bring them down the Fraser River to Vancouver in mid-October.

The group consists of four members of the Royal Scots Greys, including Capt. Fiennes, and three photographers.

TRUDEAU'S MESSAGE

Tolerance, Preservation

By DAL WARRINGTON

ST. ANN'S, N.S. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau preached tolerance and preservation of cultural differences Sunday in the Cape Breton Highlands.

Following the lines of his own ancestral background, he joined French-speaking Cape Bretoners at an Acadian festival, then took his wife to a preview of the Gaelic Mod, a Scottish clan celebration that starts today.

Mr. Trudeau's father was of French descent and his mother Scottish, as is his wife, the former Margaret Sinclair.

He appeared at a program of highland piping and dancing here wearing an Elliot tartan kilt, predominantly blue and purple. The kilt was a gift from Liberal members of Parliament.

Earlier at Cheticamp, 40 miles away, he took part in a "milling frolic," a traditional Acadian ritual in which old-fashioned homespun cloth is soaked, moulded, and pounded to make it water repellant.

SPEAKS FRENCH

At Cheticamp speaking mainly in French, he told a crowd estimated at 8,000 that Canadians should preserve the cultural differences of their ethnic backgrounds, especially their ancestors' language.

At St. Ann's, he said preservation of cultural differences makes Canadians more tolerant of each other.

"Without preserving these basic qualities," he said, "Canada would not be the place of tolerance that it is."

Before 3,500 persons, he praised Scotsmen for their contribution to Canada in such fields as exploration, rail building, banking and politics.

After their first night aboard the coast guard ship Sir William Alexander sailing along the Nova Scotia eastern shore, the Trudeaus left by helicopter for morning mass at Stella Maris Roman Catholic church at Inverness on the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

FLY TO COTTAGE

From the church the Trudeaus flew off to the summer cottage of Allan MacEachen, Privy Council president, on nearby Lake Ainslie for lunch.

Another guest bringing his own government helicopter was Premier Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia.

Mrs. Trudeau appeared at the Gaelic gathering in a long grey peasant dress with white blouse. She passed up the festivities at Cheticamp.

'Earthquake Lightning'

MOSCOW (UPI) — A physicist from New York's Yeshiva University said Friday a peculiar form of lightning caused by squeezing quartz crystals may prove of great importance in forecasting earthquakes.

Prof. David Finkelstein of the Belfer Graduate School of Science cited an "anomalous night glow" which preceded this year's devastating Los Angeles earthquake and the 1,500 sightings of lightning reported during a quake on Japan's Idu peninsula in November, 1930.

Finkelstein offered his theory of "earthquake lightning" at the conference of the international union of geodesy and geophysics in a paper prepared jointly with Dr. James Powell of the Brookhaven National Laboratory in Upton, N.Y.

He said he believes the lightning is a form of piezoelectricity, produced when certain crystals are compressed. In a recent issue of Nature magazine, Finkelstein and Powell reported that quartz appears to be the only significant piezoelectric constituent of the Earth's crust.

They said earthquake lightning can be expected when the crust contains enough quartz crystals of the proper structure.

"The seismic system of the Earth's crust and the atmosphere-electric fields system are usually regarded as independent, but there is convincing evidence that they are strongly coupled during earthquakes," Finkelstein said.

The surge of Pacific air which Sunday spread thundershorm activity over much of the B.C. coast and across the central interior has now slackened as the associated low pressure centre moved northward toward the Alaska Pandle. Showers which were general over the northern B.C. coast overnight will move into northern B.C. today and will develop into the odd thunderstorm east of the coast mountains.

U.S. JUDGE CURBS SECT

Scientology 'Just a Fraud'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. federal judge Gerhard Gesell ruled last week that the controversial scientology sect may no longer advertise its services as a scientific cure for disease.

Ruling on an eight-year-old case in U.S. districts court here which posed the question of whether scientology is a religion or a pseudo-science, he ordered the condemnation of all the sect's "E-metres" until they are labelled as ineffective in treating illness.

The E-metre, at the heart of the court dispute, "is essentially a simple galvanometre using two tin cans as electrodes. It is crude, battery-powered, and designed to measure electrical skin resistance. It is completely harmless and ineffective in itself," Gesell asserted in his opinion.

FALSE CLAIMS

Scientology employs the E-metre for "auditing", which is alleged to "improve the health, intelligence, ability, behavior, skill and appearance" of an adherent.

But the U.S. Food and Drug Administration accused the scientologists of making false claims for the instrument and, in a raid by deputized Baltimore longshoremen, seized more than 100 metres and about 20,000 pages of literature from the Founding Church of Scientology here on Jan. 4, 1963.

The court battle has been raging ever since, the government contending that the metre was a "device" illegal under the law and the sect that it was a religious "artifact" comparable to holy water.

Gesell settled for a description of "gadget." His ruling, after a lengthy trial in June, adopted neither the government nor the scientologist position.

USE ALLOWED

The E-metre may continue to be used only in "bona fide religious counselling" and no longer in a secular context, he said.

In a 14-page opinion, he described scientology as "a pseudo-science that has been adopted and adapted for religious purposes . . . there is a religious substance to everything when seen with the eyes of the believer."

Gesell was distinctly unflattering to the founder of scientology, L. Ron Hubbard, who, he said, "writing in a science fiction magazine in the 1940s, first advanced the extravagant, false claims that various physical and mental illnesses could be cured by auditing."

Hubbard, the judge said, "is a fertile, prolific author, and his quackery flourished throughout the United States and in various parts of the world."

Explaining the development of scientology over the years, Gesell said, "auditing was guaranteed to be successful. All this was and is false — in short, a fraud. Contrary to representations made, there is absolutely no scientific or medical basis in fact for the claimed cures attributed to E-metre auditing."

Day Camp Still Open

A two-week camp operated by the Oak Bay Recreation Commission still has vacancies for a number of children.

"It's the next best thing to real camping," said Mrs. Isabel Craig, director of the commission. "Activities include hiking, swimming, cooking outdoors and doing craft work."

Children should be between nine and 13 years old and can come from anywhere in the Greater Victoria area, she said.

Fee per child for the complete two-week camp is $20 and $10 for a single week.

The fee includes daily bus fare to and from Elk Lake, milk for lunch and crafts materials.

Buses leave at 9 a.m. daily for Elk Lake from the bus stop on Blanshard in front of the B.C. Hydro building.

Parents interested in having their children attend the camp should contact the Oak Bay Recreation Commission.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

The Winnipeg Grain Exchange is closed today.

CHICAGO (AP) — Heavy selling of corn futures, influenced by expectations of a good crop this year, sent corn futures prices down nearly 4 cents a bushel on the Board of Trade today.

The liquidation in corn was a factor in lower prices for oats and wheat futures.

Second Largest Securities Firm To Offer Stock

NEW YORK (AP) — Bache and Co. Inc., the second-largest securities firm in the United States took the first formal step in its long anticipated public offering of stock.

The brokerage house filed a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission. It covered the proposed public offering of 2.5-million shares of its common stock, giving effect to a 2½-for-one split of its present stock.

Bache joined a growing trend in the industry to go public. Four New York Stock Exchange member firms are publicly owned and a fifth, CBWL-Hayden Stone, filed a registration statement with the SEC in June.

Stock of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, the nation's largest brokerage house, began trading on the big board Tuesday.

Housing Aid Given

FORT VERMILION, Alta. (CP) — The provincial and federal governments are taking action to house 40 families evicted from their homes in this Northern Alberta community.

The federal department of Indian Affairs is building 10 homes on the outskirts of the town to take care of treaty Indian families evicted from private property, and the provincial municipal affiars department is in the process of finding land in the area for the remaining families.

The Indian and Metis families were evicted from the private property earlier this year. The families had been living on the land, formerly owned by the Roam Catholic Church, for several generations before it was sold to private developers.

'Dilute Brokers' Influence'

NEW YORK (AP) — A long-awaited report on the U.S. securities industry defends the recently assailed concept of fixed minimum brokerage commissions and recommends dilution of brokers' influence on the New York Stock Exchange governing board, the Wall Street Journal reports.

The report prepared by William McChesney Martin Jr., former Federal Reserve Board chairman, is scheduled for release this week. The newspaper says it learned of the substance of the report's contents from interviews with persons familiar with the draft.

BAN BANKS

The Journal says the report proposes a vast U.S. securities market that would bar from its membership financial institutions such as banks, insurance companies and mutual funds and would forbid brokerage firms to operate mutual funds of their own.

The report strongly endorses the concept of self-regulation.

The newspaper says another key theme of the Martin report is that financial institutions shouldn't be granted an unfair advantage over individual investors and brokerage houses that serve those investors.

The Journal says Martin specifically suggests that his proposals be set against the larger matrix of a central market place, formed through a loose merger of the New York, American and regional stock exchanges, and the over-the-counter market.

Golds Strong; Sell-Off in Oils

By PETER LEICHNITZ
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A major sell-off of western oil issues highlighted trading on Canadian stock markets last week, as prices in most sectors closed lower in light trading.

The sell-off, due to "profit-taking" by investors in issues trading near, or at, highs for the year forced western oil issues sharply lower.

At Toronto, the western oil index dropped 11.42 points to 225.96. Thursday, the index lost 5.74 points, its sharpest decline since Dec. 1, 1970. In recent weeks, many oil issues have been trading at highs for the year.

PRICES DROP

At New York, prices dropped to their lowest level in almost six months, as the New York market closed lower for the third consecutive session.

On the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, the composite index rose .47 points, closing at 179.64.

Combined volume on the two exchanges was 6.60 million shares, compared with 7.30 million last week.

At Toronto, trading was light throughout the week. Total volume was 8.83 million shares, down from 10.12 million last week.

The Toronto Industrial index, the prime indicator of market activity, closed at 177.49, down 1.94 points.

A round of newsprint price increases, early in the week, sent paper and forest issues moderately higher.

MacMillan Bloedel announced an eight-dollar-a-ton price increase Monday for newsprint delivered west of the Rockies, and by the end of the week all of Canada's major newsprint producers had made similar increases.

The Toronto market's paper and forest index climbed 2.83 points to 82.62.

Gold issues continued to post strong advances. Observers said heavy trading, coupled with a lack of gold and corresponding higher prices on the London bullion market, were responsible for the advance. Earlier in July, the price of gold reached a two-year high in London.

Girls Get Three Gold; Penny Earns a Bronze

WINNER OF GOLD MEDAL in women's 800-metre final Sunday night in Pan-American Games at Cali, Colombia, Toronto's Abbie Hoffman stands on medalists' platform with Seattle's Doris Brown (front), who took silver medal. (AP Wirephoto)

Canadians Strong Third As Games in Full Swing

CALI, Colombia (CP) — Abbie Hoffman of Toronto admitted she moved too early on her way to a gold medal in the women's 800 metres at the Pan-American Games Sunday night but her track coach was glad she did.

Stephanie Berto of Vancouver wondered if her legs would hold up, but they did and she won another gold in the 200 metres.

Then Brenda Eisler of Vancouver wound up the evening of fireworks with a record leap to win the long jump.

Her distance of 21 feet 1¼ inches wiped off the books American Willye White's Pan-Am mark of 20-10, set in 1963. The Canadian girl was more than three inches better than the silver winner, Silvana das Cracas Pereira of Brazil.

The three gold medals in track and field made a strong case for the coaches who right along have been saying the Canadian women will be tough to beat here.

In just two days of competition, the women have accounted for six of the nine medals won by the Canadian track and field team.

The two-week Games got into full swing Sunday with 17 finals, nine of them in track and field. The United States won five gold in track and field, Canada three and Jamaica one.

The over-all Caadian team was a strong third with a total of 12 medals, four of them gold. The U.S. collected eight gold in the first 28 finals of the Games to lead the standing. The Cubans were a close second with six gold. But in total medals the Americans and Cubans were tied with 21 apiece.

Chun Hón Chan, a Chinese weightlifter from Montreal, won gold, silver and bronze in the flyweight class Saturday. Wilf Wedmann of Vancouver grabbed a silver in the men's high jump with a leap of six feet 10¾ inches and Carol Martin of Thornhill, Ont., snatched a bronze in the women's discus.

Five Saturday, Seven on Sunday

The first day on the fields and in the gymnasiums of Cali brought the Canadian team five medals Saturday.

As the venue spread Sunday with more finals contested, the Canadian team won seven more — three gold, one silver and three bronze.

Miss Hoffman's win in the 800 metres was a bit of revenge for her in that she beat the girl who finished two places ahead of her in the 1968 Olympics. And Abbie made no bones about it after she won with a clocking of 2:05.5.

She finished two full strides ahead of Doris Brown of the United States and as she crossed the finish she held her arms aloft in what she called "my gesture of disdain."

Abby had familiary company on the podium when she accepted her gold. Peggy Werthner was beside her to receive a bronze for third place in the 800.

For Miss Hoffman, the win was all the sweater, too, because it gave her the Pan-American title once again. She had won it in the 1963 Games at Sao Paulo, Brazil. But when the Games shifted to Winnipeg four years ago, Madeline Manning was on the scene, and she won the 800. Miss Hoffman was third in that race.

Miss Berto credited an excellent start for her winning performance. Running in the outside lane, she was timed in 23.5 seconds after battling Fulgencia Romay of Cuba in a stirring duel. The clocking equalled the Games record Miss Berto set in an earlier heat.

Silver for Smart on Quick Burst

In the men's 1,500 metres, Bill Smart of Vancouver won a silver with a surprising burst of speed in the final stretch. Marty Liquori and Jim Crawford of the U.S. appeared to have the first two places clinched in the final 50 yards but Smart's sudden move split the two Americans and the Canadian miler took second by an easy five strides.

Liquori won in a Games-record time of 3:42.1. Smart's 3:43.8 effort also was under the record of 3:43.4 set by American Tom Van Ruden in 1967.

Other Canadian bronze medal winners were Penny May of Victoria in the women's 100-metre hurdles and Ain Roost of Toronto in the men's discus.

Roost was particularly happy with his toss of 190 feet five inches.

Patty Jean Johnson, a California housewife, won the 100-metre hurdles in 13.1 seconds. Miss May clocked 13.6.

Americans were one-two in the 20-kilometre walk, tse discus and the men's 400-metre run.

Goetz Klopfer won the walking event in one hour 37½ minutes with Tom Dooley second, Marcel Jobin of St. Boniface de Shaw, que., was fourth.

John Smith and Lee Evans captured a gold and silver for the U.S., in the 400. Smith's winning time of 44.6 was a Games record. Doug chapman of Burnaby, B.C., was fifth.

Jamaican Sprinters Finish 1-2

Richard Drescher III and Tim Vollmer each bettered the Games record in the discus. Drescher's winning throw was 204-3 while Vollmer reached 204-0.

Don Quarrie and Lennox Miller were one-two for Jamaica in the men's 100-metres. All three medal winners were clocked in 10.2 and it took a photo to pick the winner. Charles Francis of Toronto was sixth.

Outside of track and field, the Cubans reaped a harvest of gold.

Rolando Chang of Cuba won three gold medals in the bantamweight weightlifting class, taking the clean and jer, snatch and total lift events. His three-lift total of 735½ pounds tied the Games mark. Fernando Baez of Puerto Rico won the gold medal in the press competition.

WINS IN FOILS

The fencing gold medal in the women's foils went to Cuba's Margarita Rodriguez, who defeated American Ruth White in the final bout by a 4-1 margin.

In rowing, Brazil was the gold winner of the paired oars with cox. The Canadian pair of Robert Cunliffe of Victoria and John Wilkinson of Kamloops, B.C., coxed by Glen Battersby of Delta, B.C., was fourth while the Americans placed fifth.

Brazil also won gold in the individual free pistol and the United States took the team title. Bertino de Souza set a games record of 552 out of possible 600, and dethroned Hershel Anderson of the U.S., who was second with 550. The American set the record of 548 four years ago.

Ed Jans of Calgary was fourth with 541.

Firefighters Impressive; Californians Undefeated

By DOUG PEDEN

Victoria Firefighter All-Stars bustled through another impressive performance and Don Zink may have become a new disciple of the old baseball adage that says "a game is never over until the last man is out."

Firefighters won their second straight game and Zink, manager of the Oregon entry, suffered through late-inning miseries before h snatched a victory Sunday at Royal Athletic Park on the second day of the nine-team, Babe Ruth (16-to-18-year-old) Pacific Sectional tournament.

Firefighters, who had thumped Guam 15-3 in their opening game Saturday provided pitcher Glen Wallis with errorless support Sunday as they fashioned a 5-1 triumph over Oregon.

Relegated to the losers' bracket, Oregon came back later Sunday to survive a thrill-packed struggle with the Carson City club from Nevada, taking a 17-15 decision after three extra innings.

THREE ARE OUT

Defeat dropped Nevada out of the double-loss elimination tourney along with Sunday's two other losers — Alaska which failed to score for the second time and went down 17-0 before Washington, and Guam, battered 11-0 by Washington in an afternoon contest.

Joining Victoria, which received a berth in the tourney as the host club, on Saturday's victory list were British Columbia, represented by the provincial champions from Trail, and two California clubs.

Trail turned in a well-drilled exhibition to hammer Nevada 13-1, Southern California (South Bay) picked on Alaska for a 27-0 triumph and Northern California (Fruitridge) rolled to an 8-1 victory over the Washington club from Bellevue.

BIG GAMES TONIGHT

That set the stage for tonight's two games between undefeated clubs, which shape up like a pair of civil wars. It will be Southern California battleing Northern California at 6:30 and the two B.C. squads — Trail and Victoria, clashing at 8:30.

Victoria got away to a fast start in the event that will decide the Pacific representative in the Babe Ruth world series in Stamford, Conn.

Firefighters scored five runs after two were out in the first inning of Saturday's clash with Guam and were never in trouble as pitcher Mike Finlayson breezed along to spin a six-hitter and strike out seven batters.

On Sunday, Firefighters turned on some power hitting in the early frames to give Wallis a comfortable cushion.

Doubles by Garnet Moen and Mike Squires highlighted the first inning as Moen and Wayne O'Malley scored Victoria's first two runs. Third-baseman O'Malley's two-base shot marked the second frame as Moen and catcher Tom Craig crossed the plate to give Victoria a 4-0 lead.

Both clubs scored once in the third inning before Wallis and Bill Rackley, who came on in relief for Oregon starter Mike Harrahill in the second, shut the door the rest of the way.

Rackley was the pitching hero in Oregon's nerve-shattering survival battle with Nevada, earning the victory after taking over from starter Jerry Bellotti during Nevada's seventh-inning explosion.

With Oregon apparently headed for an easy triumph after building up a 13-4 lead with a seven-run surge in the fifth, manager Zink apparently decided to rest a couple of his regulars and sent in substitutes at the first-base and catching positions.

All seemed serene as his club boosted the margin to 14-4 in the seventh frame.

ROOF CRASHES

Then the roof fell in on the Oregonians as the Nevada boys refused to concede in what was expected to be the final inning. Carson City kept slapping base hits, Oregon started getting jitters in the field, and Rackley was called to the mound.

Before Rackley finally stomped out the fire, Nevada had chased 10 runners across the plate to send the contest into extra innings and give manager Zink a case of the miseries.

Happiness returned in the third extra inning as Tim Zink stroked a lead-off single to set the stage for a surge that produced three runs on three hits and one error for a 17-14 lead.

JACKIE STEWART NEAR WORLD DRIVING TITLE

ADENAU, West Germany (AP) — Jackie Stewart all but clinched the world driving championship Sunday by easily winning the West German Grand Prix in record time.

Stewart, who won the formula one in 1969, raised his point total to 51, far ahead of Jackie Ickx of Belgium, who has 19 for second place.

The expected duel between Stewart in his Tyrell-Ford and Ickx in his red Ferrari V-12 failed to materialize when Ickx spun off the track on the second lap.

Stewart's victory also shattered Ferrari's hopes of staying in the designer's trophy race. Only five of 12 Grand Prix races remain.

Stewart led almost from the start as he covered the 12 laps over the Nuerburgring course in a record time for this race — one hour 29 minutes 15.7 seconds — an average of 114.5 miles an hour for the 169 miles.

Thirty seconds behind him was Ford teammate Francois Cevert of France, with Clay Regazzoni of Switzerland third in a Ferrari.

Okker Handles Laver in Final

QUEBEC (CP) — Winning $20,000 in eight days can be a great leg'ing, tennis star Tom Okker of The Netherlands found out Sunday.

He turned the trick at the $50,000 Quebec international tennis open, defeating Rod Laver of Australia 6-3, 7-6, 6-7, 6-1 for the $10,000 first prize in singles. The win came right on the heels of a similar $10,000 prize last Sunday at the First National Tennis Classic in Louisville, Ky., and boosted the Dutch star's 1971 earnings to well over the $70,000 mark.

Laver, leading money winner on the $1 million, 20-city, World Championship Tennis tour with over $200,000, added $5,000 to that impressive total with his second-place finish.

Over 16,000 fans were attracted to the week-long tournament and saw superlative matches between 30 of the best tennis players in the world. The Quebec tournament was the 11th stop on the tour which travels through North America, Europe, Asia and Australia.

The travelling tennis show left here Sunday night for Boston. A week from today, play begins in Toronto at the Canadian Open.

Okker said after the match that he had not encountered "too much trouble from Laver — something which surprised me."

"I beat him the first time we met three years ago but I hadn't beaten him since then."

"It really feels great to win," he said, waving his cheque.

Laver admitted later that he had a sore back and this hurt his service for part of the event.

Laver received a slight measure of revenge a couple hours after his singles defeat when he and team-mate Roy Emerson of Australia, combined to capture the doubles title with 7-6, 6-3 wins over Okker and Marty Riessen of the United States.

He split an $1,800 first prize with Emerson while Riessen and Okker shared $800 second money.

World Marks Fall In Archery Meet

YORK, England (CP) — An 18-year-old archer from the United States won the men's world archery championship Saturday and a Soviet competitor won the women's crown, taking it away from last year's winner, Dorothy Lidstone of North Vancouver, B.C.

John Williams won the men's title in the four-day championships with a total of 2,445 points. Kyosti Laasonen of Finland was second with 2,381 and Wayne Pullen of Dorchester, Ont., finished third with 2,366.

Both Pullen and the women's individual winner, Emma Gapchenko set world championship records in recording their victories.

RECORD TOTALS

Williams, eclipsed the 1969 record of 2,423 set by his countryman, Hardy Ward in the 1969 meet.

On her way to a 2,380-point total, Miss Gapchencko broke Miss Lidstone's record, also set in 1969.

Second-place Doreen Wilber of the U.S. also broke the old record with a total of 2,371. Poland's Maria Maczynska was third with 2,326.

US. men won the team event with a 7,050 total. Finland was second with 6,979 and Canada third with 6,931.

In the women's team event, Poland won with 6,907 points to 6,866 for the second-place Soviet team and 6,832 for the U.S. in third place.

Don Jackson of Lindsay, Ont., who had earlier been in eighth position in the men's individual event, appeared to drop out of contention later in the shoot, but came back today to finish in 10th spot with 2,309.

Neither Miss Listone nor the Canadian women's team placed in the top 10.

Rams' Prothro In as Winner

CANTON, Ohio (AP) Rookie quarterback John Walton's two touchdown passes led Los Angeles Rams to a 17-6 victory over Houston Oilers Saturday in the annual pro football Hall of Fame exhibition game.

The victory gave Tommy Prothro a successful debut as a coach in the National Football League.

The game was played before a standing-room-only crowd of more than 10,000 after the late Vince Lombardi and Bill Hewitt, Jimmy Brown, Y. A. Tittle, Frank Kinard, Norm Van Brocklin and Andy Robustelli were inducted into the Hall of Fame.

Langford Boosts Lead With Split

Front-running Langford Drywall split two games in Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League action Sunday but still managed to gain ground on second-place Bell's Men's Wear.

With Bell's unscheduled, Langford was surprised, 6-2, by third-place Century Inn at Heywood Avenue Park before coming back with a 6-5 win over Gilmour Construction in the nightcap to increase its lead over Bell's to six points.

Century's Ken Poirier handcuffed Langford batters on just three hits until a four-run rally by his team in the bottom of the sixth inning broke a 2-2 tie.

In the second game, Gilmour players committed eight errors but made a bid for victory in a last-inning rally that produced two runs. A three-run surge by Langford in the bottom of the sixth provided the winning tally.

In other action, Labatts moved to within two points of fourth-place Colwood Inn when Skip Porteous hits a solo home run in an extra inning for a 4-3 win over Colwood.

Leonard Decides to Pack It Up

VANCOUVER (CP) — Stan Leonard, the world-class Canadian golfer who inexplicably lost his game at the peak of his career 10 years ago, has finally decided to give up competition and become a weekend golfer.

"I'm so relieved that I don't have to go out there and punish myself anymore," says the 56-year-old Leonard. "I've abused and annoyed myself long enough."

Leonard, who became one of the most respected international players, last month was still searching for whatever it was he lost a decade ago as a touring professional.

Then, he decided not to enter the 1971 British Columbia Open — which he won for his fifth and final time in 1962. The event is being held next week at Vancouver's Marine Drive golf club where Leonard was resident pro for 10 years before joining the United States golfing gold trail, at the age of 40.

"I've completely lost interest in competitive golf," he said.

"Not being able to put together consistently good rounds gets to you. It's embarrassing playing two rounds in a tournament and then withdrawing."

Leonard still can't fully explain how he lost his game. He guesses "it's nerves and age."

"This game gets to be very mental. My muscles just don't seem to be responding any more. My tempo's gone."

His tempo was at its best in the touring years of 1955-60. In 1955, he was individual champion in the Canada Cup now World Cup team competition in Montreal. He gave a repeat performance in 1959 at Melbourne.

Leonard won three U.S. pro events: the greater Greensboro in 1957, the Tournament of Champions in 1958 and the Western Open in 1960. He barely missed winning the Masters tournament two consecutive years. He finished two shots back of Arnold Palmer in 1958 and the next year shared the third-round lead with Palmer, when Art Wall closed with a 66 to win.

In the 1959-60 tour stretch, Leonard finished in the money in 32 straight events. He won the Canadian PGA title eight times. His last win was the 1962 B.C. Open.

ISLAND OWNERS CASHING IN AT SANDOWN

Shadows Dividend Wins Times Handicap

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Vancouver Island horsemen are out to prove a point about summer racing at Sandown Park, and it helps when thoroughbreds such as Shadows Dividend lend a hand.

The three-year-old gelding owned by Tom and Joan Druce showed some of the class that exists in Island stables with a smart victory in the Times Handicap on Saturday.

Given a solid ride by Kevin Furlong, Shadows Dividend won the one-mile feature by a length and a half and emerged as a prime candidate for the $23,000 Ascot Stakes at Vancouver's Exhibition Park on Aug. 14.

The winner's time was 1:42 3-5, considered good for a deep track.

Insistency, trained by Tom Laidler, was second while Craigdell took third over the pacesetting Tru Lotti.

Furlong's winning ride aboard Shadows Dividend was his fourth of the day. He scored earlier aboard Triple J Cox and Auburn Judge in quarter horse sprints and then made it three in a row on Bill Woods' Blue Cheri.

Furlong had to keep Shadows Dividend in check over most of the route before allowing the three-year-old to make his move on the back stretch.

Shadows Dividend now has won twice, and been second, third and fourth in five outings this year.

It was the sixth victory for Island owners in two days of racing. George Harknett picked up his third victory Saturday when Blessed Star scored in the sixth. Cec Moorehouse, winning with Ky Leado on Friday, is the other Island owner to win in addition to Druce and Woods.

AL VENTRELLA ... takes tumble

Island owners, hoping to prove that a summer race meet can be supported at Sandown, also have seven seconds to their credit in two days.

Saturday's nine-race program was marred by injuries to two riders. Lambert Croaker, who broke his maiden Friday, suffered a shattered knee when thrown by Rainier Pep I in the third race.

Croaker was resting comfortably in hospital today after undergoing a three-hour operation Sunday.

Veteran Al Ventrella also was injured, suffering a leg cut. He was unseated by Rosy Lu San just before the start of the sixth race. Rosy Lu San was excused at the gate.

PADDOCK PATTER: A crowd of about 2,500 pushed $42,497 through the mutuels, an increase of about $11,100 over the previous day ... Jockey Howard Gray displayed some superb riding in guiding Will's Pet to a narrow victory over Birdie Jay in the six-furlong seventh ... Gray's handling kept Will's Pet on top ... The two battled nose-to-nose over most of the distance in what had to be the finest race of the meet ... Terry Crystal, one of the top winners on the quarter-horse circuit this year, failed to get a ride Saturday ... He ran into a weight problem ... Jack Palmer, who won eight straight on the opening card of a three-day quarter-horse meet here last year, is due to arrive in time to accept mounts on Tuesday's program ... With Exhibition Park dark on Tuesdays and Thursdays, Sandown officials expect to be well staffed with riders for the next two programs at Sandown ... First post Tuesday is 5 p.m.

Palmer-Nicklaus Duo Won't Be Broken Up

LIGONIER, Pa. (AP) — Is there a chance the Arnold Palmer-Jack Nicklaus combo might be broken up in team competition?

"Not so far as I know," Palmer said Sunday after he and Nicklaus had scored a six-stroke victory in the U.S. National team championship. "We'll play together again next year."

The two have an unmatched history of success in team play. They've won this event—in which scoring is based on the better ball of each team on each hole—three of the last four times it's been played. They combined to win four World Cup titles for the United States.

And they made a rout of this weather-plagued tournament on Palmer's home course, the 7,045-yard, par-71 Laurel Valley Golf Club layout that was almost made unplayable by a series of rains that disrupted the tournament and forced a 36-hole windup Sunday.

The defending champions had a four stroke lead when the day's play began, led by three at the end of the morning round and coasted in as the challenge of Julius Boros and Bill Collins faded in the stretch.

FINAL ROUND 66

Palmer reeled off three birdies in a string of four holes on the front side and Nicklaus birdied the 10th and 11th and it was all over. They had a final-round 66.

They finished with a 257 total, 27 under par. Boros, the 51-year-old U.S. National Seniors champ, and Collins, closed with a 68 for 263. They were tied for second at that figure with Australian Bruce Devlin and New Zealander Bob Charles, who had a 66.

HOLED PITCH SHOT

Texas veterans Miller Barber and Don January and a pair of non-winning tour regulars, John Schlee and Bob Smith tied for fourth at 264. The Hill brothers, Dave and Mike, were alone at 265 after Mike pitched in from 30 yards for a birdie on the final hole.

It was the fourth title of the season for both Palmer and Nicklaus. The $20,000 apiece they picked up from the total purse of $200,000 pushed Nicklaus' earnings for the season to $187,763 and Palmer's to $184,799, second and third behind Lee Trevino, who missed the cut for the final two rounds and failed to add to his $197,219 total.

O'Dell Takes Feature; Others Provide Thrills

Rick O'Dell won the July Cup feature event at Western Speedway Saturday night, but Chris Van de Water and Earl Pollard stole the show.

O'Dell won the 50-lap feature for super stocks easily after five tough laps while the other two drivers thrilled the crowd of 2,810 in a pair of thrilling stock-car duels.

A spectacular smash-up in the fourth lap, however, provided the July Cup race with a measure of excitement. Ron Hancock was shaken up when he and Barry Cook crashed into the grandstand wall.

After the restart, Larry Walker held the lead for only a lap before O'Dell took over and rapidly ran away from the rest of the pack.

In Saturday's opening event, Van de Water won the stock-car trophy dash by racing past Ron Fleet on the last lap. In the 40-lap Roy White Memorial Race for stock cars, the margin of victory was even narrower, but Van de Water was not the winner.

Holding a narrow edge over Pollard, from the 11th to the 40th lap, Chris lost to Pollard by about one foot.

Neil Montgomery and Bill Price both broke Ron Hancock's track record of 18.9 seconds in super stocks time trials but Hancock regained the record later.

Price's time was 18.33, Montgomery did the lap in 18.38, and Hancock finished in 18.24 for the new record.

Jumping Bench Kicks Off Dodgers' Winning Parlay

By The Associated Press

Catcher's interference, a balk and a run batted in are not unusual in a baseball game—but all on the same play?

The rare parlay occurred Sunday on the final play in the Los Angeles-Cincinnati game and gave the Dodgers a 5-4, 11-inning victory over the Reds in a controversy-filled National Baseball League contest.

The situation was this:

The Dodgers tied the score 4-4 with one run in the bottom of the 11th, had the bases loaded with two out and the count was on strike on Willie Crawford.

On the next pitch by Cincinnati reliever Joe Gibbon, third base runner Manny Mota broke for the plate. Catcher Johnny Bench grabbed for the ball and put a tag on Mota.

However, home plate umpire Harry Wendelstedt ruled that Bench prevented Crawford from being free to swing at the pitch—thus the catcher's interference call.

According to rules, on such a play the pitcher is charged with a balk and the batter is credited with an RBI.

In the rest of the National League, San Francisco Giants completed a four-game sweep over Pittsburgh Pirates, beating the Pirates 11-7 and 8-3, San Diego Padres blanked Atlanta Braves 2-0, Houston Astros walloped Montreal Expos 8-1, Chicago Cubs edged New York Mets 3-2 in the first game of a scheduled doubleheader, then the second game was rained out, and St. Louis Cardinals and Philadelphia Phillies battled to an 11-inning 3-3 tie in a game called by rain.

Bench Jumped in Front of Plate

Wendelstedt, after making his call, said later:

"Bench jumped in front of the plate, and he has to give the batter the opportunity to hit the ball. You cannot deprive the man of a chance to swing."

It was the second interference play in the game. The other call also went against the Reds.

The Dodgers broke a 1-1 tie with runs in the sixth and eighth, but Al Ferrara slammed a two-run pinch homer with two out in the ninth, making it 3-3.

Perez homered in the top of the 11th for a 4-3 Cincinnati lead, but the Dodgers deadlocked it in the bottom of the inning on Joe Ferguson's pinch single, an error by Gibbon on a bunt, a wild pitch, an intentional walk and a hit batsman.

San Diego pulled a triple play against Atlanta in the seventh inning. After Earl Williams singled and Hal King walked, second baseman Don Mason speared Oscar Brown's sharp liner, threw to first baseman Nate Colbert doubling up King. Colbert then fired to shortstop Enzo Hernandez, tripling up Williams.

Manager Chuck Tanner of Chicago White Sox was counting on knuckleballer Wilbur Wood to start both ends of Sunday's American League doubleheader with Boston Red Sox.

But the Red Sox spoiled Tanner's plans and Wood's day by ripping into the left-handed ace for four runs in the first inning en route to a 5-1 triumph in the opener.

And Boston added insult to injury by completing a sweep with a 6-1 victory in the nightcap.

Tanner had said he would allow his star pitcher to make a rare double appearance in one day only if "all conditions were perfect and if Wood wanted to try it."

In Sunday's other American League action, Milwaukee Brewers swept a pair from Washington Senators 4-3 and 3-2, Minnesota Twins outslugged New York Yankees 10-7, Detroit Tigers nipped California Angels 4-3 in 16 innings and the Oakland Athletics stopped Cleveland Indians twice, 7-3 and 4-2. Rain washed out Kansas City at Baltimore.

WANTED WORK

Tanner said the idea to start Wood twice was planted two weeks ago when the southpaw said he could have worked both ends of a twin bill. Wood had been the workhorse of the White Sox bullpen for the last three years, during which he appeared in 241 games.

Wood's sendoff Sunday wasn't all his fault. The White Sox kicked in three errors in the opening game to help things along for Boston.

Wood lasted seven innings, giving up all the Red Sox runs and 10 hits, before being lifted for a pinch-hitter.

In the second game, George Scott and Reggie Smith decided matters for Boston in the fourth inning with home runs that provided a 4-0 cushion for Gary Peters.

BOB BOLITHO

Undefeated Royals Run String to Nine

VANCOUVER — It's getting to be that when Victoria Royals engage Western Canada Soccer League rivals, the opposition only manages to win sympathy.

Sunday at Swangard Stadium, the story was "more of the same" as the Royals edged Vancouver Spartans 4-3 and stretched their undefeated streak to nine games.

Playing-coach Brian Hughes' Victoria squad now has seven wins and two draws to show for its nine WCSL starts.

After fighting hard for a 2-2 draw against Royals in Victoria's Royal Athletic Park last week, Spartans tried again Sunday but fell short with a strong second-half rally.

Victoria led 1-0 at the half on a penalty kick by Peter Roharts, made it 3-0 with two quick goals at the start of the second half but the Spartans refused to roll over and die.

Centre forward Ash Valdal made it 2-0 for Victoria just 17 seconds after the second half started, clicking on a blazing 20-yard drive. Rookie George Hyne made it 3-0 with an accurately-placed shot that just made it under the top bar of the goal.

But Spartans charged back. Victor Kodelja and Jeff Hastings scored to make it 3-2.

Rookie Jan Bentley was Johnny-on-the-spot to put away a rebound and put Victoria two goals up.

Centre forward Ike MacKay brought Vancouver back into contention again with a goal 10 minutes before time, but Royals' defence held out the rest of the way.

The Victoria team plays its next game Saturday at Royal Athletic Park, facing the Prairie Division-leading Edmonton Eagles.

A scheduled game in Victoria next Sunday between Royals and Winnipeg Blues has been cancelled, apparently because the Manitoba team is unable to travel because of financial difficulties.

Napoles Stops Foe

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — World welterweight boxing champion Jose Napoles pounded Puerto Rican champ David Melendez relentlessly Saturday night and won by a technical knockout in the fifth round of their non-title bout.

Tryout With Everton Set for Bob Bolitho

Bob Bolitho, youthful right winger with Victoria Royals, is scheduled to leave the club in three weeks for a trial with Everton, the English League first-division soccer club in Liverpool.

Rated one of the finest soccer prospects developed in the Victoria area in recent years, the 19-year-old Bolitho was captain of a Greater Victoria high school team that toured Britain this spring.

After joining Gorge Meisons of the Victoria and District League at 16, Bolitho earned a berth with Victoria O'Keefes in the Pacific Coast League the following season before playing last summer's Western Canada League campaign with the Royals.

He was with Victoria United in the PCSL last winter and returned to the Royals for the current WCSL season.

Bates Look Sharp In Playoff Tuneup

Major Men's Softball League teams, warming up for provincial playoffs, won four out of five exhibition games with Everett Olys at Central Park at the weekend.

Bate Construction swept all three games from the Washington crew while Seaboard Construction split the spoils in a pair of engagements.

Highlighting Seaboard's 2-1 Sunday triumph was the one-hit pitching of Barry Wilkin. The lone hit off Wilkin was Bill Esswine's sixth-inning homer.

Bob Swanson, Barry Jackson and Brian Pearce hurled victories for Bates, who will represent the South Island zone in provincial "A" playoffs at Campbell River, Aug. 14-15.

Seaboard and Strathcona will make a pitch for entry into the B.C. "B" tournament by opening a best-of-three series tonight at Central Park. Second game will be played Wednesday and a third, if needed, on Thursday.

Macs Boost Playoff Lead

Victoria Macdohald's Bread has taken a stranglehold on the South Vancouver Island Intermediate Lacrosse League playoff crown.

Macs pounded out a 16-6 decision over Saanich E. J. Hunter Sunday at Pearkes Arena for their second straight triumph in the best-of-five final and will be trying to nail down the title when the teams clash in the third game Tuesday (8 p.m.) at Memorial Arena.

Rick Sylvester, with four goals and four assists, and Jeevan Dillon, who collected two tallies and six assists, paced the bread squad. Roger Hill added three goals and two-goal efforts were turned in by Al Francis and Brian Gibson.

Victoria Little Leaguers Reach Provincial Playoff

LADYSMITH — Victoria Americans defeated Duncan, 16-2, Saturday to win the Vancouver Island Little League baseball title in three straight games.

Americans now advance to the provincial tournament in Vancouver next weekend after successfully defending their area, district and sectional championships.

They will be stepping into the provincial playoff with high hopes of success after running their string of victories to eight games with Saturday's triumph over Duncan.

The provincial champion travels to St. Laurent, Que., for the Canadian final, commencing Aug. 16, and the winner there will represent Canada at the Little League World Series at Williamsport, Pa., beginning Aug. 23.

EARLY EXPLOSION

Americans exploded for five runs on four hits in the first inning, taking advantage of two walks, three errors and a hit batsman. In the fifth inning Robert Lee hit a two-run double to highlight an 11-run outburst, in which 16 players went to the plate and three Duncan pitchers issued seven bases on balls.

Wayne Mahar drove in three runs in the rally, hitting two of his three singles in the day's action. Duncan's only runs resulted from a two-run homer by Terry Blaine in the fourth inning.

SAANICH TYKES TAKE TOURNEY'S 'B' TITLE

Burnaby Norburn Lakers whipped Esquimalt 11-1 Sunday at George Peakes Arena to win the B.C. tyke lacrosse division "A" championship.

Allan Cowie paced the winners, scoring five goals as Burnaby ended the round-robin tournament undefeated. The Lakers had been highly favored to win the championship after drubbing Saanich 14-3 Saturday.

In the "B" division final, Menzies Plumbing of Saanich won that championship by virtue of a 6-3 victory over another Burnaby team.

Coquitlam teams won both "A" and "B" division consolation finals, with the "A" team beating Saanich 8-3 and the "B" team whipping Saanich Evening Optimists, 8-4.

On Saturday, Coquitlam downed Esquimalt, 11-3, in "A" division competition while the "B" Coquitlam squad lost to Burnaby, 4-8, and Menzies Plumbing trounced the Evening Optimists, 9-4.

Cowichan Squad Back in Top Spot

Cowichan regained the lead in the Victoria and District Cricket Association on Saturday, but it wasn't an easy task.

Dismissing the last Castaways batsman in the final over in a match at Shawnigan Lake, the Cowichan team managed a thrilling victory by five runs.

Albion, meanwhile, fell from first to third spot in the league on the day's action. Albions were idle as Incogs defeated Oak Bay by three wickets to edge into second place.

Captain Peter Wilson was the Cowichan leader, cracking 43 Cowichan leader, cracking 43 runs in leading his team to 131 all out and then taking three wickets for 38 runs to help get Castaways out for 126.

Helping Wilson were Neil Brett-Davis, with 20 runs, and Peter Clarke with 18. Bowler Tim Lord chipped in by taking five wickets for 59 runs.

For Castaways, Brian Rudgard scored 19 runs while Dave Clarke ran up 49.

Incogs dismissed Oak Bay for 72 at Windsor Park as Bruce Howe took six wickets for 41 runs and Jim Wenman scored 25 to lead Incogs past their opponents' total for the loss of seven wickets.

Charlie Thorne Paces 'Half Marathon' Field

Charlie Thorne of the Victoria Evergreen Track Club was the winner by a mere 23.3 seconds of a "half marathon" road-and-trail running race Sunday around Elk and Beaver lakes.

Completing the 13-mile distance in a time of one hour, 18 minutes and 13.7 seconds, Charlie dashed home in front of Jim Conway to win the Royal Canadian Legion Trophy.

Thirteen of 15 entrants finished the event, sponsored by the Legion and organized by the Victoria District Track and Field Association.

Conway, running for Vancouver Olympics, was followed closely by dubmate Jack Burnett, who was timed in 1:19:46 as he finished six seconds in front of Duncan's Dr. Wolf Schamberger.

Jim Thorne, Charlie's brother, finished eighth and won a special award as the leading high school athlete. Ruth Trelawney, who completed a "quarter marathon" of seven miles, received two awards, for being the first woman and the first veteran to finish.

Rain Halts Drags

Sunday's drag racing competition at Van-Isle Dragways was washed out by rain. Officials of the Cobble Hill strip announced that the next racing program is scheduled for Aug. 15.

Kayak Pilgrims Complete Trip Along Coast

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three Prince Rupert, B.C., youths were taking things easy in Vancouver Sunday after completing a 500-mile trip down the coast of British Columbia in 16-foot kayaks.

Doug Christison, Les Whitely and Ryan Mitchell pulled up their kayaks on Third Beach in Vancouver's Stanley Park Saturday afternoon and were greeted by Prince Rupert MLA William Murray.

Mr. Murray presented them with a telegram of congratulations signed by many Prince Rupert residents. The three were escorted to the beach by members of the Vancouver kayak club.

They said the only mishap on the 34-day trip was being swamped by two large pleasure craft near Campbell River on Vancouver Island. A fishboat escorting them through rapids pulled them out of the water.

ANNON LEE SILVER DIES

Cancer Claims Soprano

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — The British opera world has been saddened by the death at 32 of Canadian soprano Annon Lee Silver, described by organizers of the Glyndebourne opera as one of the most promising singers of her generation.

Miss Silver, a native of Glace Bay, N.S., died of cancer July 28 in a London hospital. She had been ill for several months and her last appearance was at an invitation concert in a London church last April. Her body will be flow to Canada Tuesday for burial in her home town and there will be a memorial service later here.

Officials at Glyndebourne, the Sussex County mansion where a summer opera festival is staged each year, said the Canadian girl was "on the threshold of a very fine international career."

The Times incorporates the Glyndebourne tribute in its obituary of Miss Silver published today, adding that she had a voice of "unmistakable individual quality" and an "endearing personality."

After graduating from Mount Allison University in Sackville, N.B., Miss Silver won a Canada Council grant and a Beaverbrook scholarship to study at London's Royal College of Music.

DEBUT IN 1968

She made her debut at Glyndebourne in 1963 in Monteverdi's L'Incoronazione de Poppea, singing the role of Amor. After several successful seasons in Sussex, she created the role of Atalanta in the 1970 British opera The Rising of the Moon by Nicolas Maw—a part she was to have sung again in this year's festival.

She was also to have her debut this year at the Edinburgh Festival and to have sung in Benjamin Britten's Cantata Academica on the last night of the BBC Promenade concerts at London's Royal Albert Hall—always a notable musical occasion.

Miss Silver appeared at Expo 67 with the Montreal Symphony and made several recordings for Canadian radio and TV.

She sang with many distinguished musical figures, including violinist Yehudi Menuhin and veteran conductor Sir Adrian Boult.

She was married to London pianist Ronald Lumsden and leaves a son, Gavin, 5.

'Doc Adams' Feeling Fine

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Tanned and chipper, with a vein from his leg bypassing blocked arteries in his heart, television's Doc Adams of Gunsmoke is looking great.

"I'm feeling just fine," said Milburn Stone, 67, who has played Dodge City's compassionate medic in television's longest-running drama series throughout its 16 years.

Replaced temporarily by actor Pat Hingle for a half-dozen of next fall's filmed episodes, Stone plans to resume his Dodge City practice as Doc Adams in late September.

He received "tons" of get-well wishes from fans.

Last January he had his third heart attack in less than three years. With Janie, his wife of 25 years, he flew to Birmingham, for treatment at Univetsity of Alabama.

ARTERY BLOCKED

X-rays showed, he said, one artery completely blocked, another 80-per-cent and a third 40-per-cent occluded.

A vein was removed from the inside of his right thigh and used to bypass the occluded arteries. For days he breathed through a tube inserted in his throat.

He has been recuperating since late May at his mountainside home overlooking shrubbery where deer and raccoons roam. He rides a stationary bike 10 minutes a day, takes sunbaths, does exercises, kicks and throws a ball, swims and walks a mile before bed.

He says:

"I've always said the only kind of retired actor I'd ever be was a dead actor. I guess I came awful close to that, but I'm not going to retire."

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dick Knight of Seattle defeated John Andrews of Fullerton, Calif., 6-4, 4-6, 7-6, Saturday to win the men's singles title in the Western Canada lawn tennis championships.

Janet Adkisson of Seattle defeated Lori Sherbeck of Fullerton, 6-2, 6-2, to take the women's crown.

Andrews partnered Bob Alloo of Lehcya, Calif., to win the men's doubles over Don Gertsmar of Seattle and Bud Guion of Northern California, 6-2, 7-6.

Susan Butt of Vancouver teamed with Janet Adkisson in the women's doubles final to defeat the Portland pair of Hedy Jackson and Joanne Kraft, 6-2, 6-2.

Fillies Outrun Nursery Rivals

Times News Services

It was a sad day for male runners at Vancouver's Exhibition Park Saturday as two fleet fillies showed their heels to rivals and captured both divisions of the Nursery Stakes.

Aviemore, owned by Les and Mary Gilmore of Richmond, charged along the rail under the urging of jockey Rogelio Olguin to win the first division by a neck over Deevoy as Madly Magic, hampered by the No. 10 post, was less than a length back in third place.

Aviemore ran the six and one-half furlongs, two-fifths of a second slower than the time Bob Hale's Timber Music required to take the second division.

Piloted by Gail McMahon and timed in 1:19 4-5, Timber Music hit the wire almost three lengths ahead of Hard Runner with Tays Talent a fast-closing third.

Each division carried a purse of $8,015, with $4,910 to the winner.

In the $3,150-added Harbor Handicap, Winning Charge romped home with a six-length margin over Hallman.

WIN STREAK EXTENDED

Bold Reason won the richest race on United States tracks Saturday. Packing top weight of 126 pounds, Bold Reason scored his fifth straight victory by winning the $138,200 American Derby by half a length over Mr. Pow Wow at Chicago's Arlington Park.

Northfields was a close third and Vegas Vic was fourth among 11 three-year-olds, running one and one-eighth miles on a turf course.

Victory: Bold Reason's sixth this season, was worth $81,950 and boosted his earnings this year to $236,122.

CHEVRON FLIGHT WINS

At Oceanport, N.J., Chevron Flight carried the silks of Caesar P. Kimmel to a head victory over Chauffeur in the $117,550 Sapling at Monmouth Park.

The two-year-old colt has been unbeaten since Kimmel paid $60,000 for him last month.

Four lengths back in third was King of Cornish, a nose in front of Freetex.

In New York, Run the Gantlet, only three-year-old in the field, closed with a rush in the stretch and won the $61,000 Tidal Handicap at Aqueduct.

Ridden by Bobby Woodhouse, Run the Gantlet overhauled Royal Harmony in the stretch and drew out to win by four lengths.

IRISH UNABLE TO OVERCOME . . . . . FIRST-PERIOD DISASTER

Rocks Fall, Adanacs Climb

Victoria Shamrocks tumbled and Coquitlam Adanacs climbed in Western Lacrosse Association battles Saturday night, but both clubs face identical, and probably insurmountable, obstacles in closing bids to finish regular-season play in higher positions.

Barring near-miracles, those same two clubs will tangle in semi-final playoffs, which will involve all four teams.

Shamrocks made a valiant try to overcome a demoralizing first period at Memorial Arena as they dropped a 13-11 decision to third-place Vancouver Burrards and Coquitlam Adanacs moved within seven points of front-running New Westminster as they nipped the Salmonbellies 9-8 at Coquitlam.

EARLY TROUBLES

With their triumph, Adanacs left the Rocks out of the running for second place and they remained six points ahead of Vancouver with five scheduled games remaining for each squad.

Thus it appears almost certain that it will be Victoria against Coquitlam and New Westminster against Vancouver in semi-final struggles.

Troubles arrived early for the Shamrocks, who had hoped to avoid a last-place finish after snapping a long losing streak in their previous game.

On the way to their 15th defeat in their last 16 games, the Victorians were trailing 6-0 when the first period ended and the second session was four minutes and 59 seconds old before they scored their first goal to make the count 7-1.

Twice the Rocks charged back within striking distance and both times defensive miscues enabled Burrards to notch two goals eight seconds apart — the first time when Dennnis Quigley fired two quick tallies while Vancouver was killing off a penalty.

Mike Beaulac, who played an outstanding game, and Ranjit Dillon sparked the Victoria comeback attempts. Beaulac earned two goals and two assists while Dillon contributed a goal and assisted on five scoring plays.

Gord Frederickson was a slick playmaker for Vancouver, getting six assists and scoring once.

At Coquitlam, Wayne Shuttleworth picked up a goal and five assists for Adanacs to boost his league-leading point total to 108 points, moving five points ahead of New Westminster's Wayne Goss, who managed only one assist.

Mick Leads Amateurs As Norman Grabs Title

CALGARY — Dave Mick of Victoria fired his second successive one-under-par 69 Saturday to capture low-amateur honors in the Alberta Open golf tournament as chattering Moe Norman grabbed the biggest chunk of prize money.

Norman, the controversial pro from Gilford, Ont., collected birdies on four consecutive holes during the final nine and coasted to a three-stroke victory over John Elliott of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Mick, who had opened the 54-hole event with a 71, finished with a total of 207 to share fifth place in the fourney with Edmonton's Billy Wright, who earned a place in the 1972 Canadian Open by being low Canadian pro and who had not previously won an event on this year's tour.

The win was worth $1,500 and boosted Norman's earnings on the Canadian tour to $5,275.

After the string of birdies, Norman went one-over par on the next two holes to finish with a two-under 68 and a total of 201.

His winning margin was the largest this year on the Canadian tour.

Elliott, Norman's playing partner, pulled even with the fast-talking veteran after the first nine holes of he final round, but was left behind when Norman began to move.

MEXICAN THIRD

Elliott finished with an even-par 70 and a total of 204. His second-place finish earned him $1,125.

In third place was Ernesto Perez of Tijuana, Mexico, who was also two under par Saturday with a 68 to finish at 205 and win $750.

John Calabria of Rochester, N.Y., who finished with a 68 for 206, was fourth.

John Morgan of Victoria missed the prizes, firing a 73 Saturday which gave him 216.

Amateur Carl Schwantje of Victoria slipped to 77 Saturday, finishing with 220, good for eighth place among the amateurs.

Results of the tournament also decided Alberta's Willingdon Cup team.

For the 19th time, Doug Silverberg of Calgary earned a position on the team and Keith Alexander of Calgary made the squad for the 15th time.

Alexander was low among provincial amateurs with a 210 and Silverberg was two strokes back at 212.

At 211 and making the team for the first time was Don Graham of Medicine Hat. Norm Gray of Calgary who qualified once before, took the remaining berth with a 212.

Tom Moryson finished with 73 for 213 to pick up $152 as two other Vancouver pros — Bob Cox (215) and Doug Robb (219) finished out of the money.

Cordova Bay Girls End Great Season

SURREY — Cordova Bay Stockers of Victoria completed a great softball season here Sunday as they won the British Columbia juvenile girls' championship.

Stockers swept through the six-team, double-knockout provincial tournament in the minimum of three games as they whipped Woodfibre 16-1 in a five-inning Saturday contest and then chalked up a pair of shutout triumphs Sunday.

Audra Sinclair, who pitched all three games for Cordova Bay, wound up with a string of 18 scoreless innings as Stockers stopped Nanaimo 11-0 in the semi-final round and defeated Guildford of Vancouver in the title contest.

During the season, the Cordova Bay girls won 30 games, tied two and suffered only one defeat.

RING TITLE RETAINED

MIAMI (AP) — Frank Otero retained his North American junior lightweight boxing title Saturday with a third-round knockout of Brazilian champion Pablo Gongalvez.

THE BANNERS

Our Big Brother: The Faceless Man

It's been said that the occupational disease of the civil service is timidity. Certainly, as any newspaperman will tell you, there's a real or imagined fear of reprisals by public servants that causes them to open their mouths, like oysters, only for the purpose of eating or breathing.

If I'd a dime for every letter I've received that ended, "... but don't use my name as I am in the civil service" I ... well, I'd have a pocket full of dimes.

★ ★ ★

I mention this only because today's subject — Canada's great triumph over Abbie Hoffman or How We Saved the Nation From Chaos and Revolution — is written at the suggestion of a federal employee, a department head, a man of impeccable respectability. I don't blame him one little bit for insisting on anonymity. He is a man whose fury and shame, you see, are aimed directly at those who hire him.

Two weeks ago, on a brief holiday in Seattle, Mr. X purchased, for $1.95, a paper-back with the curious title, "Steal This Book." The author is Abbie Hoffman, the 34-year-old leader of the so-called Yippie movement in the U.S.A.

In quick succession, several things happened to Mr. X as the result of this purchase. First, he found the book an enormously entertaining and amusing put-down on the well known weaknesses of the way of life in the United States, a sort of tongue-in-cheek survival course to avoid or delay being crushed by The Great American Dream Machine. Second, he began to grapple with the ethical problem of whether to bring the book into Canada when he returned and, in view of his position, decided against it. Third, the fury that while this book is freely sold in the United States it is illegal for the Canadian reader. Fourth, the shame that we Canadians, so blithely confident that we've a healthier, sturdier democracy than our neighbors to the south, should have meekly accepted a form of political censorship that would be fought by every American liberal.

These emotional responses — and this is the point to be made today — were not directed against a prime minister, a cabinet, a government. They were directed against faceless, voiceless, unidentified bureaucrats who, like Mr. X., are servants of the people.

Last January, at Fort Erie, Ontario, en route to the University of Western Ontario to take part in the CBC television program "Under Attack," to be seen coast-to-coast, Abbie Hoffman was turned back at the Canadian border. He was not turned back by a prime minister, a cabinet or a government. He was turned back by the faceless, voiceless unidentifiable bureaucrats of the department of immigration.

★ ★ ★

Last week Abbie Hoffman's "Steal This Book," now over the 100,000-mark in sales in the United States, was banned in Canada as an "immoral" publication. It was not banned by a prime minister, a cabinet or a government. It was banned by the faceless, voiceless, unidentifiable bureaucrats of the department of revenue.

On the theory that it takes one to know one, Mr. X finds himself asking the questions that perhaps we should all be asking.

Both the banning of Hoffman in the flesh and Hoffman in print were "interpretive" decisions by men whose only guidance is found in regulations. They are not men concerned with civil liberties, with the broader workings and safeguards of democratic principals, with the right of dissent or the need of it. They are specialists in immigration and revenue. They are not men concerned with literary merit or the freedom to print. They are technicians. Yet the effect of their decision may have a profound effect on democracy.

They are not men who stand in the glare of public opinion to be challenged or praised. Like all civil servants their decision is anonymous. Their jobs, their future, are never in jeopardy. There is no direct appeal from their judgment. By the nature of their profession and the fear that it engenders they are timid, cautious men. Yet their power is the ultimate power in a democratic state — the power to tell you and me that we may not listen to a man's views under attack on a television screen or to read his views between the covers of a book.

How they interpret the guidelines depends, of course, entirely on the kind of men they are. We've no way of knowing that. Are they men whose occupational timidity extends to a belief that the Canadian democracy is such a fragile, vulnerable thing that it will blow away if any long-haired radical is allowed to huff and puff at it?

Are they unsophisticated, humorless men who could easily banish a book simply because of an intellectual inability to get the joke? Are they older, reactionary men whose well-meaning interpretation of guide-lines is that the youth of the land must be shielded from the corrupting influence of every iconoclast? There is no way to tell.

That is the insidious thing about this kind of censorship. It is particularly revealing in the case of the banning of "Steal This Book."

My civil service informant describes "Steal This Book" as a kind of black comedy directed against the sickness of the United States — the ghettos, the poverty, the hunger, the unemployment in the richest nation on earth.

★ ★ ★

Dotson Rader, the novelist, writing in The New York Times Book Review, describes Hoffman's "gentleness and affection for his people," his "peculiarly righteous morality" (he hits hard against needle drugs and stupid violence) and concludes: "It is a book of warning and practical knowledge. It should be read by the young, for it will help them to make it through life in hip America with their minds and bodies relatively intact."

Which is it? An important book with an important message or an "immoral" book that poses a threat to the law and order of Canada?

There is no way of knowing short of crossing the border. We can only know that the threat to freedom here does not come from a tyrant or dictator. Big Brother, Canada-style, is a timid man without a name, without a face.

Business Balks At Tourist Aid; City Gets Plea

Victoria businessmen have refused to increase support for the visitors' bureau, city council was informed today.

A letter from Sam Lane, bureau president, says the organization has done its "utmost" to improve on the $17,500 raised by voluntary contributions but without success.

Acting Mayor Tom Christie said today he doubts that there has been any "strenuous" effort to improve the contributions.

He said despite some generous gifts to the bureau, there are many tourist-oriented enterprises making only "token" contributions, and others are not giving anything.

The effort to increase the amount donated by private enterprise came after council warned earlier this year it will drastically cut back in 1972 its annual gift of $60,000.

PLAN AHEAD

Lane says in the letter the bureau must now plan ahead "and make commitments for 1972."

"Furthermore, our 14 staff at the present are quite upset and uncertain as to their future after loyally doing their job for many years," Lane added that the "uncertainty of his future" has already caused the former bureau manager to resign.

"... If the council feels that under the direction of 22 voluntary directors of the bureau, the bureau is not fulfilling its function, may we have constructive criticism and practical advice."

The letter says the "feeling of the businessmen" is that the $900,000 they pay in business licences and taxes, plus property tax and parking lot assessments, is sufficient.

EFFORT FAILS

Lane also said a continuing effort to get more money from other municipalities has failed.

Failure of the city to continue its grant of $60,000 would lead to the complete demise of the entire organizations set up to promote the economic well-being of the entire Greater Victoria area and Vancouver Island," the letter says.

"If Victoria ... fails to continue these grants the visitors bureau would have to cease operation after 54 years of continuous operation, and the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau would also fold."

OBJECTION

One of the city's main objections to the bureau operation is the large amount of funds spent on advertising the area's tourist facilities in American and other extra-city publications.

Christie said "I don't think the private sector is paying its share." He said there is no way of making fees to the bureau mandatory because the bureau cannot tax. He added that the amount individual businesses donate is "in no way related to what their take (income) is."

The letter says inquiries at the bureau during the first three weeks of July increased from 23,682 in 1970 to 33,159 last month. For the month of June, inquiries jumped from 14,302 to 17,267.

Queen's Letter Believed Lost, Says U.S. Lawyer

A missing letter from Queen Victoria to Charles Ross which has been willed to the provincial archives may never be found.

Ross built Fort Victoria in the 1840's. the letter instructs him to name it "Fort Albert."

It was willed to the archives by his great-granddaughter, Maud Wren, who died near Tacoma, Washington, 16 months ago at the age of 84.

The estate's executor, Tacoma lawyer Alan Hutchison, said today Miss Wren loaned the letter to a friend, Mrs. Edith Sokolik, who used to show it to company.

Locating the letter may be instrumental in settling a dispute about the fort's first name.

Hutchison said he thinks Mrs. Sokolik may have lost the letter, because it has not appeared in any of the materials she received on loan from Miss Wren.

He said he hopes to be able to visit Mrs. Sokolik this week in another attempt to find the document.

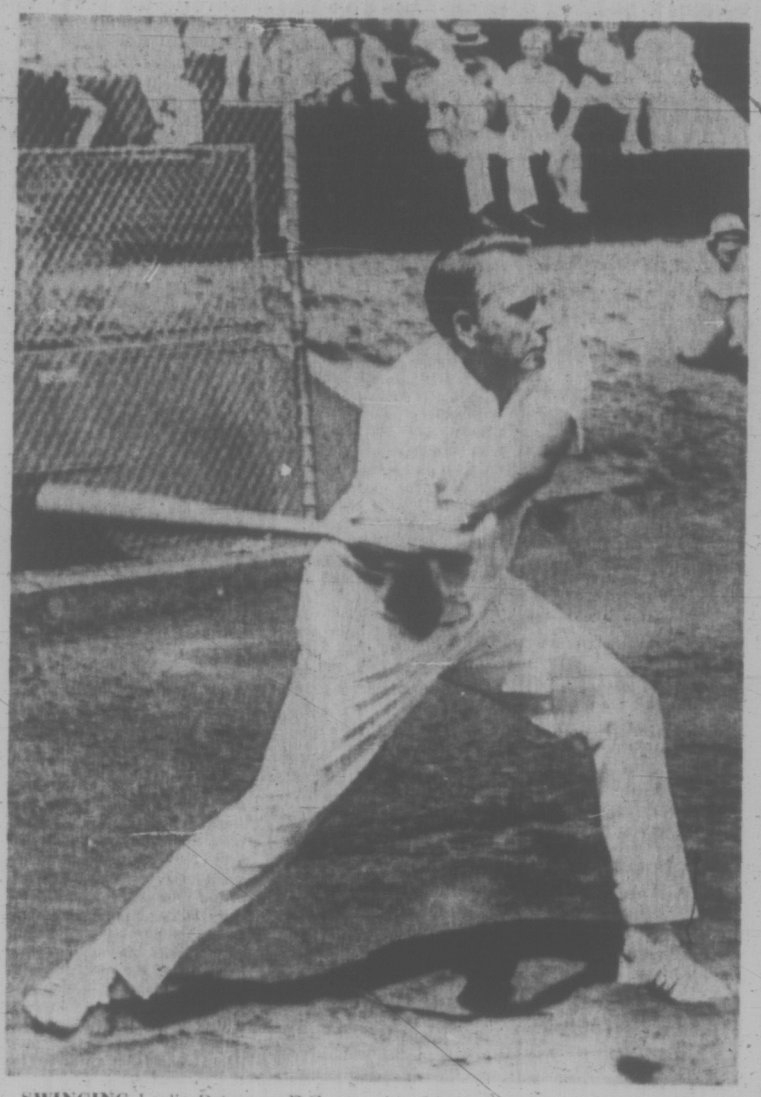
A batch of nine letters, now in the possession of the Washington State Historical Society, also has been willed to the archives. But a dispute exists over who should retain them.

'FORMAL' DEMAND

Hutchison said he will make a "formal demand" this week to the society to release these letters to the archives. They are more mundane than the missing letter from Queen Victoria, he said.

It is unlikely he will go to court to get the letters released, Hutchison said, partly because Provincial Archivist Willard Ireland has told him he (Ireland) would rather not create bad feelings between the archives and the Washington State Historical Society.

Other items including some jewelry and five letters once in Ross' possession were sent to the archives last year, Hutchison said.



SWINGING Leslie Peterson, B.C. attorney-general, shows the style that makes him one of Social Credit government's biggest sluggers. Peterson helped Social Credit MLAs hold a power-packed press team to a 7-7 softball draw Saturday morning at the party's birthday picnic at Beacon Hill Park. The press won on a coin flip after the cabinet missed its chance to win by order-in-council. (Times photo by Irving Strickland.)

Water Boards May Be Hit By Extra Tax

Water districts in Victoria and Vancouver may have to pay logging taxes.

This would involve a yearly tax of .15 per cent on profits of more than $10,000, under the provincial Logging Tax Act.

Both districts are public non-profit bodies and it had been felt unlikely that the logging tax would apply to them and no returns have been filed.

Neither Ron Upward, commissioner of the Greater Victoria Water District, nor Frank Bunnell, his counterpart at the Greater Vancouver Water District, could say what is the extent of liability.

The Vancouver water district log salvage operation has yielded about $2.2 million since it started in 1961.

Upward said he doesn't know whether the water district will have to pay logging taxes. The province was seeking the tax "and it is a matter of interpretation if we have to pay," he said.

He said there have been meetings with provincial officials and the water district has engaged a tax consultant to study the situation and the application of the logging tax.

Camosun Staff Hold Session For Orientation

The staff of Camosun College — Victoria's new regional college — met today to start month-long orientation sessions.

The college doesn't officially open its doors for about six weeks, but faculty and administrators are making preparations for the anticipated 1,300 full-time students.

Staff number about 60, with many coming from the Institute of Adult Studies, predecessor of the college.

Ask The Times

Q. Where is the thermometer in the weather office? — M.C.

A. First of all, it depends on which weather office you refer to. The weather station at Gonzales Heights is the agency the Times uses for its temperatures but other media use the weather station at the Pat Bay airport. The thermometers at Gonzales are kept in an enclosure about 30 feet away from the main building. They record the high for the day, the low, and the actual temperature at the time of the readings. A spokesman said 10-20-degree variations can occur between Gonzales and the airport.

ON DOUGLAS AT 6 A.M. ON A SUNDAY

Art's Army Wants to March

Victoria artist Glenn Howarth wants to parade some military-style sculptures on Douglas Street on a Sunday morning.

Howarth has asked city hall for a parade permit for "6 a.m. on a Sunday morning when the streets of the town are empty."

He submitted designs for three kinds of sculptures which he would lead in parade. First would be a stretched canvas banner painted to shine.

This would be pushed on a grid attached to rollers.

WHEELBARROWS

Next would come five "phallic wheelbarrows or machine-guns" followed by two "wounded limbs" attached to wheels suspended just high enough from the ground to bounce along erratically.

Howarth said he has applied to the Canada Council for $100 to help build the sculptures. Total cost should be $250, he said.

Howarth intends to paint the "machine-guns" black, perhaps decorating them with orange teeth reminiscent of Col. Claire Chennault's "Flying Tigers."

In a letter to the mayor, Howarth identifies himself as "Commander of Art's Army." The "army" is his name for his style of conceptual art.

AN IDEA

Conceptual art, explained Howarth, is more concerned with the idea of a thing, rather than the final product.

He said he wants to get artistic ideas before the public instead of keeping art inside galleries.

"Art galleries just don't move around; ideas do."

He said the only sound in the parade would be that of wheels rolling. Because the parade would be held early in the morning, he said, little traffic could be disrupted and only one police escort would be necessary.

"Other members of the local art community will be invited to design and parade their ideas. Art's army will retain the right to exclude sculpture which is frivolous and contradicts the mood of the parade — a dead-pan and business-like pushing of wheeled art.

"The military will be invited to review the procession. They will not come. Discouraged by the early hour, the general public, though invited, will not attend in large numbers.

POURING RAIN

"Hopefully on parade day it will be pouring rain."

That's what Howarth told the mayor in his letter. Permits normally are granted by the city manager. City manager Bill Hobson was in meetings all morning and could not be reached.

In support of the idea, Howarth has a letter from Colin Graham, director of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

Graham's letter to city hall reassures the mayor and aldermen that Howarth is a "thoroughly serious artist of exceptional intellectual calibre."

"While Howarth's project will doubtless have plenty of wit and humor to it, his basic purpose is a serious one, a fact attested by the circumstance that it is going to cost him a good deal more than he can readily afford."

Graham also said the parade could do no harm and should add to the liveliness of the summer civic scene here."

Howarth said he chose the army theme because he doesn't like "military pretence."

"Armies are the most frightening and surreal institutions that have ever existed," he said.

'ORANGE SUNSHINE' CAUSING BAD TRIPS

Cylindrical capsules of a drug being sold as LSD under the name Orange Sunshine may be harmful, Cool-Aid staff said today.

About six people who took the drug visited Cool-Aid over the weekend after they began to have some bad experiences while under its influence.

Staff worker Rick Stamford said today no one had to be hospitalized because of the drug, but two samples are being analyzed.

"It may not be very good. It's either very strong acid or mixed with some 'poison'," Stamford said.

Stamford was referring to the fact that drugs such as LSD frequently are mixed with other chemicals such as methamphetamine, popularly known as speed.

He said the Orange Sunshine is bright orange in color and is being given away free or being sold for between $1 and $3.

Ferry Dispute Talks Continuing Today

Talks aimed at ironing out a B.C. Ferry workers' dispute over sick leave regulations continued today.

Employees in the 1,000-member marine branch (unlicensed) of the B.C. Government Employees Union took a strike vote earlier, but business agent Norman Thornber declined to disclose the result while talks are continuing.

The union has said that the regulations lump together all seniority of all kinds and that 200 employees have been sent letters saying they could be fired if they are absent in the next six months.

Meanwhile, the marine branch and the B.C. Government Employees Union are to meet a cabinet committee Tuesday to discuss possible changes under the revamped unemployment insurance scheme.

Thornber said the marine branch is concerned that the provincial government may exercise its right under the revised federal legislation and opt out.

If this happened, about half the marine branch's members would be unprotected. They are not covered by the security clause in the contract but are covered by unemployment insurance now, he said.

"We want all ferry employees covered by unemployment insurance," he said.

Uvic Ruling Not Expected For a While

A three-man advisory board looking into the dismissal of three University of Victoria professors could take some time yet to report its findings, chairman Colin McLaurin said today.

McLaurin, and other panel members Dr. Bernard Riedel and A. B. Carruthers, concluded hearings on the cases of the three UVic teachers July 17.

First indications were that a report would be coming within a month of that date, but McLaurin said from Calgary that the panel had just received copies of the transcript of the proceedings and had not had any meetings.

McLaurin would not give an estimate of when the board's findings will be released.

The board held eight days of hearings on the UVic campus, looking into the circumstances of the non-renewal of contracts of Dr. William Goede, Dr. Tikair Jain and J. P. Graff. Also investigated was the handling of the matter by the Canadian Association of University Teachers.

Building Starts Show Decline In Saanich

Construction activity eased slightly in Saanich during July but remained ahead in the first seven months of this year.

Permits worth $1.6 million were issued last month compared with $1.7 million in the same month last year. Residential construction more than doubled, to $1 million.

Biggest permits issued in July were $252,000 for the addition to the fire-police station and $200,000 for the apartment foundation at 1900 Mayfair Drive.

Permits worth $9.3 million have been issued this year compared with $9 million in the same period last year.

New Peer Counsellor Concept Means Effective Student Aid

By BRIAN BUTTERS

An educational concept unique in Canada is being put to full use at fledgling Camosun College this summer.

The concept is peer counselling. This means that prospective students can come to the regional college for guidance in course selection, financing and other school matters. They can be counselled by members of his peer group — of the same approximate age group, financial standing and educational background.

What this amounts to is a go-between for the student seeking help and the sometimes-bewildering intricacies of a regional college bureaucracy.

The peer counsellors are four young students, all of whom had educational training at the Institute of Adult Studies, predecessor of the college.

At present the four counsellors — Marian Johnson, Barbara Leonard, Donna Steeves and Paul Bregg — deal with about 10 students a day, spending an average of half an hour with each.

A large part of their job is translating the academic credentials of prospective students into British Columbia terms, and Camosun College terms in particular.

They work in conjunction with professional counsellors on Camosun's staff and with the directors of the various disciplines at the college.

Any problems not easily solved are taken to the professionals and sometimes to the college admissions board.

What kind of job have the peer counsellors been doing? According to everyone involved with the project — an excellent one.

Respected

One professional counsellor said that without the young people, the college would have had to hire more counsellors to deal with the large number of students.

"What is amazing is the adjustment they have made," the counsellor said. "They are quick, perceptive, interested. And they are being treated with respect."

Gordon Hartley, college director of student services, calls the peer counselling project an "unqualified success."

"We are being watched with great interest by people in the province and across the country," Hartley said.

The project comes under his jurisdiction as director of student services.

"It's good for a young person to be able to encounter a member of his peer group," Hartley said.

He said, however, that the peer counsellors do not take the place of the regular professional counsellors; they assist them.

The assumption of a greater range of responsibility had evolved since the project started, he said, and commented that this is a "good thing."

But still the peer counsellors do not assume full professional responsibilities, he said.

"Apart from the counselling side of it, this is good sound public relations," Hartley said.

Bridge Gap

"The word gets around that a student is not confronted with an adult-oriented bureaucratic office. There is empathy. It is an attempt to bridge the generation gap."

College principal Dr. Grant Fisher, originator of the project, claims it's a success.

"We wanted to get people who have been directly and immediately involved in the other end of education — the process of being educated," Fisher said. "This leads to an increase in credibility.

"We wanted people who would be able to say 'I know what it's like to go back to school.'"

He said people from the same age category as the students were wanted, and that reduction of the work load of the professional counsellors was an extra feature of the program.

He outlined the peer counsellors' duties as completion of forms, determining the interests of the students and advising them of the possibilities open to them in line with the goals they had set.

"Beyond that point, students should be referred to the professional counsellors," Fisher said.

Under the Camosun scheme — a variation of which has been tried at various colleges in Canada and the U.S., but on a much smaller scale — there are different duties for different levels of counsellors.

Refer Students

The professional counsellors deal largely in personal counselling as it relates to the student's success at college.

The peer counsellors provide information to students, assist in program counselling, and refer students to the professionals for specialized advice.

Directors and chairmen of the various disciplines counsel students on vocations and study programs.

What do the peer counsellors themselves think of the job they are doing?

They enjoy it.

They are all from different walks of life, as Donna Steeves points out. She is 32 years old, has three children, and came back to school after 16 years.

Paul Bregg is 23, married with no children, and, like the other three, will take courses equivalent to second-year university.

Barbara Leonard is a 29-year-old divorcee and plans to pursue a career in education.

Marian Johnson is 27, single, came back to school after eight years. She, like Paul, holds down an outside job.

They are paid $2.20 an hour and work Monday to Friday, 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Paul adds extra hours onto his day by driving trucks at night. Somehow he sandwiches in a couple of hours sleep a day.

Starting next week, the grind gets tougher. Each peer counsellor will work two nights a week for four hours. And the work load won't lighten until September. The heavy month of August for registration and application to the college is not even upon us.

Asked about problems with the peer project, Paul said it is too early to put a finger on any faults. "Its so new to everyone involved," he said.

They Choose

"It's mainly a question of suggestion, he said. "We suggest and they choose what they want as far as a program goes. We tell them about the pre-requisites they need and the corequisites."

"Having been students, we know the courses offered here and how people might find them," he said.

He cited the example of a student who wanted to go into a technological program but didnt have the pre-requisite French course.

Paul's job was to try to arrange for the student to be able to take the French course in conjunction with the technology courses he wanted.

The four peer counsellors went through a detailed training course in June to prepare them for the type of problems they would be confronted with. They were lectured by the directors and did homework on their own.

How did they qualify to become peer counsellors? Student services director Hartley said their selection was based on maturity and their background at the Institute of Adult Studies.

They had been involved in student activities at IAS and had demonstrated that they were able to handle the responsibility of counselling their fellow students.

However, the students point out that their responsibilities have increased "snowballed," Donna says — since they began the job, so that now they are under considerably more pressure than they were originally intended to be.

Overload

Donna says the main thing she finds herself doing is trying to talk a student out of taking an overload of courses.

"Many of the people who come in are people who have been out of school for years and they want to do it all at once," she said. "I know, I was like that myself once."

"'I want everything and I want it now and I don't want to wait for it,' they'll say."

"But they can't do it all at once," she said.

Barbara said she liked the job because it meant she could come in contact with people.

"I find it interesting to deal with the cross-section of people we meet here."

She said she and the others often encounter problems with people who claim credit for courses they have never taken.

Peer counsellors Marian Johnson, Barbara Leonard, Paul Bregg and Donna Steeves talk to students.

DEAR ABBY...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You may not categorize this as a major problem, but to me, right now, it is.

Recently my husband and I bought a summer place. We wanted it mainly for our children's sake. For years we have wanted to get away from the city and relax in privacy.

Now, the problem: My sister and her husband have decided that they would like a place near us. They have seven children. They now live a few blocks from us in the suburbs. I love my family, dearly, but, Abby, not next door at all times!

I don't want to cause friction between families, but is there a way to avoid this situation? Or am I being selfish and unfair? — Can't Sign.

DEAR CAN'T: You are neither selfish nor unfair, just realistic. I agree, too much togetherness can cause any good relationship to come apart at the seams, but unless your relatives realize it (which they obviously do not) you would have to be a master diplomat to suggest it without offending them.

DEAR ABBY: I just graduated from high school and made a lot of enemies without meaning to. You see, I sent out 60 graduation announcements to let my relatives know that I was graduating. I ordered the announcements through my school like all the kids do.

Well, it seems that a lot of my relatives took the announcement to mean they were invited to my graduation exercises, which they were not because I got only four tickets, which went to my parents and one set of grandparents.

One aunt said that as long as she couldn't attend my graduation, she could have lived without the announcement. An uncle said that to him an announcement without an invitation was like saying, "send your present, but stay home," I would like your opinion. — In the Doghouse.

DEAR IN: Not everyone construes an announcement as a bid for a gift, but if your relatives do, in the future, skip the announcements.

DEAR ABBY: I am a bride and new in the office. There is an older woman over me who recently lost her husband and mother within a week.

I wanted to be extra nice to her, so as I was leaving the office I said, "Have a nice weekend."

She looked at me real funny and said, "Come here." I walked up to her and then she said, "Could YOU possibly have a nice weekend if you had lost your mother and husband within one week?" I said, "No, I guess I couldn't. I just didn't think." Then she said, "You will no doubt consider it rude of me for calling you down on your thoughtless comment, but it is time you learned to think before you speak."

What do you think of this? I even went out of my way to try to be nice to her. What shall I do? — 21 in St. Louise.

DEAR 21: I would first consider the fact that this woman had been through a very trying ordeal, and deserved to be excused for criticizing your well-meaning — however inappropriate comment. And in the future I would try to remember to think before speaking.

DEAR ABBY: Re "Fat Fanny" who can't seem to find a restaurant with chairs big enough. Don't tell her to sit in a booth. They all seem to be designed for beer bellies and expectant mothers, and we thin folks have to sit on the edge of the seats, and still we get peas in our laps. J. A. D. in La Grange, Ga.

Princess Anne Eyes Olympics

LONDON (AP) — For the moment, it looks as if horses are more important than men in Princess Anne's life.

She will be 21 Aug. 15, and is sometimes called the world's most eligible blonde. But her main aim right now is to ride in the Olympics next year.

Anne began riding at three and has loved horses ever since. For three years she has been training intensely in jumping.

Allison Oliver, her coach, comments: "Even if her name was Anne Bloggs, I would say that she is good enough to ride for Britain in top international events."

Officials say that if she is selected for Britain's equestrian team it will be on the basis of her ability, not her blue blood.

Anne lives in the goldfish bowl. British publications record her merest frown or gaffe.

The treatment can upset boy-friends. The princess went to see the musical Hair with London sugar broker Sandy Harper, 22. She made headlines by jumping on-stage to dance wit hthe cast.

Harper later dropped out of view because, friends said, of the strain of squiring a princess who is constantly under reporters' eyes.

Another friend is 32-year-old Richard Meade, an equestrian gold medallist for Britain in the 1968 Olympics.

Anne once said that she "might just fall in love at first sight."

Her aunt Princess Margaret wed photographer Tony Armstrong Jones — now Lord Snowdon — so the idea of marrying someone not of royal blood is no novelty.

But whom? Buckingham Palace will not even say whether Meade and Harper will attend a pre-birthday party tonight on the royal yacht Britannia. Anne will be throwing a dinner for 100 guests.

One betting man who knows Anne and the Royal Family observes:

"If she gets into the 1972 Olympic team, she might well be married within two years. If not, she will put aside all thought of matrimony till after the 1976 Olympics."

Women Go To Chabot

Members of the Victoria Voice of Women and the Victoria Womens' Caucus will meet Labor Minister James Chabot today to discuss the Sandringham strike in particular and issues affecting women's rights in the labor field in general.

The women have produced a four-page brief which they will present to Chabot.

The brief urges the government to act in the Sandringham strike, and also discusses such matters as minimum wage laws, domestic workers, and other "economic discrimination" against women.

Woman Plays Leading Part in Dutch Penal Revolution

By JONATHAN STEELE

LONDON — Probably only Holland is ready yet to put a woman in charge of its most dangerous and difficult people, the 70 assorted murderers, sexual offenders, and other psychopathic inmates of the Henri Van Der Heuven Clinic in Utrecht. Probably only Holland is ready yet to have as enlightened a place as this clinic anyway.

Anna-Mario Roosenburg presides over an institution in which criminals have become patients, which takes men and women together, with a staff ratio of more than one to one, and in which wards and rooms are unlocked at night.

In no country has the penal revolution gone as far as in Holland.

Professor Roosenburg, who also holds the chair of forensic psychiatry at Leyden University, is a soft-spoken, modest woman, who does have something perhaps of the stereotype of the hospital matron about her, with her hair pulled back tightly into a small black bun at the back. But she is no battleaxe. "They didn't have a man for the job," she said in an interview in England recently. "I think they would have preferred one, but I had been with the clinic since it started 16 years ago. I got the job."

She started in forensic psychiatry right after World War II and joined the staff of the country's first observation clinic when it opened in 1949. This was in the wake of a when it opened in 1949. This was in the wake of a government commission, "one of the fastest ever to report." It had been asked to look into the penal system, but "more than half of the commissioners had been in prison in the war under the Nazis." Not surprisingly their recommendations came out against making much use of prison. "They were mixed up in prison wit hordinary criminanls. They saw how helpless they were, how unchallenging prison life is, how undemanding."

Professor Roosenburg stressed that point again and again.

"Prison is easy but treatment is not easy. You know, I don't hear this view much in England, but it's true. I am not saying some people don't suffer in prison. Of course they do. But in general, prison is so small, so narrow. People lead a very egocentred life. If you go on a cruise, you know how commonplace things like meals assume an exaggerated importance in the routine.

"Prison is like that. You can spend your time daydreaming, in a fantasy world. There is no reality control."

In the Van Der Hueven Clinic the atmosphere is designed to tie in with reality. The bulk of its 70 patients are offenders who have been committed to the care of the government for an indefinite period.

Professor Roosenburg believes that her clinic's staff ratio of more than one-to-one is one of the most important parts of the clinic's work. The clinic is lucky to be in a large town and convenient for visiting. "If they reject visits from their families, we don't force them. Often their relationship with their families has been very ambivalent. They may need to get more distance fo ra time so that they can really start liking their families and not feel threatened by them. If they have no relations then we try to find local families who will form a good continuing relationship with them."

The same close integration with the town goes for staff too. Professor Roosenburg reacts strongly when you ask if their is a block of staff flats. She hates the sight of prisons with rows of staff houses alongside. They should live in the community.

The daily program in the clinic is busy. There are six groups of male patients, and one of women. Meals and social activities are taken all together. The groups are used for therapy sessions. There is trade training, and written work. Instructors run judo classes, "which are very good for people who are all aggression and poor at self-control" and mime, "an excellent training for de-personalized people.

"Basically you've got to struggle to get them out of themselves. Many are so depressed and anxious. They are people who never expect themselves to succeed. Somehow you've got to make life challenging for them, and create a situation in which they begin to wonder "Can it be true? Can I do something with my life?"

Anna-Maria Roosenburg says she has a conviction. People are not asocial because they want to be but because they cannot be social. It's an idea she finds much less well developed in Britain than in Holland. The so-called professional criminal, the man who chooses deliberately to offend, is a very rare bird if he exists at all.

"Look, we all of us know that most crimes are not found out. Between us we've all committed crimes of one kind or another. Yet people act as if there's a difference between themselves and criminals."

Not so much in Holland, it seems, where the number of people in custody overall, including those on parole was 3,260 in November last year. Holland's population is a quarter of Britain's but these figures still mean she uses custody only about a quarter as often as Britain does.

The number of women prisoners is an astonishing 25. Besides that, half the male prisoners are in for less than a month at a time, and life sentences rarely last for more than 17 years.

One reason for Holland's abhorrence of prison is the wartime experience. There is scarcely a Dutchman, Jewish or not, who did not have at least one relative imprisoned in the war, if not executed. But then the country also abolished capital punishment in the last century, and set up its first after-care association in 1823.

I've a little unfinished business to tidy up today, in connection with a recent column about Mrs. W. G. Eckman's dream of bringing English songbirds (particularly blackbirds) to this city.

Victoria's famed artist, Emily Carr, advanced the idea many years ago, and Grace Eckman thought that now it would be a fitting way to mark the centenary of Miss Carr's birth — Dec. 13, 1871.

A few nights after my column appeared Walter McKinnon, one of this newspaper's knowledgeable young reporters, had a piece on the editorial page presenting the dangers and "the potential havoc" of meddling with the envirofiment. In other words "the introduction of animals and birds to environments not natural to them."

McKinnon's points, especially the one in which he reminded us of the starling story, were good ones. So good, in tacte, I had a telephone call from Grace Eckman the following morning in which she said he was "right on every count."

Except the one in which he suggested that officials of the provincial government fish and wild life department might be "passing the old buck" or trying to "lose" her, when they suggested she get in touch with biological, health and legal branches of both federal and provincial governments.

"Not so," Mrs. Eckman insists. "There was no attempt to pass the buck. Rather, officials of the fish and wild life department, especially Ray Halliday, were most helpful."

The day after my column appeared (and before the McKinnon story hit the editorial page) Mrs. Eckman had a long talk with Mr. Halliday.

He told her very plainly that without a detailed and intensive study, it would be impossible to give anyone the go-ahead light to import English songbirds. The risk involved, especially to farms and cultivated areas, would be too great.

"It was made very clear to me," she says, "that there were no 'ifs' or 'buts' . . . the answer was 'no'."

After her phone call I too had a talk with Ray Halliday, wildfowl biologist with the provincial fish and wild life branch.

He confirmed what Grace Eckman said and he told me "we couldn't condone bringing in blackbirds on the imperfect information we have about them at the present time. There would be nothing to gain and possibly much to lose."

He then went on to substantiate much that McKinnon wrote in his article. "We've got into trouble in the past with the starlings and the sparrows," he said, "and there is no guarantee we wouldn't be in the same trouble with blackbirds."

Then Mr. Halliday added his personal belief — "why import more birds when we have so many beautiful ones here now?

"It would be more to the point — and of far more benefit — if people would encourage the protection of our birds . . . one simple way would be to provide a small treed or shrubbery corners in backyards where they could shelter and be safe."

Grace Eckman does not plan to pursue any further the idea of bringing English songbirds to Victoria.

"All I hoped to do was carry out Emily Carr's wishes," she says. Then a bit wistfully, "you can have a dream . . . but when you start to investigate you find it can turn into something entirely different."

In the background as she talked I could hear a recording of blackbird's song as she taped it on her last visit to an English country village.

NEW HEAD of extension services for the National Gallery in Ottawa, Danielle Corbeil is responsible for organizing about 20 art exhibitions a year for display across Canada. The 30-year-old woman from Montreal favors contemporary art and contemporary clothes, sometimes going to work at the gallery in a caftan.

Contemporary Canadian Art Has Girlfriend in Ottawa

By SUSAN BECKER

OTTAWA (CP) — A slim young woman in a long blue caftan and sandals dashes to a meeting in the National Art Gallery across the street from her small office, bedecked with pictures, buttons, postcards and posters.

Danielle Corbeil, new head of the gallery's extension services, outwardly appears as much a reflection of her times as the contemporary Canadian art she enthusiastically boosts.

Unpretentious and looking younger than her 30 years, she has both a degree from the University of Montreal and a masters degree in art history from the Courtauld Institute at the University of London, England.

A native of Montreal where she had worked as an education officer at the Museum of Contemporary Art, Miss Corbeil joined the extension services in 1969 as assistant director.

She says her job has enabled her really to discover Canada, including the diversity of art from coast to coast.

"I think contemporary Canadian art is tremendous," she said in an interview.

"It has freshness of approach, conviction and originality." Nor had it been snowed under by the influence of modern art trends in the United States.

"We have our own style, our own way of expressing our reality. Perhaps it's because we're not so organized here in terms of the art market. But we're very young and it has its limitations . . ."

Miss Corbeil's job is to see that interested Canadians have a chance to learn more about their country's visual art. She has visited galleries and studios and met artists in all of the provinces to get a comprehensive picture of it.

With a small staff, she must organize about 20 art exhibitions a year, with help from National Gallery curators, art experts in various regions and the extension services' liaison officers in Montreal and Vancouver.

While the extension service deals mainly with Canadian art, it also helps co-ordinate exhibitions from abroad as well as exhibitions of famous international artists from the National Gallery collection.

Exhibitions of particular interest to scholars are prepared for the increasing number of university art galleries.

Sometimes students of fine arts are involved in preparing background information for displays focused on the work of a single artist.

Some of the exhibitions are complemented by films or lectures and Miss Corbeil says that since more and more artists are working with video-tapes, she would like to see some experimental films circulated.

New Peer Counsellor Concept Means Effective Student Aid

By BRIAN BUTTERS

An educational concept unique in Canada is being put to full use at fledgling Camosun College this summer.

The concept is peer counselling. This means that prospective students can come to the regional college for guidance in course selection, financing and other school matters. They can be counselled by members of his peer group — of the same approximate age group, financial standing and educational background.

What this amounts to is a go-between for the student seeking help and the sometimes-bewildering intricacies of a regional college bureaucracy.

The peer counsellors are four young students, all of whom had educational training at the Institute of Adult Studies, predecessor of the college.

At present the four counsellors — Marian Johnson, Barbara Leonard, Donna Steeves and Paul Bregg — deal with about 10 students a day, spending an average of half an hour with each.

A large part of their job is translating the academic credentials of prospective students into British Columbia terms, and Camosun College terms in particular.

They work in conjunction with professional counsellors on Camosun's staff and with the directors of the various disciplines at the college.

Any problems not easily solved are taken to the professionals and sometimes to the college admissions board.

What kind of job have the peer counsellors been doing? According to everyone involved with the project — an excellent one.

Respected

One professional counsellor said that without the young people, the college would have had to hire more counsellors to deal with the large number of students.

"What is amazing is the adjustment they have made," the counsellor said. "They are quick, perceptive, interested. And they are being treated with respect."

Gordon Hartley, college director of student services, calls the peer counselling project an "unqualified success."

"We are being watched with great interest by people in the province and across the country," Hartley said.

The project comes under his jurisdiction as director of student services.

"It's good for a young person to be able to encounter a member of his peer group," Hartley said.

He said, however, that the peer counsellors do not take the place of the regular professional counsellors; they assist them.

The assumption of a greater range of responsibility had evolved since the project started, he said, and commented that this is a "good thing."

But still the peer counsellors do not assume full professional responsibilities, he said.

"Apart from the counselling side of it, this is good sound public relations," Hartley said.

Bridge Gap

"The word gets around that a student is not confronted with an adult-oriented bureaucratic office. There is empathy. It is an attempt to bridge the generation gap."

College principal Dr. Grant Fisher, originator of the project, claims it's a success.

"We wanted to get people who have been directly and immediately involved in the other end of education — the process of being educated," Fisher said. "This leads to an increase in credibility.

"We wanted people who would be able to say 'I know what it's like to go back to school.'"

He said people from the same age category as the students were wanted, and that reduction of the work load of the professional counsellors was an extra feature of the program.

He outlined the peer counsellors' duties as completion of forms, determining the interests of the students and advising them of the possibilities open to them in line with the goals they had set.

"Beyond that point, students should be referred to the professional counsellors," Fisher said.

Under the Camosun scheme — a variation of which has been tried at various colleges in Canada and the U.S., but on a much smaller scale — there are different duties for different levels of counsellors.

Refer Students

The professional counsellors deal largely in personal counselling as it relates to the student's success at college.

The peer counsellors provide information to students, assist in program counselling, and refer students to the professionals for specialized advice.

Directors and chairmen of the various disciplines counsel students on vocations and study programs.

What do the peer counsellors themselves think of the job they are doing?

They enjoy it.

They are all from different walks of life, as Donna Steeves points out. She is 32 years old, has three children, and came back to school after 16 years.

Paul Bregg is 23, married with no children, and, like the other three, will take courses equivalent to second-year university.

Barbara Leonard is a 29-year-old divorcee and plans to pursue a career in education.

Marian Johnson is 27, single, came back to school after eight years. She, like Paul, holds down an outside job.

They are paid $2.20 an hour and work Monday to Friday, 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Paul adds extra hours onto his day by driving trucks at night. Somehow he sandwiches in a couple of hours sleep a day.

Starting next week, the grind gets tougher. Each peer counsellor will work two nights a week for four hours. And the work load won't lighten until September. The heavy month of August for registration and application to the college is not even upon us.

Asked about problems with the peer project, Paul said it is too early to put a finger on any faults. "Its so new to everyone involved," he said.

They Choose

"It's mainly a question of suggestion," he said. "We suggest and they choose what they want as far as a program goes. We tell them about the pre-requisites they need and the corequisites.

"Having been students, we know the courses offered here and how people might find them," he said.

He cited the example of a student who wanted to go into a technological program but didnt have the pre-requisite French course.

Paul's job was to try to arrange for the student to be able to take the French course in conjunction with the technology courses he wanted.

The four peer counsellors went through a detailed training course in June to prepare them for the type of problems they would be confronted with. They were lectured by the directors and did homework on their own.

How did they qualify to become peer counsellors? Student services director Hartley said their selection was based on maturity and their background at the Institute of Adult Studies.

They had been involved in student activities at IAS and had demonstrated that they were able to handle the responsibility of counselling their fellow students.

However, the students point out that their responsibilities have increased "snowballed," Donna says — since they began the job, so that now they are under considerably more pressure than they were originally intended to be.

Overload

Donna says the main thing she finds herself doing is trying to talk a student out of taking an overload of courses.

"Many of the people who come in are people who have been out of school for years and they want to do it all at once," she said. "I know, I was like that myself once."

"I want everything and I want it now and I don't want to wait for it,' they'll say."

"But they can't do it all at once," she said.

Barbara said she liked the job because it meant she could come in contact with people.

"I find it interesting to deal with the cross-section of people we meet here."

She said she and the others often encounter problems with people who claim credit for courses they have never taken.

Peer counsellors Marian Johnson, Barbara Leonard, Paul Bregg and Donna Steeves talk to students.

DEAR ABBY...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You may not categorize this as a major problem. But to me, right now, it is.

Recently my husband and I bought a summer place. We wanted it mainly for our children's sake. For years we have wanted to get away from the city and relax in privacy.

Now, the problem: My sister and her husband have decided that they would like a place near us. They have seven children. They now live a few blocks from us in the suburbs. I love my family, dearly, but Abby, not next door at all times!

I don't want to cause friction between families, but is there a way to avoid this situation? Or am I being selfish and unfair? — Can't Sign.

DEAR CAN'T: You are neither selfish nor unfair, just realistic. I agree too much togetherness can cause any good relationship to come apart at the seams, but unless your relatives realize it (which they obviously do not) you would have to be a master diplomat to suggest it without offending them.

DEAR ABBY: I just graduated from high school and made a lot of enemies without meaning to. You see, I sent out 60 graduation announcements to let my relatives know that I was graduating. I ordered the announcements through my school like all the kids do.

Well, it seems that a lot of my relatives took the announcement to mean they were invited to my graduation exercises, which they were not because I got only four tickets, which went to my parents and one set of grandparents.

One aunt said that as long as she couldn't attend my graduation, she could have lived without the announcement. An uncle said that to him an announcement without an invitation was like saying, "send your present, but stay home," I would like your opinion. — In the Doghouse.

DEAR IN: Not everyone construes an announcement as a bid for a gift, but if your relatives do, in the future, skip the announcements.

DEAR ABBY: I am a bride and new in the office. There is an older woman over me who recently lost her husband and mother within a week.

I wanted to be extra nice to her, so as I was leaving the office I said, "Have a nice weekend."

She looked at me real funny and said, "Come here." I walked up to her and then she said, "Could YOU possibly have a nice weekend if you had lost your mother and husband within one week?" I said, "No, I guess I couldn't. I just didn't think." Then she said, "You will no doubt consider it rude of me for calling you down on your thoughtless comment, but it is time you learned to think before you speak."

What do you think of this? I even went out of my way to try to be nice to her. What shall I do? — 21 in St. Louise.

DEAR 21: I would first consider the fact that this woman had been through a very trying ordeal, and deserved to be excused for criticizing your well-meaning — however inappropriate comment. And in the future I would try to remember to think before speaking.

DEAR ABBY: Re "Fat Fanny" who can't seem to find a restaurant with chairs big enough. Don't tell her to sit in a booth. They all seem to be designed for beer bellies and expectant mothers, and we thin folks have to sit on the edge of the seats, and still we get peas in our laps. J. A. D. In La Grange, Ga.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

Princess Anne Eyes Olympics

LONDON (AP) — For the moment, it looks as if horses are more important than men in Princess Anne's life.

She will be 21 Aug. 15, and is sometimes called the world's most eligible blonde. But her main aim right now is to ride in the Olympics next year.

Anne began riding at three and has loved horses ever since. For three years she has been training intensely in jumping.

Allison Oliver, her coach, comments: "Even if her name was Anne Bloggs, I would say that she is good enough to ride for Britain in top international events."

Officials say that if she is selected for Britain's equestrian team it will be on the basis of her ability, not her blue blood.

Anne lives in the goldfish bowl. British publications record her merest frown or gaffe.

The treatment can upset boy-friends. The princess went to see the musical Hair with London sugar broker Sandy Harper, 22. She made headlines by jumping on stage to dance wit hthe cast.

Harper later dropped out of view because, friends said, of the strain of squiring a princess who is constantly under reporters' eyes.

Another friend is 32-year-old Richard Meade, an equestrian gold medallist for Britain in the 1968 Olympics.

Anne once said that she "might just fall in love at first sight."

Her aunt, Princess Margaret wed photographer Tony Armstrong Jones — now Lord Snowdon — so the idea of marrying someone not of royal blood is no novelty.

But whom? Buckingham Palace will not even say whether Meade and Harper will attend a pre-birthday party tonight on the royal yacht Britannia. Anne will be throwing a dinner for 100 guests.

One betting man who knows Anne and the Royal Family observes:

"If she gets into the 1972 Olympic team, she might well be married within two years. If not, she will put aside all thought of matrimony till after the 1976 Olympics."

Women Go To Chabot

Members of the Victoria Voice of Women and the Victoria Womens' Caucus will meet Labor Minister James Chabot today to discuss the Sandringham strike in particular and issues affecting women's rights in the labor field in general.

The women have produced a four-page brief which they will present to Chabot.

The brief urges the government to act in the Sandringham strike, and also discusses such matters as minimum wage laws, domestic workers, and other "economic discrimination" against women.

Woman Plays Leading Part in Dutch Penal Revolution

By JONATHAN STEELE

LONDON — Probably only Holland is ready yet to put a woman in charge of its most dangerous and difficult people, the 70 assorted murderers, sexual offenders, and other psychopathic inmates of the Henri Van Der Heuven Clinic in Utrecht. Probably only Holland is ready yet to have as enlightened a place as this clinic anyway.

Anna-Maria Roosenburg presides over an institution in which criminals have become patients, which takes men and women together, with a staff ratio of more than one to one, and in which wards and rooms are unlocked at night.

In no country has the penal revolution gone as far as in Holland.

Professor Roosenburg, who also holds the chair of forensic psychiatry at Leyden University, is a soft-spoken, modest woman, who does have something perhaps of the stereotype of the hospital matron about her, with her hair pulled back tightly into a small black bun at the back. But she is no battleaxe. "They didn't have a man for the job," she said in an interview in England recently. "I think they would have preferred one, but I had been with the clinic since it started 16 years ago. I got the job."

She started in forensic psychiatry right after World War II and joined the staff of the country's first observation clinic when it opened in 1949. This was in the wake of a when it opened in 1949. This was in the wake of a government commission, "one of the fastest ever to report." It had been asked to look into the penal system, but "more than half of the commissioners had been in prison in the war under the Nazis." Not surprisingly their recommendations came out against making much use of prison. "They were mixed up in prison wit hordinary criminals. They saw how helpless they were, how unchallenging prison life is, how undemanding."

Professor Roosenburg stressed that point again and again.

"Prison is easy but treatment is not easy. You know, I don't hear this view much in England, but it's true. I am not saying some people don't suffer in prison. Of course they do. But in general, prison is so small, so narrow. People lead a very egocentred life. If you go on a cruise, you know how commonplace things like meals assume an exaggerated importance in the routine.

"Prison is like that. You can spend your time, daydreaming, in a fantasy world. There is no reality control."

In the Van Der Hueven Clinic the atmosphere is designed to tie in with reality. The bulk of its 70 patients are offenders who have been committed to the care of the government for an indefinite period.

Professor Roosenburg believes that her clinic's staff ratio of more than one-to-one is one of the most important parts of the clinic's work. The clinic is lucky to be in a large town and convenient for visiting. "If they reject visits from their families, we don't force them. Often their relationship with their families has been very ambivalent. They may need to get more distance fo ra time so that they can really start liking their families and not feel threatened by them. If they have no relations then we try to find local families who will form a good continuing relationship with them."

The same close integration with the town goes for staff too. Professor Roosenburg reacts strongly when you ask if their is a block of staff flats. She hates the sight of prisons with rows of staff houses alongside. They should live in the community.

The daily program in the clinic is busy. There are six groups of male patients, and one of women. Meals and social activities are taken all together. The groups are used for therapy sessions. There is trade training, and written work. Instructors run judo classes, "which are very good for people who are all aggression and poor at self-control" and mime, "an excellent training for de-personalized people.

"Basically you've got to struggle to get them out of themselves. Many are so depressed and anxious. They are people who never expect themselves to succeed. Somehow you've got to make life challenging for them, and create a situation in which they begin to wonder "Can it be true? Can I do something with my life?"

Anna-Maria Roosenburg says she has a conviction. People are not asocial because they want to be but because they cannot be social. It's an idea she finds much less well developed in Britain than in Holland. The so-called professional criminal, the man who chooses deliberately to offend, is a very rare bird if he exists at all.

"Look, we all of us know that most crimes are not found out. Between us we've all committed crimes of one kind or another. Yet people act as if there's a difference between themselves and criminals."

Not so much in Holland, it seems, where the number of people in custody, overall, including those on parole was 3,260 in November last year. Holland's population is a quarter of Britain's but these figures still mean she uses custody only about a quarter as often as Britain does.

The number of women prisoners is an astonishing 25. Besides that, half the male prisoners are in for less than a month at a time, and life sentences rarely last for more than 17 years.

One reason for Holland's abhorrence of prison is the wartime experience. There is scarcely a Dutchman, Jewish or not, who did not have at least one relative imprisoned in the war, if not executed. But then the country also abolished capital punishment in the last century, and set up its first after-care association in 1823.

I've a little unfinished business to tidy up today, in connection with a recent column about Mrs. W. G. Eckman's dream of bringing English songbirds (particularly blackbirds) to this city.

Victoria's famed artist, Emily Carr, advanced the idea many years ago, and Grace Eckman thought that now it would be a fitting way to mark the centenary of Miss Carr's birth — Dec. 13, 1871.

A few nights after my column appeared Walter McKinnon, one of this newspaper's knowledgeable young reporters, had a piece on the editorial page presenting the dangers and "the potential havoc" of meddling with the environment. In other words "the introduction of animals and birds to environments not natural to them."

McKinnon's points, especially the one in which he reminded us of the starling story, were good ones. So good, in fact, I had a telephone call from Grace Eckman the following morning in which she said he was "right on every count."

Except the one in which he suggested that officials of the provincial government fish and wild life department might be "passing the old buck" or trying to "lose" her, when they suggested she get in touch with biological, health and legal branches of both federal and provincial governments.

"Not so," Mrs. Eckman insists. "There was no attempt to pass the buck. Rather, officials of the fish and wild life department, especially Ray Halliday, were most helpful."

The day after my column appeared (and before the McKinnon story hit the editorial page) Mrs. Eckman had a long talk with Mr. Halliday.

He told her very plainly that without a detailed and intensive study it would be impossible to give anyone the go-ahead light to import English songbirds. The risk involved, especially to farms and cultivated areas, would be too great.

"It was made very clear to me," she says, "that there were no ifs or buts . . . the answer was 'no'."

After her phone call I too, had a talk with Ray Halliday, wildfowl biologist with the provincial fish and wild life branch.

He confirmed what Grace Eckman said and she told me "we couldn't condone bringing in blackbirds on the imperfect information we have about them at the present time. There would be nothing to gain and possibly much to lose."

He then went on to substantiate much that McKinnon wrote in his article. "We've got into trouble in the past with the starlings and the sparrows," he said, "and there is no guarantee we wouldn't be in the same trouble with blackbirds."

Then Mr. Halliday added his personal belief — "why import more birds when we have so many beautiful ones here now?

"It would be more to the point . . . and of far more benefit . . . if people would encourage the protection of our birds . . . one simple way would be to provide a small treed or shrubbery corners in backyards where they could shelter and be safe."

Grace Eckman does not plan to pursue any further the idea of bringing English songbirds to Victoria.

"All I hoped to do was carry out Emily Carr's wishes," she says. Then a bit wistfully, "you can have a dream . . . but when you start to investigate you find it can turn into something entirely different."

In the background as she talked I could hear a recording of blackbird's song as she taped it on her last visit to an English country village.

NEW HEAD of extension services for the National Gallery in Ottawa, Danielle Corbeil is responsible for organizing about 20 art exhibitions a year for display across Canada. The 30-year-old woman from Montreal favors contemporary art and contemporary clothes, sometimes going to work at the gallery in a caftan.

Contemporary Canadian Art Has Girlfriend in Ottawa

By SUSAN BECKER

OTTAWA (CP) — A slim young woman in a long blue caftan and sandals dashes to a meeting in the National Art Gallery across the street from her small office, bedecked with pictures, buttons, postcards and posters.

Danielle Corbeil, new head of the gallery's extension services, outwardly appears as much a reflection of her times as the contemporary Canadian art she enthusiastically boosts.

Unpretentious and looking younger than her 30 years, she has both a degree from the University of Montreal and a master's degree in art history from the Courtauld Institute at the University of London, England.

A native of Montreal where she had worked as an education officer at the Museum of Contemporary Art, Miss Corbeil joined the extension services in 1968 as assistant director.

She says her job has enabled her really to discover Canada, including the diversity of art from coast to coast.

"I think contemporary Canadian art is tremendous," she said in an interview.

"It has freshness of approach, conviction and originality." Nor had it been snowed under by the influence of modern art trends in the United States.

"We have our own style, our own way of expressing our reality. Perhaps it's because we're not so organized here in terms of the art market. But we're very young and it has its limitations . . ."

Miss Corbeil's job is to see that interested Canadians have a chance to learn more about their country's visual art. She has visited galleries and studios and met artists in all of the provinces to get a comprehensive picture of it.

With a small staff, she must organize about 20 art exhibitions a year, with help from National Gallery curators, art experts in various regions and the extension services' liaison officers in Montreal and Vancouver.

While the extension service deals mainly with Canadian art, it also helps co-ordinate exhibitions from abroad as well as exhibitions of famous international artists from the National Gallery collection.

Exhibitions of particular interest to scholars are prepared for the increasing number of university art galleries.

Sometimes students of fine arts are involved in preparing background information for displays focused on the work of a single artist.

Some of the exhibitions are complemented by films or lectures and Miss Corbeil says that since more and more artists are working with video-tapes, she would like to see some experimental films circulated.

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.

He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me: thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

APOLLO 15. Regular programming may be pre-empted through the evening to allow the special reports on the progress of Apollo 15 on its return from the moon.

DIANNE HEATHERINGTON. 7:30 p.m., Channel 2. Dianne's guest tonight are the Contemporary Dancers, who perform to selection from West Side Story. Dianne sings She's Leaving Home, Let It Be and Toast and Marmalade.

GUNSMOKE. 7:3 p.m., Channel 7 (RERUN). "The Hide Cutters" Joe Campanella guests in this repeat episode. Festus is injured in an avalanche while on a hunting trip. Marshall Dillon, along on the trip, seeks assistance in taking his injured companion back to Dodge City and runs into an unfriendly trail boss.

FROM A BIRD'S EYE VIEW. 7:30 p.m., Channel 5 (RERUN). Sometimes, being the kind-hearted soul doesn't pay off. Millie (Millicent Martin) feels sorry for a young honeymooning couple who can't find a hotel room in crowded Rome. So she gives up her room, and she sleeps on a park bench. When Millie's boss shows up at her room, the young husband answers the door knock.

NBC COMEDY THEATRE. 8 p.m., Channel 5 (RERUN). "The Fat Outlaw," a spoof of horse operas co-starring Don Knotts and Arthur Godfrey. Knotts is the Curly Kid and Godfrey the sheriff. Knotts wants to be a desperado, so he prints up his own "Wanted" posters. Then he breaks the law in his own little way, and each time he does, something goes right instead of wrong and poor Don just can't get himself arrested. It was written by Hal Kanter, which is a big plus.

PAN-AMERICAN. 8:30 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. Highlights of today's activities include track and field events, weightlifting and gymnastics. The games are being held in Cali, Colombia and Ted Reynolds, Don Wittman and Ernie Afaganis report.

NBC MONDAY NIGHT AT THE MOVIES. 9 p.m., Channel 5 (RERUN). "The Producers." This wacky film won an Academy Award for best screenplay for Mel Brooks, who also directed it. Zero Mostel plays a top Broadway producer. His accountant, played by Gene Wilder, mentions that he can make more money mounting a flop play, and the scheming producer searches for the worst play he can find. He finds one written by Nazi-sympathizing, guitar-playing hippie Lorenzo St. DuBois (Dick Shawn) called "Springtime for Hitler" and makes the deal. He raises three times the money needed, then runs into a mountainous headache: the play becomes a success when opening-night audience thinks it's campy.

MOVIE OF THE WEEK. 9 p.m., Channel 4 (RERUN). "Georgy Girl." A delightful British comedy, co-starring Lynn Redgrave as a clumsy, unattractive but full-of-life young girl, and James Mason as a leacherous middle-aged married man who seeks her as his mistress. Chrlotte Rampling is excellent as Lynn's bitchy roommate. When the picture was made in 1966, it was considered a breakthrough for new permissiveness, but in retrospect it is now considered sophisticated comedy.

REALITIES. 9 p.m., Channel 9. The Quiet Invasion is a revealing look at 15,000,000 Chinese living outside the mainland in Southeast Asia and their problems in attempts to integrate. Their drive, ambition, plus the will to retain their own culture has created jealousies and created obstacles and hostilities with other nationals.

Ancient Skull Found

By BENOIT HOULE

PARIS (CP) — The recent discovery of a skull in a cave in the south of France may help to fill in a gap of 200,000 years of human history.

The skull was discovered near Teutavel in southern France by Prof. Henri de Lumley of Marseilles with the French National Scientific Research Council.

Archeologists at the site said the skull still contained its large teeth and was surrounded by primitive instruments which will be useful in accurately dating the find.

The skull will be studied over a period of months to discover if it did in fact belong to an ancestor of Neanderthal and therefore modern man.

The stages of development between homo sapiens, or modern man (35,000 years old) and Neanderthal man, (100,000 years old) are obscure and another gap of 200,000 years exists between Neanderthal man and his ancestors.

BONES FOUND

Two jawbones discovered at Larago near Perpignan in France's eastern Pyrenees in 1969 and 1970 contained large teeth similar to those found in the skull discovered by Prof. de Lumley.

After amateur diggers found primitive implements near Perpignan, workers began to carry off the plowed topsoil in the area around the find in 1965. In 1968, they began looking at what lay underneath.

Since then during each July, 45 archeologists have worked near the site and have found a variety of bones in a cave, including the two skull fragments discovered in 1969 and 1970.

The first discovery of prehistoric man in southern France was made in a cave near Lazaret, where archeologists found the well-preserved remains of a 30-foot long cabin where hunters spent the winter 130,000 years ago.

LIGHTNING SPARKS ISLAND FOREST FIRES

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP) — Lightning during an electrical storm caused 14 small spot fires in the Buttle Lake area Saturday, a B.C. Forest Service spokesman said.

Two fires were under control, but crews had not reached the other 12 fires. A water bomber was used to help put out one fire and power to the towns of Tahsis and Gold River was turned off for about 45 minutes to allow the water bombing, the spokesman said.

Donohue's Victory Boosts Javelin Lead

MONT TREMBLANT, Que. (CP) — Mark Donohue drove his Javelin to a fifth Trans-Am sedan race victory Sunday to maintain American Motors' domination after seven events in this year's series.

He had a lead of more than a minute over second-place George Follmer in a Mustang.

In third place was another Bud Moore-prepared Mustang driven by Follmer's teammate Peger Gregg of Jacksonville, Fla.

Although Donohue had few problems on the track, the Roger Penske crew, usually noted for their fast, efficient pit work, made a few miscues which cost their driver valuable seconds.

In his first stop, the gas cap wasn't tightened properly and Donohue was black-flagged into a second stop to have it fixed.

During another stop later, an air hose connection came loose and Donohue tried to go before the wheels were tightened. The car had to be jacked up again before it could move.

During this time, Donohue lost the lead to Follmer but regained it four laps later when the Californian had to make his second pit stop required by race rules.

"I've made a few mistakes in my time in racing," Donohue laughed. "I guess the crew are entitled to theirs."

The win gave Javelin 55 points so far in the 11-race series, nine ahead of Mustang. Points are awarded to the make of car finishing highest.

REASON FOURTH

Peter Revson of New York City in a privately-sponsored Javelin, finished a lap behind the leaders in fourth place.

Before the Judge

A 26-year-old transient out "to see the country" was fined $100 for shoplifting Saturday in Victoria Provincial Court.

David J. Dowdell, who said his home is Sudbury, Ont., told the court he was hitchhiking his way across Canada.

Court was told he took a roll of film from Shopper's Drug Mart, 1302 Douglas, without paying. Value of the film was $2.15. Dowdell had $2.12 on him when apprehended.

Offshore Rights Plan Hinted

LOUISBOURG, N.S. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said today new proposals for sharing offshore mineral royalties will be made when federal Energy Minister J. J. Greene meets this week with Premier Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia.

The prime minister told a news conference at the partly restored French fortress of Louisbourg that constitutionally the rights to offshore minerals belong to the federal government.

(See earlier story on Page 6.)

This had been settled three years ago when the Supreme Court of Canada ruled in favor of the federal government in a dispute with British Columbia, Mr. Trudeau said.

"That's not negotiable," he said. But he added that "there may" be room for discussion of administrative arrangements."

Premier Regan has maintained that the offshore rights belong solely to the province. But the prime minister said Mr. Regan might be prepared to listen to new proposals from the energy minister.

Barrett Hits B.C. Tel Toll

COQUITLAM (CP) — A decision by the Canadian Transport Commission to allow the B.C. Telephone Co. to collect 25 cents for providing the time and charges on long distance calls was described Saturday as "absurd."

Dave Barrett, B.C. NDP leader, also suggested the continuation of a surcharge on subscribers in his riding 15 miles from Vancouver should have been abolished.

Barrett was commenting on the CTC's decision, released Friday to allow B.C. Tel rate increases amounting to $9.4 million.

RCMP Officers Threatened

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Gordon Traff, 32, of Prince Goerge, was charged Saturday with possession of an offensive weapon and threatening to cause death after two RCMP constables were held at knifepoint for more than an hour.

APOLOGIES, RESIGNATIONS FOLLOW CRASH

TOKYO (Reuter) — Naomi Nishimura, 65, was appointed Japanese defence minister today replacing Keikichi Mashuhara who resigned following an air disaster Friday involving a military aircraft.

The crash between a Japanese jet fighter and airliner caused 162 deaths, the world's worst air disaster. Mashuhara, 68, submitted his resignation to Premier Eisaku Sato.

Gen. Yashuhiro Ueda, chief of staff of the air self-defence force, also submitted his resignation.

The chief of staff joined two other air force generals on Saturday to kneel in public apology before relatives of the victims of the crash.

They made the gesture, a traditional practice in Japan, in a coffin-lined schoolroom at Shizkuishi which was being used as a temporary mortuary for the collision victims.

Crowds of relatives became angry when the generals entered without removing their shoes. The three senior officers, along with three aides, knelt on the floor, bowed deeply and said "We don't know how to apologize."

'Fighting Priest' Of S. Africa Before Courts

PRETORIA (Reuter) — The Anglican dean of Johannesburg, Very Rev. Gonville ffrench-Beytagh, pleaded not guilty today to charges under the South African terrorism act.

The dean entered his plea in Pretoria Supreme Court. He faces a 38-page indictment accusing him of plotting the violent overthrow of the government.

British and U.S. consular officials were among onlookers crowding into the courtroom. The dean is a British subject.

As the trial of the 59-year-old dean began, another Supreme Court hearing was scheduled to start today in the eastern city of Pietermaritzburg, where 13 non-whites including nine Africans, two Indians and two coloreds (mixed race) also face a long list of charges alleging they plotted to overthrow the government.

The secretary-general of the Anglican Consultative Council, Bishop J. W. A. Howe, arrived in Johannesburg Sunday. He said: "I am here mainly to express the sympathy and concern of responsible people outside South Africa."

At Pietermaritzburg, the trial was adjourned until Aug. 16. Originally 14 men were accused but charges against one were dropped. However, he was held pending further investigations.

The dean, popularly known as "Fighting priest" for his outspoken views against apartheid, is being tried before Transvaal province's senior justice, Judge Petrus Cillie. As is often the case in South Africa, the judge will sit alone without a jury.

Main points of the charges against the dean are that he encouraged political, economic and social changes by violent means and distributed pamphlets concerning banned organizations which advocated violent revolt. The charges also say he raised money in England last year for guerrilla fighters in the Portuguese territory of Mozambique, and distributed funds from the banned Defence and Aid organization in London to proscribed people and organizations in South Africa.

The dean's alleged actions overseas can be included in the charges because South Africa's sweeping Terrorism Act, under which he is charged, bans terrorist activities against the state either in South Africa or elsewhere.

CHICAGO — Comedian Dick Gregory, down to 102 pounds, says he will fast "for 10 years if necessary" but will not eat solid food until the war in Southeast Asia comes to an end. Gregory marked the 100th day of his fast Sunday by running 15 miles in a South Side park. He began the all-liquid diet in April when he weighed 160 pounds.

SLOUGH, England — This town's first Miss Black and Beautiful contest ended in dissention when the losing lovelies raised the issue of color. Winner, Miss Armit Chawla, they claimed, wasn't black enough.

"She may be beautiful but she, ain't black," complained West Indian contestant Gloria Thompson of the 19-year-old light-brown Asian born in Kenya. Vibert Scrubb, organizer of the contest, said if he had restricted it to West Indians he would have been in trouble with the Race Relations Board.

WINSTED, Conn. — The business card of Carl C. Cranmer of Sandisfield, Mass., boasts that he has no business.

When he delivered a new release to the Winsted Evening Citizen last week, the engraved card he also left said under his name: "No Business — retired." And in the four corners of the card Cranmer bragged: "No Phone, No Mortgage, No Money, No Worry."

MONTREAL — More than 3,000 Montrealers were on hand at Man and His World Saturday night to help Paul Anka celebrate his 30th birthday.

Accompanied by a good-sized orchestra as well as his own five back-up musicians, Anka sag his old hit Diana, the song that sold eight million 15 years ago and made the kid from Ottawa a teen-age idol.

BELGRADE — Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor had lunch Saturday with President Tito and his wife on Brioni, the Yugoslav leader's secluded vacation island.

Burton said later that Tito gave him some valuable suggestions for the role he will play in Sutjeska, a film in which he will portray Tito as a partisan leader against Nazi Germay. Orson Welles has been cast to play Winston Churchill.

SEATTLE — Sharon Jean De Muth, Miss Skunk Bay, didn't get to be Seafair Queen.

"I knew I wasn't going to win," she said. "But I think I enjoyed myself more than any of the other girls in the contest."

Miss De Muth, sponsored by the Skunk Bay Lighthouse Association, showed up at a reception for Seafair Princesses wearing a mohair suit, hiking boots, wool sox and a bowler hat. She said she didn't own a white formal, which is what the other princesses wore.

UTICA, N.Y. — Officials of the Utica Free Academy have admitted that a monetary award has been presented each year for the last 14 years to the student who graduates with the lowest final average.

The award was set up under the estate of the late Clifford H. Cono, a retired Utica police sergeant who once graduated from the academy with just the sort of average called for.

The award is presented quietly each year in the principal's office. Trustee for the $2,000 fund from which the anual award is drawn is Oneida National Bank. The bank won't say how much the award is, and school officials are reluctant to discuss it.

"We don't want everyone vying for it," explains an academy spokesman.

Major Sewer Extension Before Saanich Council

Saanich council will consider and possibly make a decision tonight on a major extension of the sewer area.

Involved is the Royal Oak district, which was not included in the sewerage expansion plans mapped out in 1968.

At that time, plans were made and work now is in progress sewering 3,400 acres equivalent to three-quarters of the size of Victoria city immediately adjacent to the existing sewered area.

Since then, council has stuck firmly to the boundary lines except for minor adjudgments.

REPORT SLATED

Municipal administrator John Tribe is to present a report at tonight's council meeting, which he said covers the administrative aspects of any changes.

Any decision to expand the sewer area, or stay within the present boundaries, would be a policy decision of council itself.

The area to be sewered under present plans stops just south of Royal Oak.

It does not include the 713-acre Broadmead housing estate and its $13.1 million regional shopping centre, destined for the east side of Patricia Bay Highway, nor the existing commercial areas of Royal Oak nor the site of a planned $10 million shopping centre at Glanford Avenue and Patricia Bay Highway.

Council and its public works committee have discussed several times the question of sewer expansion in this area, which is the key to a number of future developments.

In the recently-issued Residential Development Study, the planning department said the existing sewer program covers sufficient land for about 27,000 people or 12 to 15 years' population growth.

PRIORITY SUGGESTED

The report said "considerable existing development" in the Cordova Bay area and "commitments by way of established development" at Broadmead suggest a priority to extend the sewer system in that direction.

"Such an extension would add a considerable quantity of undeveloped land to our supply and would be undertaken when considered feasible by council," the report said.

"In view of the large supply of land within the sewer enterprise, a decision to expand will be a major one which should not be taken prematurely."

Veterans Get Break

VANCOUVER (CP) — Agreement has been reached between the British Columbia Professional Pharmacists Society and the department of veterans affairs to allow veterans to have their doctor's prescriptions filled at any pharmacy rather than at veteran's hospitals only.

Hit-Run Inquest Set

An inquest into the death of a 61-year-old hit-and-run victim will start at 7:30 p.m., Aug. 3 at Thomson and Irving funeral chapel, 1625 Quadra.

Alfred Nelson Cull, 3933 Winton, died Friday in Royal Jubilee Hospital. He had been in poor condition since he was admitted to hospital in early July.

He was knocked down by a car while he was walking across the street at Johnson and Broad July 2.

GUILTY PLEA

Frank Alexander Nosek, 2130 Bradford, was taken into custody shortly after the accident and later pleaded guilty to failing to remain at the scene of an accident and refusing to take a breathalyzer test.

He was fined a total of $500 and prohibited from driving for nine months.

Cull is survived by his wife, Jane, and daughters, Mrs. Judith Anne Crawford of Vancouver and Mary Jane Cull of Vernon. He is also survived by his mother Mrs. F. J. Cull of Vernon, a brother Ronald of Vernon and two sisters Eva Nye of Kamloops and Mildred Sowerley of Vernon.

Funeral services will be Friday, 1 p.m., at St. Peter's Anglican Church in Saanich with Rev. E. W. S. Gilbert officiating.

Brother, Sister Act

NANAIMO (CP) — Frank Dudley, 14, won the 12th Annual Nanaimo Harbor Swim Sunday, beating 39 other starters. His sister, Diane, was second. Dudley covered the 1¼-mile stretch in 26 minutes, well short of the 21½-minute record set in 1967 by Jack Godwin of Courtenay.

HOME GARDEN

Enjoyment With Little Labor

By HILDA BEASTALL

Another candidate has turned up for the permanent garden of more enjoyment with less labor. This time its a really controversial entry risking rejection without a trial by some gardeners. Here in the offering of Hemerocallis, the Day-lily, with hundreds of named varieties listed in catalogs of specialist suppliers.

Hilda

Before you yell me down by saying the flowers are over in a day, I will give the number of buds on a single stem of a few varieties now blooming: 21 on August Pioneer, small flowered; 13 on Bicolor, medium size; 10 on Painted Lady, an enormous flower.

Plants bearing these sample stems were put into well prepared clay loam in the late spring of 1963. During the eight years they have not been lifted, though others around them have.

Single crown divisions at planting time resulted in a couple of flowering stems the following summer, until now I count 16, 10 and eight stems on the varieties named.

Usually two flowers are open on each stem, making a good showing every day for a varying number of days.

The plants are in full sunshine all day, yet have been watered only twice each summer after the first two seasons.

This year, only one soaking of three hours was given in mid July, so another will be needed in August.

Not all varieties among the original 35 have continued to bloom each year without attention.

Certain ones are outstanding and these are the ones I feel are worthy of a place in the easy-care garden.

A mulch of old manure or compost each spring and more water would result in larger plants and more flowers.

A favorite for performance, endurance and beauty is Painted Lady, an enormous bloom of richly blended orange and chrome.

Entirely different is Bicolor, a medium size flower of clear yellow and dark crimson. The alternate colors are on the three petals and the three sepals, giving a clean fresh look.

A plant which shows its large blooms to advantage if grown in dappled sun and shade is Honey Redhead, a flower well described by its name — a red toned down with light brown.

Daylilies have light green, strap-shaped leaves, pleasant in a shrub border from early spring until late fall.

So long as flower stems are cut off when all the buds have finished blooming, no other work needs doing until later.

When leaves become quite brown, half their height can be cut back; allow the rest to remain as protecting during winter.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

Contract bridge cannot be learned by applying a specific rule to each different situation: if it could, anyone with a retentive memory would be able to become a great bridge player. However, bridge is not a mechanical game, and the true test of a good bridge player is his flexibility and not his ability to memorize rules and regulations. Today's deal is a case in point.

Opening lead: King of ♡.

Had this deal arisen in an average game, I imagine that on West's opening lead of the heart king, East would have signaled for a continuation of the heart suit by playing the eight-spot. West would then have continued with a heart, South ruffing. It would now be a routine matter for declarer to draw trumps and to cash five diamonds. Thus he would fulfill his contract.

But our East defender was a good player. He had heard his partner make an overcall at the one level. And he had heard him rebid his heart suit at the three level, vulnerable, missing the ace and jack. So East concluded that West almost surely possessed a six-card heart suit.

Thus if West were permitted to continue playing hearts at trick two, South stood to ruff. And if this happened, declarer would be in control of the situation.

So East, at trick one, overtook West's king of hearts with his ace, and returned the deuce of clubs. As East viewed the set-up, the defenders' sole hope of defeating South's contract rested in their ability to cash at least two club tricks. South put up the club ten, and West captured the trick with the queen. West next cashed the ace of clubs. He then paused for reflection.

The question in West's mind was whether he should now play his remaining club, hoping that East possessed the king; or whether, instead, he should attempt to cash the queen of hearts, hoping that South had started with a doubleton heart.

He resolved his problem correctly by leading the club, which East won with the king, for the setting trick. His reason for the club continuation was that if East had possessed the tripleton A-x-x or A-J-x of hearts, the latter would not have been in such a hurry to overtake West's initial heart lead. And so West concluded that East had been dealt four hearts.

Ambulance men assist injured man in Saturday car crash in Central Saanich

Weekend Accident Toll Mounts

Traffic accidents continued to pose a problem to area police forces in Victoria, in British Columbia and across the country this weekend.

In Victoria, amputation of a 17-year-old man's left forearm was the result of a Saturday morning car crash.

Joseph Harper, 618 Wilson, was identified by police as a passenger in the car driven by Kim Harper, 18, 508 Constance, and was listed in fair condition this morning at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Police said the car struck a parked car, a utility pole and finally a concrete block wall in the 600-block Wilson.

The younger Harper was listed in satisfactory condition with multiple bruises and possible back injuries.

The two men were apparently thrown out of the car after it hit the pole and before it struck the wall.

Central Saanich police reported a two-car accident which caused about $2,000 damage Saturday at Patricia Bay Highway and Island View Road.

The two drivers and a passenger were treated and released from St. Joseph's Hospital.

Drivers were Anne Foerster, 1459 Mt. Newton Cross Road, and George McBratney, 1305 Bond. McBratney's wife, Ireta, was also treated.

Two accidents causing injuries were reported by Saanich police. One occurred at Saanich Road and McKenzie, causing injuries to five people, at 5:53 p.m. Saturday.

The other was at 949 Nicholson, and also injured five people, police said. It occurred at 12:48 a.m., Sunday. All injuries in the two accidents were apparently minor.

Traffic accidents accounted for eight of the nine fatalities in British Columbia over the weekend. Four of the eight occurred on the lower mainland.

Lily Davis, 55, of Ladysmith, died Sunday after a two-car head-on collision south of Nanaimo.

Nationally, 61 people met their deaths on the highways this weekend. That brings the year's total to 1,857 since Jan. 1, including 44 last week.

Forty-five of the traffic deaths occurred in Ontario and Quebec.

Saanichton 4-H Rally Winners PNE-Bound

Rally Day for 4-H members at Saanichton fairgrounds on Saturday was a successful experiment.

Youngsters who achieved top marks will participate in competition at the Pacific National Exhibition in Vancouver and 4-H Beef Club members will for the first time be able to sell their livestock entries there.

"This means that our club will not enter their animals in the Saanichton Fair," said Doll O'Reilly, Saanich Peninsual Beef Club leader. But prices are good on the mainland and the members save money with a one-way transportation ticket for their animals.

A full day of competition for the Beef Club and members of North and South Saanich Home Arts kept judges Ernie Houghton, Maureen Logan, Maureen Hode and others busy.

Top marks went to John Speller, 4065 Braefoot, Saanich, who won the reserve championship in the showmanship class and whose steer became over-all grand champion.

Another Beef Club member, Margaret Speller, was named Angus Queen.

Reserve champion steer was raised by Robbie Calman, 16, and the same title in the heifer division was won by Sandra Swan, 14. Grand champion heifer was won by Monte Brooks, 13.

Showmanship honors went to Gary Callander, 19, and the highest weight gain ribbon went to the animal entered by Violet Bartlett.

Home arts division winners included dressmakers Joan Lord, Cathy Simmonds and Eileen Myer who will represent their Peninsula Clubs at the P.N.E.

Also gaining top marks were Jeanette Edwards, junior food posters; Pip Lawrence, junior baking; Jerri Lord, junior garments; Cathy Williams, junior foods and dress revue; Carol Dunlop, senior foods and dress revue, and Thelma Simmonds, junior dressmaking.

... Ends Wage Laws

THE HAGUE (AP) — Premier Barend Biesheuvel announced Friday an end to the Dutch government's unpopular regulation of wages. The restrictions, introduced last year by the previous government, included a temporary salary freeze that enabled the government to postpone automatic pay increases arising from higher living costs.

Pilot Survives 38-Day Ordeal In Wilderness

YAKUTAT, Alaska (AP) — A young man who survived a plane crash and existed for 38 days on a diet of water and roots in rugged Yukon territory was rescued Sunday after a stamped-out SOS was spotted by a bush pilot.

Gary Anderson, 23, of Bellevue, Wash., said Sunday: "I feel great . . . but I'm still a little dingy. I haven't recovered from the emotional experience."

Anderson told reporters his father, Kenneth Ward Anderson, 55, also survived the plane crash and may yet be alive. The coast guard rescue co-ordination centre at Juneau said Canadian forces would reopen their search for the elder Anderson today.

DISTRESS SIGNAL

Gary Anderson was picked up Sunday when the distress signal was spotted by pilot Okla Duffie about 65 miles west of Haines, Alaska.

The pilot said he walked for three days after the plane crashed and remained at the sandbar for 35 days. "It was the only place I knew where a plane could land."

He said he never gave up hope of being rescued. "Three things kept me alive: going downriver, discovering an abandoned hunting camp and seeing planes fly over."

The hunting camp, he said, provided him with a "couple of handfuls of potato peels and a small portion of dried scrambled eggs. I dusted them off and spread them out as long as I could."

Anderson said debris around the hunting camp provided him with material which helped him survive. He lost 60 pounds and weighed 130 when rescued.

FOUND SCOTCH

"I also found some scotch in a bottle and dribbled it on my tongue . . . just the taste was enough to remind me of civilization."

Two other empty scotch bottles were used as water bottles, Anderson said.

He said his first meal after reaching Yakutat was a bowl of bacon and bean soup. "That filled me up."

The Andersons' Stinson float plane crashed June 24 after bad weather forced the plane down on the Alsek river. Anderson told rescuers neither he nor his father was injured in the crash, but both were thrown into the water.

He said his father, whom he described as being in good physical condition, was wearing a life jacket as he was swept down the swift river, past the younger Anderson. Gary later found the plane wreckage but did not see his father again.

Side-guard door beams. And it's the roomiest car on the road. It's a lot of Impala at a lot of savings!

YES Super savings on the Super Hugger Camaro.

The four seater sports car. Great for the man with an urge to move, and a small family, too. Rides close to the ground on a neat 108-inch wheelbase. Features a choice of a V8 or 6 cylinder engine; front disc brakes; front coil suspension. Get one while they're hot!

Your Chevrolet dealer's saying YES to some very good deals. See him right now.

We're bringing back that good old summertime air, too.

Happily, things are looking up in the battle against air pollution. Because, fortunately, a lot has been done by Chevrolet in the past 10 years to check pollution caused by our cars. In the early 1960's we began installing emission controls on our engines. And now every 1971 Chevrolet is equipped to reduce hydrocarbon output by 80% and carbon monoxide emissions by about two-thirds.

You can help, too. Keep your car tuned and those pollution controls checked regularly.

Let that sun shine in.

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary William P. Rogers announced today that the United States will favor seating of Red China at the United Nations General Assembly this fall and will oppose any move to oust the Chinese Nationalists.

"We think the realities of the world require that both be represented" in the world body, Rogers said in issuing a long-awaited Nixon administration announcement.

He noted that Communist China has some 700 million people and Nationalist China some 14 million.

He said of the Peking regime: "After all they represent about one-fourth of the people on the surface of the earth."

"United States accordingly will support action at the General Assembly this fall calling for seating the People's Republic of China," Rogers said. "At the same time the United States will oppose any action to expel the Republic of China or otherwise deprive it of representation in the United Nations."

The Rogers announcement market a historic switch from U.S. efforts over the previous years to prevent Peking's entry into the United Nations.

In Taipei, Nationalist China tacitely accepted the new U.S. position apparently in a turnabout intended to keep maximum flexibility for a fight to save its own seat in the world body.

A foreign ministry statement did not mention directly the U.S. change of policy but it did call for its rejection of a Communist-sponsored move to expel Taipei and seat Peking in the United Nations.

The statement, issued just after Rogers spoke in Washington, stressed Nationalist China's right to remain in the United Nations.

The state secretary left ambiguous just what position Washington would take about Communist China s replacing the Nationalists on the impartant UN Security Council. He said, however, that the United States is prepared to have this question resolved by the decision of UN members.

Both Red China and Nationalist China claim they represent all of China and therefore are entitled to China's seats in the General Assembly and in the Security Council.

B.C. Tel Predicts Cutbacks

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — British Columbia Telephone Co. said Sunday projected construction and expansion of facilities will be cut back because Friday's rate increase award falls short of what was required.

The Canadian Transport Commission authorized rate increases amounting to $9.4 million in extra revenue for B.C. Tel annually, just over half of the $17 million the company had requested.

B.C. Tel said it is taking "another hard look" at its capital program and undoubtedly there will be cutbacks in planned modernization and improvement projects, particularly those relating to rural upgrading, expansion of flate-rate calling areas, and introduction of touch calling.

"Deferrals will be required in our projected construction and expansion of facilities and planned additions to personnel to carry out that and other work will have to be pared."

Adjustments will be made "in a manner designed to minimize impact upon service and to assure that we are able to provide initial basic telephone service to new customers."

'MODEST IMPROVEMENT'

The company predicted its consolidated ordinary share earnings for 1971 would probably show "a modest improvement" over the $5.10 a share paid in 1970, and that a further increase was likely in 1972.

It said it would undertake a study of hotel service rates and charges as quickly as possible, following charges by hotel owners of discrimination.

B.C. Tel said it would move immediately to implement the new rates, which include a 2.5 per cent monthly increase on residential and business phones.

Subscribers to single-party lines will pay between 15 and 50 cents a month more while those on two-party lines will pay five to 15 cents more.

A 25 cent fee will also be levied on requests for time and charges on long distance calls.

China Rejects Russian Bid For N-Talks

By JOHN BURNS
Special to The Times

PEKING — China has formally rejected the Soviet Union's call for a nuclear disarmament conference, and called instead for an undertaking by the United States and the Soviet Union never to be the first to use nuclear weapons.

In an official statement distributed to embassies in Peking, the Chinese also demanded that the two superpowers dismantle all nuclear bases they maintain on foreign soil.

The statement added that the reaction of Washington and Moscow to the demands "will be the test as to whether they have the desire to realize nuclear disarmament."

As for China, the statement declared that its nuclear weapons are still in an experimental stage and at present it is not yet a nuclear power.

Recent intelligence estimates in the West have suggested that the Chinese have, in fact, already deployed a number of first-generation intermediate-range ballistic missiles, capable of reaching Soviet targets in Asia.

The Chinese statement, distributed on Friday, became available only yesterday. There has been no mention of it in the Chinese press.

"Matters affecting various countries in the world should be jointly discussed and settled by all of them, and permit of no monopoly by a few big powers," the statement said.

Apollo Finds Prize Rock

HOUSTON (WP) — The Apollo 15 lunar rock hounds think they found what they went to the moon for — a piece of crystal rock that may date from the creation of the universe.

They found the rock Sunday on the northern rim of Spur crater, about a third of a mile up Mount Hadley delta in the towering Apennine range. Earthbound scientists felt the astronauts would have the best chance of finding a sample of the moon's original crust there.

The find was signalled to a world-wide audience watching the lunar exploration when David Scott said excitedly, "Guess what we just found? We found what we came for."

CRYSTAL ROCK

His partner, James Irwin, added, "Crystal rock."

"Yes sir. You better believe it. Plage (short for plagioclase, a mineral) in there. Almost all plage," Scott said. "As a matter of fact," he continued, his voice raising in excitement with every word, "Oh boy, I think we might have ourselves something close to an anorthosite. Cause the crystals in there are almost all plage.

"What a beaut. That is really a beauty. And there is some there's another one down there."

Anorthosite is a type of rock that is very rare on earth. Grains of anorthosite found in soil from the Apollo 11 and 12 landing sites have been dated at 4.6 billion years the age of the solar system.

PRISTINE MOON

"This sort of sample discovered in such a place could quite possible be material that the pristine moon was formed of," said Dr. Joseph Allen, a physicist-astronaut who acted as capsule communicator during Sunday's seven-hour and 12-minute exploration of more than 8½ miles of the moon.

"Perhaps the material has been unchanged from the very first day our solar system was formed," Allen continued.

CANADIANS SHINING AT PAN-AM GAMES

CALI, Columbia — Canadian athletes won three more gold medals — all in track and field — in Sunday's competition at the Pan-American Games.

Vancouver's Stephanie Berto matched her own Games' record as she won the women's 200-metre final, another Vancouverite, Brenda Eisler, won the women's long jump and Torontos runner Abbie Hoffman finished first in the women's 800-metre final.

Canada, which collected one triumph on opening day Saturday when Montreal weightlifter Chun Hon Chan won gold, silver and bronze medals in the flyweight class, started today's events with a total of four gold, three silver and five bronze medals and holding third place in unofficial team standings behind the U.S. and Cuba.

Penny May of Victoria collected one of the third-place bronzes in the women's 100-metre hurdles and placed fourth in the long jump.

Victoria oarsman Bob Cunliffe shared a fourth-place finish with John Wilkinson of Kamloops in the paired oars with cox.

CANADIANS IN NORILSK

MOSCOW (UPI) — Canadian specialists in northern development flew to Norilsk today to study Soviet life beyond the polar circle, the Tass news agency said.

Jean Chretien, minister of northern development, and his party spent two days in Bratsk, a Siberian town built upon former thickets of taiga.

Tass said they visited a timber industry complex under construction that, when finished in 1975, will produce seven million cubic yards of timber annually.

NEWS BRIEFS

Crackdown on IRA

BELFAST (Reuter) — More than 700 troops carried out a series of pre-dawn searches in Northern Ireland today as part of a crackdown on the outlawed Irish Republican Army. The main searches were concentrated on the Roman Catholic Falls Road area of Belfast, but houses in four other towns including one near the border with Ireland were also investigated.

Quake Rocks Japan

TOKYO (Reuter) — A strong earthquake shook northern Japan today, registering five on the Japanese scale of seven. There were no immediate reports of casualties or damage.

UNCLE BEN FLOWS TO RESCUE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Thirsty British Columbians feeling the parch of the continuing Lower Mainland brewery workers' dispute get some relief today when between 10,000 and 12,500 cases of beer from Uncle Ben's brewery in Winnipeg will go on sale.

The shipment is the first of a 30,000-case order placed by the provincial Liquor Control Board to combat the shortage of local beer that developed after 750 Labatt's and Molson's brewery workers went on strike or were locked out.

The B.C. government has authorized the board to import beer from other provinces or the United States if necessary to prevent the supply from drying up all together.

Loophole Plug Hinted

Liquor products advertised on U.S. stations beaming into British Columbia may not be sold in liquor stores in B.C., Premier Bennett has warned.

Beer, wine and liquor manufacturers who try to get around the Sept. 1 liquor advertising ban by buying time on U.S. stations could find "no orders" coming in from the liquor control board for their products.

Bennett told the Financial Post in an interview that a ban on such products hasn't been set as a definite policy but "if they try to get around the expressed will of the people of British Columbia through their legislature, I should think the orders will be slow in coming."

Bennett said he thought such a move by the board would be "automatic."

Red Envoys Ejected

By The Associated Press

Sudan ordered the top Soviet diplomat in Khartoum to leave within 48 hours and also gave the Bulgarian ambassador orders to get out. The leading Soviet diplomat is counsellor of the embassy.

The Sudanese government, angered by Soviet press attacks on its anti-Communist policy, earlier had recalled its ambassadors from Moscow and Sofia. A government spokesman said the rest of the embassy staff in Moscow would remain.

Earlier, Egypt's Middle East news agency said that Sudan had threatened to break relations with Moscow unless the Soviet press stopped its attacks on President Jaafar el-Nimeiri's regime.

STEEL PRICE HIKE FOLLOWS PACT

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The United States steel industry averted a strike with the signing Sunday of a contract with the United Steelworkers Union, and today the leading company announced sweeping price increases which it attributed to the "inflationary" contract terms.

U.S. Steel Corp. said increases will average eight per cent on carbon and alloy steel products, the firm's entire line with the exception of stainless steel.

The White House was quick to make known its displeasure at the price hikes, saying they would have a detrimental effect on both production and unemployment in the industry and would damage its already-unfavorable competitive position.

Another labor development during the weekend was settlement of an 18-day-old rail strike which has shut down 10 lines and crippled the entire U.S. freight system. Representatives of the United Transportation Union and the rail firms reached agreement on a new contract providing a 36 per cent wage increase over three years.

POSTPONEMENT VOTED

Amchitka 'Up to Nixon'

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. Senate voted Saturday to postpone the planned underground explosion of a five-megaton nuclear warhead in Alaska unless President Nixon "gives his direct approval."

The Cannikin experiment, planned by the Atomic Energy commission in October, is designed to test the warhead for the Spartan missile, a part of the Safeguard Anti-Ballistic missile system.

Expressing fear that the blast a mile underground at Amchitka Island in the Aleutians would touch off earthquakes and tidal waves, Senator Daniel Inouye (D-Hawaii) proposed denial of funds for the test.

The Senate accepted a modification by Senator John Pastore (D.-R.I.) to forbid the blast before May 31, 1972, "unless the president gives his direct approval."

The modified amendment was added by voice vote to a $4.7 billion appropriation bill for the Atomic Energy Commission and water and power development projects.

Pastore read a letter from David Packard, undersecretary of defence, saying that without the test the nation's developing ABM system would be imperilled.

Inouye argued that the test should be delayed at least until after strategic arms limitation talks with the Russians and the president's visit to mainland China in quest of world peace.

Moonwalk Ends—Falcon Docks

HOUSTON (AP) — Two Apollo 15 astronauts blasted off from the moon today after three days of historic exploration and successfully caught up with their orbiting command ship.

A television camera gave earthlings their first look at a launching from the moon as the Falcon of David R. Scott and James B. Irwin vaulted off the moon's surface toward a safe orbit.

For nearly two hours, Scott and Irwin executed skilful manoeuvres to track down the command ship Endeavour with Alfred M. Worden at the controls.

The two ships manoeuvred into position nearly 70 miles above the moon and moved together until locked firmly nose to nose.

Scott and Irwin were to transfer through a connecting tunnel into the command ship. Then the three astronauts were to spend two additional days in lunar orbit conducting scientific experiments.

The ascent stage of the lunar module Falcon lifted quickly away and sped into the black sky toward orbit and a rendezvous with Alfred M. Worden in the command modulied Endeavour.

Particles flew in all directions as the craft lifted away, and the astronauts played the United States Air Force song Off We Go into the Wild Blue Yonder as they soared upward.

The television camera left behind and controlled by Mission Control followed Falcon's flight for only about a second before the craft was out of view.

Following the liftoff, the television camera focused on the descent stage of the lunar module, deserted on the empty moon's surface.

Within 10 seconds the lunar module was at 300 feet and climbing rapidly in both speed and altitude.

"Falcon," said Mission Control, "You're looking good at three minutes."

At 700 feet, the spacecraft curved east, quickly passing over Hadley Rille, the moon canyon Scott and Irwin photographed so carefully during their exploration.

Scott and Irwin rode their moon machine quietly, saying little.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

CHICAGO (AP) — Heavy selling of corn futures, influenced by expectations of a good crop this year, sent corn futures prices down nearly 4 cents a bushel on the Board of Trade today.

The liquidation in corn was a factor in lower prices for oats and wheat futures.

Client Reaction Crucial In Newsprint Price Hike

By IRVING C. WHYNOT

The newsprint price increases announced by major Canadian producers were not unexpected. The industry has been suffering sliding profits as a result of rising costs and falling markets and had to find some extra income.

But there are two big questions as a result of the latest increases.

How will the customers react, especially since many of them are caught in the same profit squeeze?

And how long will it be before the mills again have to jump their prices?

The Canadian situation is not unique. Britain has seen extensive layoffs in its industry and Sweden is feeling the pinch too.

There is some speculation that under these conditions the competition may be such as to make it difficult to impose the inreases.

ANOTHER INCREASE

For the longer run, some analysts see another price increase necessary as soon as 1972. The companies themselves say the latest price increases hardly meet their increased costs, including the loss from unpegging of the Canadian dollar.

Total shipments of newsprint for the first half of the year were down more than six per cent. The drop in shipments to the United States, the largest customer, was about 2.3 per cent.

Employment in the industry has been cut, some mills have closed part of their facilities and others have gone on short shifts.

The government of Quebec, where 2,000 pulp and paper workers have been laid off, has recommended federal tax relief as one means of assisting the industry, which puts $300 million into provincial payrolls each year. So far, the federal government hasn't replied.

A good bakometer of the industry's health is the paper and forest product index of the Toronto Stock Exchange. The index stood at 124.35 points at the end of 1969 but slumped to 93.62 a year later. It now stands at 82.62.

SHOULD IMPROVE

Despite these depressing times, the industry is preparing for what it hopes will be brighter days ahead. In total, they have plans for spending of about $1.5 billion on construction and expansion during the next year.

If the industry can remain healthy, the future has some promise.

A study conducted by the University of Wisconsin for The American Newspaper Publishers Association predicts that the decade of the 1970s should see the greatest tonnage growth of newsprint consumption in history.

U.S. consumption alone is projected at 13.1 million tons in 1980, up close to 35 per cent over that of 1969.

The study also said that despite substantial gains by U.S. newsprint producers, Canadian mills continue to be a major source of supply for U.S. newspapers, which account for more than 90 per cent of the total newsprint used in the U.S.

"Substantial additions to capacity will be necessary to supply U.S. newspapers in the decade ahead," the study reported. "In addition, demands in other parts of the world are likely to rise substantially."

Second Largest Securities Firm To Offer Stock

NEW YORK (AP) — Bache and Co. Inc., the second-largest securities firm in the United States took the first formal step in its long anticipated public offering of stock.

The brokerage house filed a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission. It covered the proposed public offering of 2.5-million shares of its common stock, giving effect to a 2½-for-one split of its present stock.

Bache joined a growing trend in the industry to go public. Four New York Stock Exchange member firms are publicly owned and a fifth, CBWL-Hayden Stone, filed a registration statement with the SEC in June.

Stock of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, the nation's largest brokerage house, began trading on the big board Tuesday.

Sabina to Pay $426,987 To Broker

VANCOUVER (CP) — The major shareholder in Sabina Mines Ltd., suspended onthe Vancouver stock Exchange, will pay $426,987 to the brokerage firm which underwrote a Sabina stock issue.

Michael McCormick, president of McCormick Securities Ltd., and Sabina Mines Ltd., said his brokerage firm will buy 80,800 shares of Sabina at slightly more than $5.28 from West Coast Securities Ltd.

West Coast had been buying the stock until the price plunged $2.50 July 22, down $2.15 on a three-hour volume of 36,065 shares. The stock had traded at high as $5.80 earlier in the month.

ISSUED ORDER

On July 22, the exchange issued a halt-trading order and the next day ordered a suspension in trading.

Mr. McCormick said trading in Sabina is still suspended while "the lawyers work it out." Exchange president John Van Luven said it "could be a couple of days or a couple of weeks" before trading resumes.

Mr. McCormick said the company's affairs are being clarified and Sabina is making a revised proposal for the Canadian rights to a West German process that turns phosphate fertilizer waste into gypsum."

Housing Aid Given

FORT VERMILION, Alta. (CP) — The provincial and federal governments are taking action to house 40 families evicted from their homes in this Northern Alberta community.

The federal department of Indian Affairs is building 10 homes on the outskirts of the town to take care of treaty Indian families evicted from private property, and the provincial municipal affiars department is in the process of finding land in the area for the remaining families.

The Indian and Metis families were evicted from the private property earlier this year. The families had been living on the land, formerly owned by the Roam Catholic Church, for several generations before it was sold to private developers.

Copper Price Could Rise

COEUR D'alene, Idaho (AP) — An official of the Kennecott Copper Co. said the price of copper could be increased from six to 15 cents per pound as a result of U.S. air pollution regulations controlling the emission of sulfur oxide.

Gilbert E. Dwyer, Kennecott administrative vice-president, told the Idaho mining convention the federal government, through the environmental protection agency, has oversold the problem of air pollution by the copper industry.

He said the government's proposed standard that would require 90 per cent of all sulfur oxide be removed from copper smelter emissions "stands as one of themmost irrational results of federal involvement in state anti-pollution efforts."

NOT HEARD

Although industry has told the government that the standard is both technically difficult to meet and nearly prohinitive financially, it is as if we have never been heard.

Estimates place the capital expenditure of installing pollution control devices at between $270 and $570 million and increased operating cost at between $80 and $200 million annually, Dwyer said.

This could, he noted, increase the cost of copper from the western smelters by six to 15 cents a pound.

MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. reports net earnings of $9 million or 43 cents a share in the first half of 1971 compared to $11.19 million (54 cents) in the period last year.

Sales in the six months ended June 30 were $343.47 million, up from $324 million in the period a year ago.

Chairman J. V. Clyne said the increase was the result of improved demand for building materials and higher newsprint sales.

He said industry profit margins still "remained below reasonable levels," and that dividends at the rate of 10 cents a share would be paid in the third quarter.

Algoma

Shares in Algoma Steel Corp. Ltd. in the quarter and half ended June 30 earned only about half the amount of a year earlier, although the second quarter indicated improvement.

President Ian A. Barclay called first-half earnings "unsatisfactory", despite the increase, and reported the board of directors had decided not to declare a quarterly dividend on common shares normally due Aug. 1.

He said the improvement in 1971 was due to higher shipments and better prices for most of the company's products, but costs for the remaining months will be higher.

THE BANNERS

Our Big Brother: The Faceless Man

It's been said that the occupational disease of the civil service is timidity. Certainly, as any newspaperman will tell you, there's a real or imagined fear of reprisals by public servants that causes them to open their mouths, like oysters, only for the purpose of eating or breathing.

If I'd a dime for every letter I've received that ended, ". . . but don't use my name as I am in the civil service" I . . . well, I'd have a pocket full of dimes.

★ ★ ★

I mention this only because today's subject — Canada's great triumph Over Abbie Hoffman or How We Saved The Nation From Chaos and Revolution — is written at the suggestion of a federal employee, a department head, a man of impeccable respectability. I don't blame him one little bit for insisting on anonymity. He is a man whose fury and shame, you see, are aimed directly at those who hire him.

Two weeks ago, on a brief holiday in Seattle, Mr. X purchased, for $1.95, a paper-back with the curious title, "Steal This Book." The author is Abbie Hoffman, the 34-year-old leader of the so-called Yippie movement in the U.S.A.

In quick succession, several things happened to Mr. X as the result of this purchase. First, he found the book an enormously entertaining and amusing put-down on the well known weaknesses of the way of life in the United States, a sort of tongue-in-cheek survival course to avoid or delay being crushed by The Great American Dream Machine. Second, he began to grapple with the ethical problem of whether to bring the book into Canada when he returned and, in view of his position, decided against it. Third, the fury that while this book is freely sold in the United States it is illegal for the Canadian reader. Fourth, the shame that we Canadians, so blithely confident that we've a healthier, sturdier democracy than our neighbors to the south, should have meekly accepted a form of political censorship that would be fought by every American liberal.

These emotional responses — and this is the point to be made today — were not directed against a prime minister, a cabinet, a government. They were directed against faceless, voiceless, unidentified bureaucrats who, like Mr. X., are servants of the people.

Last January, at Fort Erie, Ontario, en route to the University of Western Ontario to take part in the CBC television program "Under Attack," to be seen coast-to-coast, Abbie Hoffman was turned back at the Canadian border. He was not turned back by a prime minister, a cabinet or a government. He was turned back by the faceless, voiceless unidentifiable bureaucrats of the department of immi[illegible]cation.

★ ★ ★

Last week Abbie Hoffman's "Steal This Book," now over the 100,000-mark in sales in the United States, was banned in Canada as an "immoral" publication. It was not banned by a prime minister, a cabinet or a government. It was banned by the faceless, voiceless, unidentifiable bureaucrats of the department of revenue.

On the theory that it takes one to know one, Mr. X finds himself asking the questions that perhaps we should all be asking.

Both the banning of Hoffman in the flesh and Hoffman in print were "interpretive" decisions by men whose only guidance is found in regulations. They are not men concerned with civil liberties, with the broader workings and safeguards of democratic principals, with the right of dissent or the need of it. They are specialists in immigration and revenue. They are not men concerned with literary merit or the freedom to print. They are technicians. Yet the effect of their decision may have a profound effect on democracy.

They are not men who stand in the glare of public opinion to be challenged or praised. Like all civil servants their decision is anonymous. Their jobs, their future, are never in jeopardy. There is no direct appeal from their judgment. By the nature of their profession and the fear that it engenders they are timid, cautious men. Yet their power is the ultimate power in a democratic state — the power to tell you and me that we may not listen to a man's views under attack on a television screen or to read his views between the covers of a book.

How they interpret the guidelines depends, of course, entirely on the kind of men they are. We've no way of knowing that. Are they men whose occupational timidity extends to a belief that the Canadian democracy is such a fragile, vulnerable thing that it will blow away if any long-haired radical is allowed to huff and puff at it?

Are they unsophisticated, humorless men who could easily banish a book simply because of an intellectual inability to get the joke? Are they older, reactionary men whose well-meaning interpretation of guide-lines is that the youth of the land must be shielded from the corrupting influence of every inconoclast? There is no way to tell.

That is the insidious thing about this kind of censorship. It is particularly revealing in the case of the banning of "Steal This Book."

My civil service informant describes "Steal This Book" as a kind of black comedy directed against the sickness of the United States — the ghettos, the poverty, the hunger, the unemployment in the richest nation on earth.

Dotson Rader, the novelist, writing in The New York Times Book Review, describes Hoffman's "gentleness and affection for his people," his "peculiarly righteous morality" (he hits hard against needle drugs and stupid violence) and concludes: "It is a book of warning and practical knowledge. It should be read by the young, for it will help them to make it through life in hip America with their minds and bodies relatively intact."

Which is it? An important book with an important message or an "immoral" book that poses a threat to the law and order of Canada?

There is no way of knowing short of crossing the border. We can only know that the threat to freedom here does not come from a tyrant or dictator. Big Brother, Canada-style, is a timid man without a name, without a face.

Business Balks At Tourist Aid; City Gets Plea

Victoria businessmen have refused to increase support for the visitors' bureau, city council was informed today.

A letter from Sam Lane, bureau president, says the organization has done its "utmost" to improve on the $17,500 raised by voluntary contributions but without success.

Acting Mayor Tom Christie said today he doubts that there has been any "strenuous" effort to improve the contributions.

He said despite some generous gifts to the bureau, there are many tourist-oriented enterprises making only "token" contributions, and others are not giving anything.

The effort to increase the amount donated by private enterprise came after council warned earlier this year it will drastically cut back in 1972 its annual gift of $60,000.

PLAN AHEAD

Lane says in the letter the bureau must now plan ahead "and make commitments for 1972."

"Furthermore, our 14 staff at the present are quite upset and uncertain as to their future after loyally doing their job for many years." Lane added that the "uncertainty of his future" has already caused the former bureau manager to resign.

". . . If the council feels that under the direction of 22 voluntary directors of the bureau, the bureau is not fulfilling its function, may we have constructive criticism and practical advice."

The letter says the "feeling of the businessmen" is that the $800,000 they pay in business licences and taxes, plus property tax and parking lot assessments, is sufficient.

EFFORT FAILS

Lane also said a continuing effort to get more money from other municipalities has failed.

Failure of the city to continue its grant of $60,000 "would lead to the complete demise of the entire organizations set up to promote the economic well-being of the entire Greater Victoria area and Vancouver Island," the letter says.

"If Victoria . . . fails to continue these grants the visitors bureau would have to cease operation after 54 years of continuous operation, and the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau would also fold."

OBJECTION

One of the city's main objections to the bureau operation is the large amount of funds spent on advertising the area's tourist facilities in American and other extra-city publications.

Christie said "I don't think the private sector is paying its share." He said there is no way of making fees to the bureau mandatory because the bureau cannot tax. He added that the amount individual businesses donate is "in no way related to what their take (income) is."

The letter says inquiries at the bureau during the first three weeks of July increased from 23,692 in 1970 to 33,159 last month. For the month of June, inquiries jumped from 14,302 to 17,267.

Queen's Letter Believed Lost, Says U.S. Lawyer

A missing letter from Queen Victoria to Charles Ross which has been willed to the provincial archives may never be found.

Ross built Fort Victoria in the 1840's. the letter instructs him to name it "Fort Albert."

It was willed to the archives by his great-granddaughter, Maud Wren, who died near Tacoma, Washington, 16 months ago at the age of 84.

The estate's executor, Tacoma lawyer A'lan Hutchison, said today Miss Wren loaned the letter to a friend, Mrs. Edith Sokolik, who used to show it to company.

Locating the letter may be instrumental in settling a dispute about the fort's first name.

Hutchison said he thinks Mrs. Sokolik may have lost the letter, because it has not appeared in any of the materials she received on loan from Miss Wren.

He said he hopes to be able to visit Mrs. Sokolik this week in another attempt to find the document.

A batch of nine letters, now in the possession of the Washington State Historical Society, also has been willed to the archives. But a dispute exists over who should retain them.

'FORMAL' DEMAND

Hutchison said he will make a "formal demand" this week to the society to release these letters to the archives. They are more mundane than the missing letter from Queen Victoria, he said.

It is unlikely he will go to court to get the letters released, Hutchison said, partly because Provincial Archivist Willard Ireland has told him he (Ireland) would rather not create bad feelings between the archives and the Washington State Historical Society.

Other items including some jewelry and five letters once in Ross' possession were sent to the archives last year, Hutchison said.

Water Boards May Be Hit By Extra Tax

Water districts in Victoria and Vancouver may have to pay logging taxes.

This would involve a yearly tax of 15 per cent on profits of more than $10,000, under the provincial Logging Tax Act.

Both districts are public non-profit bodies and if had been felt unlikely that the logging tax would apply to them and no returns have been filed.

Neither Ron Upward, commissioner of the Greater Victoria Water District, nor Frank Bunnell, his counterpart at the Greater Vancouver Water District, could say what is the extent of liability.

The Vancouver water district log salvage operation has yielded about $2.7 million since it started in 1961.

Upward said he doesn't know whether the water district will have to pay logging taxes. The province was seeking the tax "and it is a matter of interpretation if we have to pay," he said.

He said there have been meetings with provincial officials and the water district has engaged a tax consultant to study the situation and the application of the logging tax.

Camosun Staff Hold Session For Orientation

The staff of Camosun College — Victoria's new regional college — met today to start month-long orientation sessions.

The college doesn't officially open its doors for about six weeks, but faculty and administrators are making preparations for the anticipated 1,300 full-time students.

Staff number about 60, with many coming from the Institute of Adult Studies, predecessor of the college.

Ask The Times

Q. Where is the thermometer in the weather office? — M.C.

A. First of all, it depends on which weather office you refer to. The weather station at Gonzales Heights is the agency the Times uses for its temperatures but other media use the weather station at the Pat Bay airport. The thermometers at Gonzales are kept in an enclosure about 30 feet away from the main building. They record the high for the day, the low, and the actual temperature at the time of the readings. A spokesman said 10-20-degree variations can occur between Gonzales and the airport.

ON DOUGLAS AT 6 A.M. ON A SUNDAY

Art's Army Wants to March

Victoria artist Glenn Howarth wants to parade some military-style sculptures on Douglas Street on a Sunday morning.

Howarth has asked city hall for a parade permit for "6 a.m. on a Sunday morning when the streets of the town are empty."

He submitted designs for three kinds of sculptures which he would lead in parade. First would be a stretched canvas banner painted to shine.

This would be pushed on a grid attached to rollers.

WHEELBARROWS

Next would come five "phallic wheelbarrows or machine-guns" followed by two "wounded limbs" attached to wheels, suspended just high enough from the ground to bounce along erratically.

Howarth said he has applied to the Canada Council for $100 to help build the sculptures. Total cost should be $250, he said.

Howarth intends to paint the "machine-guns" black, perhaps decorating them with orange teeth reminiscent of Col. Claire Chennault's "Flying Tigers."

In a letter to the mayor, Howarth identifies himself as "Commander of Art's Army." The "army" is his name for his style of conceptual art.

AN IDEA

Conceptual art, explained Howarth, is more concerned with the idea of a thing, rather than the final product.

He said he wants to get artistic ideas before the public instead of keeping art inside galleries.

"Art galleries just don't move around; ideas do."

He said the only sound in the parade would be that of wheels rolling. Because the parade would be held early in the morning, he said, little traffic could be disrupted and only one police escort would be necessary.

"Other members of the local art community will be invited to design and parade their ideas. Art's army will retain the right to exclude sculpture which is frivolous and contradicts the mood of the parade — a dead-pan and business-like pushing of wheeled art.

"The military will be invited to review the procession. They will not come. Discouraged by the early hour, the general public, though invited, will not attend in large numbers.

POURING RAIN

"Hopefully on parade day it will be pouring rain."

That's what Howarth told the mayor, in his letter. Permits normally are granted by the city manager. City manager Bill Hooson was in meetings all morning and could not be reached.

In support of the idea, Howarth has a letter from Colin Graham, director of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

Graham's letter to city hall reassures the mayor and aldermen that Howarth is a "thoroughly serious artist of exceptional intellectual calibre."

"While Howarth's project will doubtless have plenty of wit and humor to it, his basic purpose is a serious one, a fact attested by the circumstance that it is going to cost him a good deal more than he can readily afford."

Graham also said the parade could do no harm and "should add to the liveliness of the summer civic scene here."

Howarth said he chose the army theme because he doesn't like "military pretence."

"Armies are the most frightening and surreal institutions that have ever existed," he said.

'ORANGE SUNSHINE' CAUSING BAD TRIPS

Cylindrical capsules of a drug being sold as LSD under the name Orange Sunshine may be harmful, Cool-Aid staff said today.

About six people who took the drug visited Cool-Aid over the weekend after they began to have some bad experiences while under its influence.

Staff worker Rick Stamford said today no one had to be hospitalized because of the drug, but two samples are being analyzed.

"It may not be very good. It's either very strong acid or mixed with some 'poison'," Stamford said.

Stamford was referring to the fact that drugs such as LSD frequently are mixed with other chemicals such as methamphetamine, popularly known as speed.

He said the Orange Sunshine is bright orange in color and is being given away free or being sold for between $1 and $3.

Ferry Dispute Talks Continuing Today

Talks aimed at ironing out a B.C. Ferry workers' dispute over sick leave regulations continued today.

Employees in the 1,600-member marine branch (unlicensed) of the B.C. Government Employees Union took a strike vote earlier, but business agent Norman Thornber declined to disclose the result while talks are continuing.

The union has said that the regulations lump together absenteeism of all kinds and that 200 employees have been sent letters saying they could be fired if they are absent in the next six months.

Meanwhile, the marine branch and the B.C. Government Employees Union are to meet a cabinet committee Tuesday to discuss possible changes under the revamped unemployment insurance scheme.

Thornber said the marine branch is concerned that the provincial government may exercise its right under the revised federal legislation and opt out.

If this happened, about half the marine branch's members would be unprotected. They are not covered by the security clause in the contract but are covered by unemployment insurance now, he said.

"We want all ferry employees covered by unemployment insurance," he said.

Uvic Ruling Not Expected For a While

A three-man advisory board looking into the dismissal of three University of Victoria professors could take some time yet to report its findings, chairman Colin McLaurin said today.

McLaurin and other panel members Dr. Bernard Riedel and A. B. Carrothers, concluded hearings on the cases of the three UVic teachers, July 17.

First indications were that a report would be coming within a month of that date, but McLaurin said from Calgary that the panel had just received copies of the transcript of the proceedings and had not had any meetings.

McLaurin would not give an estimate of when the board's findings will be released.

The board held eight days of hearings on the UVic campus, looking into the circumstances of the non-renewal of contracts of Dr. William Goede, Dr. Tikam Jain and J. P. Graff. Also investigated was the handling of the matter by the Canadian Association of University Teachers.

Building Starts Show Decline In Saanich

Construction activity eased slightly in Saanich during July but remained ahead in the first seven months of this year.

Permits worth $1.6 million were issued last month compared with $1.7 million in the same month last year. Residential construction more than doubled, to $1 million.

Biggest permits issued in July were $252,000 for the addition to the fire-police station and $200,000 for the apartment foundation at 1900 Mayfair Drive.

Permits worth $9.3 million have been issued this year compared with $9 million in the same period last year.

U.S. Wants Peking in UN

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary William P. Rogers announced today that the United States will favor seating of Red China at the United Nations General Assembly this fall and will oppose any move to oust the Chinese Nationalists.

"We think the realities of the world require that both be represented" in the world body, Rogers said in issuing a long-awaited Nixon administration announcement.

He noted that Communist China has some 700 million people and Nationalist China some 14 million.

He said of the Peking regime: "After all they represent about one-fourth of the people on the surface of the earth."

"United States accordingly will support action at the General Assembly this fall calling for seating the People's Republic of China," Rogers said. "At the same time the United States will oppose any action to expel the Republic of China or otherwise deprive it of representation in the United Nations."

The Rogers announcement market a historic switch from U.S. efforts over the previous years to prevent Peking's entry into the United Nations.

In Taipei, Nationalist China tacitly accepted the new U.S. position apparently in a turnabout intended to keep maximum flexibility for a fight to save its own seat in the world body.

A foreign ministry statement did not mention directly the U.S. change of policy but it did call for its rejection of a Communist-sponsored move to expel Taipei and seat Peking in the United Nations.

The statement, issued just

B.C. Tel Predicts Cutbacks

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — British Columbia Telephone Co. said Sunday projected construction and expansion of facilities will be cut back because Friday's rate increase award falls short of what was required.

The Canadian Transport Commission authorized rate increases amounting to $9.4 million in extra revenue for B.C. Tel annually, just over half of the $17 million the company had requested.

B.C. Tel said it is taking "another hard look" at its capital program and undoubtedly there will be cutbacks in planned modernization and improvement projects, particularly those relating to rural upgrading, expansion of flate-rate calling areas, and introduction of touch calling.

"Deferrals will be required in our projected construction and expansion of facilities and planned additions to personnel to carry out that and other work will have to be pared."

Adjustments will be made "in a manner designed to minimize impact upon service and to assure that we are able to provide initial basic telephone service to new customers."

'MODEST IMPROVEMENT'

The company predicted its consolidated ordinary share earnings for 1971 would probably show "a modest improvement" over the $5.10 a share paid in 1970, and that a further increase was likely in 1972.

It said it would undertake a study of hotel service rates and charges as quickly as possible, following charges by hotel owners of discrimination.

B.C. Tel said it would move immediately to implement the new rates, which include a 2.5 per cent monthly increase on residential and business phones.

Subscribers to single-party lines will pay between 15 and 50 cents a month more while those on two-party lines will pay five to 15 cents more.

A 25 cent fee will also be levied on requests for time and charges on long distance calls.

China Rejects Russian Bid For N-Talks

By JOHN BURNS
Special to The Times

PEKING — China has formally rejected the Soviet Union's call for a nuclear disarmament conference, and called instead for an undertaking by the United States and the Soviet Union never to be the first to use nuclear weapons.

In an official statement distributed to embassies in Peking, the Chinese also demanded that the two superpowers dismantle all nuclear bases they maintain on foreign soil.

The statement added that the reaction of Washington and Moscow to the demands "will be the test as to whether they have the desire to realize nuclear disarmament."

As for China, the statement declared that its nuclear weapons are still in an experimental stage and at present it is not yet a nuclear power.

Apollo Finds Prize Rock

HOUSTON (WP) — The Apollo 15 lunar rock hounds think they found what they went to the moon for — a piece of crystal rock that may date from the creation of the universe.

They found the rock Sunday on the northern rim of Spur crater, about a third of a mile up Mount Hadley delta in the towering Apennine range. Earthbound scientists felt the astronauts would have the best chance of finding a sample of the moon's original crust there.

The find was signalled to a world-wide audience watching the lunar exploration when David Scott said excitedly, "Guess what we just found? We found what we came for."

CRYSTAL ROCK

His partner, James Irwin, added, "Crystal rock."

"Yes sir. You better believe it. Plagé (short for plagioclase, a mineral) in there. Almost all plage," Scott said. "As a matter of fact," he continued, his voice raising in excitement with every word, "Oh boy, I think we might have ourselves something close to an anorthosite. Cause the crystals in there are almost all plage."

"What a beaut. That is really a beauty. And there is some — there's another one down there."

Anorthosite is a type of rock that is very rare on earth. Grains of anorthosite found in soil from the Apollo 11 and 12 landing sites have been dated at 4.6 billion years — the age of the solar system.

PRISTINE MOON

"This sort of sample discovered in such a place could quite possible be material that the pristine moon was formed of," said Dr. Joseph Allen, a physicist-astronaut who acted as capsule communicator during Sunday's seven-hour and 12-minute exploration of more than 8½ miles of the moon.

"Perhaps the material has been unchanged from the very first day our solar system was formed," Allen continued.

Senate Puts Amchitka In Nixon's Lap

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. Senate voted Saturday to postpone the planned underground explosion of a five-megaton nuclear warhead in Alaska unless President Nixon "gives his direct approval."

The Cannikin experiment, planned by the Atomic Energy Commission in October, is designed to test the warhead for the Spartan missile, a part of the Safeguard Anti-Ballistic missile system.

Expressing fear that the blast a mile underground at Amchitka Island in the Aleutians would touch off earthquakes and tidal waves, Senator Daniel Inouye (D-Hawaii) proposed denial of funds for the test.

The Senate accepted a modification by Senator John Pastore (D-R.I.) to forbid the blast before May 31, 1972, "unless the president gives his direct approval."

The modified amendment was added by voice vote to a $4.7 billion appropriation bill for the Atomic Energy Commission and water and power development projects.

Pastore read a letter from David Packard, undersecretary of defence, saying that without the test the nation's developing ABM system would be imperilled.

Inouye argued that the test should be delayed at least until after strategic arms limitation talks with the Russians and the president's visit to mainland China in quest of world peace.

Quake Rocks Japan

TOKYO (Reuter) — A strong earthquake shook northern Japan today, registering five on the Japanese scale of seven. There were no immediate reports of casualties or damage.

CANADIANS SHINING AT PAN-AM GAMES

CALI, Columbia — Canadian athletes won three more gold medals — all in track and field — in Sunday's competition at the Pan-American Games.

Vancouver's Stephanie Berto matched her own Games' record as she won the women's 200-metre final, another Vancouverite, Brenda Eisler, won the women's long jump and Torontos runner Abbie Hoffman finished first in the women's 800-metre final.

Canada, which collected one triumph on opening day Saturday when Montreal weightlifter Chun Hon Chan won gold, silver and bronze medals in the flyweight class, started today's events with a total of four gold, three silver and five bronze medals and holding third place in unofficial team standings behind the U.S. and Cuba.

Penny May of Victoria collected one of the third-place bronzes in the women's 100-metre hurdles and placed fourth in the long jump.

Victoria oarsman Bob Cunliffe shared a fourth-place finish with John Wilkinson of Kamloops in the paired oars with cox.

Loophole Plug Hinted

Liquor products advertised on U.S. stations beaming into British Columbia may not be sold in liquor stores in B.C., Premier Bennett has warned.

Beer, wine and liquor manufacturers who try to get around the Sept. 1 liquor advertising ban by laying time on U.S. stations could find "no orders" coming in from the liquor control board for their products.

Bennett told the Financial Post in an interview that a ban on such products hasn't been set as a definite policy but "if they try to get around the expressed will of the people of British Columbia through their legislature, I should think the orders will be slow in coming."

Bennett said he thought such a move by the board would be "automatic."

UNCLE BEN FLOWS TO RESCUE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Thirsty British Columbians feeling the parch of the continuing Lower Mainland brewery workers' dispute get some relief today when between 10,000 and 12,500 cases of beer from Uncle Ben's brewery in Winnipeg will go on sale.

The shipment is the first of a 50,000-case order placed by the provincial Liquor Control Board to combat the shortage of local beer that developed after 350 Labatt's and Molson's brewery workers went on strike or were locked out.

The B.C. government has authorized the board to import beer from other provinces or the United States if necessary, to prevent the supply from drying up all together.

Moonwalk Ends—Falcon Docks

HOUSTON (AP) — Two Apollo 15 astronauts blasted off from the moon today after three days of historic exploration and successfully caught up with their orbiting command ship.

A television camera gave earthlings their first look at a launching from the moon as the Falcon of David R. Scott and James B. Irwin vaulted off the moon's surface toward a safe orbit.

For nearly two hours Scott and Irwin executed skilful manoeuvres to track down the command ship Endeavour with Alfred M. Worden at the controls.

The two ships manoeuvred into position nearly 70 miles above the moon and moved together until locked firmly nose to nose.

Scott and Irwin were to transfer through a connecting tunnel into the command ship. Then the three astronauts were to spend two additional days in lunar orbit conducting scientific experiments.

The ascent stage of the lunar module Falcon lifted quickly away and sped into the black sky toward orbit and a rendezvous with Alfred M. Worden in the command modulet Endeavour.

Particles flew in all directions as the craft lifted away and the astronauts played the United States Air Force song Off We Go into the Wild Blue Yonder as they soared upward.

The television camera left behind and controlled by Mission Control followed Falcon's flight for only about a second before the craft was out of view.

Following the liftoff, the television camera focused on the descent stage of the lunar module, deserted on the empty moon's surface.

Within 10 seconds the lunar module was at 300 feet and climbing rapidly in both speed and altitude.

"Falcon," said Mission Control, "You're looking good at three minutes."

At 700 feet, the spacecraft curved east, quickly passing over Hadley Rille, the moon canyon Scott and Irwin photographed so carefully during their exploration.

Scott and Irwin rode their moon machine quietly, saying little.

Tory Leader Says Peking Attitude Good

By DOUG SMALL

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, back from a trip to the People's Republic of China that nearly didn't take place, said Sunday China and its people are well disposed to Canada.

Mr. Stanfield, who visited the Chinese cities of Canton, Shanghai and Peking following a trip to Japan and Hong Kong, waited almost seven weeks prior to his departure for the Far East for a response to his application for a visa to enter China.

He received an invitation from the Chinese three hours before he left Vancouver July 15.

On his return to Vancouver and later in Ottawa Sunday, Mr. Stanfield said he had gained valuable impressions of China's leaders and the life of their people.

The highlight of his tour, he said, was the insight obtained into the Chinese government's attitude towards relations with the United States, Japan and matters affecting Canada.

WILL TALK LATER

He did not go into detail during brief talks with reporters at airports in Vancouver and Ottawa but is planning to hold a comprehensive news conference later this week.

He said, however, that it is "very clear in the view of the government of China that it has no political dispute with Canada."

He reiterated statements he made after leaving China that the U.S. would have to make important concessions if relations between those two countries are to improve.

"It is not my position to interpret what position the U.S. has to adopt in order to make progress with China. I simply say the Chinese leaders that spoke with me indicated that the U.S. would have to change its position very substantially if progress is to be made."

LET THEM EAT CAKE! That's just what about 500 guests did Saturday after Premier and Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett cut into a five-foot-square birthday variety. The cake-cutting was a highlight of a Beacon Hill Park picnic commemorating the 19th anniversary of Social Credit government in British Columbia. Fears that Sandringham Private Hospital workers would disrupt the all-day affair were largely unfounded.

IN ONTARIO

HEALTH STORES UNDER GUN

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario College of Pharmacy will prosecute all health food stores which sell certain high-potency vitamins, registrar W. R. Wensley said in an interview Sunday.

Vitamin C tablets of more than 100 milligrams strength or other vitamins of more than 10,000 international units, a measurement of potency, are considered drugs under the Pharmacy Act and can be sold only by licensed pharmacists.

Investigators will be sent out to inspect the health food shops, said Mr. Wensley, and "if they're breaking the law, it's our job to prosecute."

The Canadian Health Food Dealers Association will advise its members this week that they should "sell vitamins the way we've been doing for years," and that includes vitamins which would be in violation of the act, said Lionel Pason, association vice-president.

Mr. Wensley said that wholesalers who sell the strong vitamins to the health food stores are also in violation of the act.

Motorcycle Gang Sought for Murder

SAINTE MARIE DE BEAUCE, Que. (CP) — A province-wide search for six members of a motorcycle club wanted in connection with the deaths of two members of a rival gang Saturday night has been started by the provincial police.

The badly-beaten bodies of Jacques Giguere, 19, of Sainte Marie de Beauce and Serge Bourque, 24, of nearby Notre Dame des Pins, were found in the charred remains of a gang club house here 30 miles southeast of Quebec City.

The two victims were in the house with six other members of the Jarrets Noirs motorcycle club when six men wearing nylon stockings over their heads burst into the "shack".

Police said the intruders, armed with baseball bats and a rifle, beat up Giguere and Bourque, tied them up, doused them with gasoline, set them on fire and fled.

The two young men burned to death before other members of the Jarrets Noirs could help them.

Police said they found gasoline cans near the destroyed house.

Police would not release the name of the gang the fugitives belong to but said the group is believed to be travelling in two 1969 automobiles.

It was the third double slaying in Quebec in the last 16 days.

STEEL PRICE HIKE FOLLOWS PACT

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The United States steel industry averted a strike with the signing Sunday of a contract with the United Steelworkers Union, and today the leading company announced sweeping price increases which it attributed to the "inflationary" contract terms.

U.S. Steel Corp. said increases will average eight per cent on carbon and alloy steel products, the firm's entire line with the exception of stainless steel.

The White House was quick to make known its displeasure at the price hikes, saying they would have a detrimental effect on both production and unemployment in the industry and would damage its already-unfavorable competitive position.

Another labor development during the weekend was settlement of an 18-day-old rail strike which has shut down 10 lines and crippled the entire U.S. freight system. Representatives of the United Transportation Union and the rail firms reached agreement on a new contract providing a 30 per cent wage increase over three years.

after Rogers spoke in Washington, stressed Nationalist China's right to remain in the United Nations.

The state secretary left ambiguous just what position Washington would take about Communist China's replacing the Nationalists on the important UN Security Council. He said, however, that the United States is prepared to have this question resolved by the decision of UN members.

Both Red China and Nationalist China claim they represent all of China and therefore are entitled to China's seats in the General Assembly and in the Security Council.

Rogers said at a news conference that neither Peking nor Taiwan (Formosa) had indicated they favor the new Nixon administration policy on Chinese representation in the United Nations.

The secretary also said that President Nixon has been forging foreign policies "directed to the future while taking fully into account the legacies of the past."

He said further:

"Representation in an international organization need not prejudice the claims or the views of either government. . . . Rather it would provide governments with increased opportunities for contact and communication."

The secretary of state said the U.S. decision is in line with Nixon's desire to improve relations with Peking "in the interests of world peace." Nixon's announced plan to visit Red China has in fact spurred momentum for Peking's entry into the UN.

LOCKHEED GETS LOAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Senate approved $250 million today in federal loan guarantees for Lockheed Aircraft Corp., assuring the leading United States defence contractor it will get the money it says it needs to avoid bankruptcy.

The vote, climaxing two months of testimony and debate, was 49 to 48.

The House of Represenatives had approved aid for Lockheed on Friday.

BUGGED BY MOTH

VANCOUVER (CP) — Doctors were somewhat skeptical when Stan Smith dashed into the emergency section of Burnaby General Hospital during the weekend, claiming he had a big fluttering around inside his head.

"I couldn't blame them for giving me some funny looks," Smith said today. "They must have been thinking 'with a story like that, we're not surprised.'"

Ten minutes and a full examination later, doctors dropped their quizzical looks. They found a small moth trapped and fluttering in Smith's ear.

When finally freed, the moth flew off around the examination room.

Smith, a barbicior, said the moth lodged in his ear as he sat watching television at his home in suburban Burnaby Saturday night.

Grants Approved

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal grants of more than $1 million have been approved for Metis and non-status Indian associations, Robert Stanbury, minister responsible for citizenship, announced.

. . . APOLLO

"Falcon," came the call a minute later. "You're go at four," meaning after four minutes.

"Radar lockup," called out Scott, meaning his radar set had made contact with the Endeavour.

On achieving orbit, Scott and Irwin immediately began pursuit of Worden, orbiting 68 miles high in the Endeavour. They were to catch and hook up with him in one hour, 45 minutes.

The three astronauts plan to spend two extra days in lunar orbit conducting scientific and photographic experiments before heading toward earth late Wednesday.

A burst from the engine at the base of the cabin section of the lunar module vaulted Scott and Irwin on the first step toward home.

★ ★ ★

The astronauts left their moon buggy, the first car man has driven on the moon, so that its television camera could relay live pictures of a lunar blastoff for the first time.

They had driven the buggy on three expeditions totalling 17 miles, the most ambitious and extensive exploration of the moon.

Packed in their lunar module Falcon was a treasure chest of rocks and soil that might include primeval rock and evidence of old volcanoes at the moon.

They had collected more than 230 pounds of samples that may hold secrets of the creation of the solar system.

On their third and final excursion today, Scott and Irwin drove to the edge of a deep canyon and climbed part way down the wall to gather rocks that could tell scientists whether it was carved by ancient lava flows.

★ ★ ★

"The whole Mission Control team congratulates you on a super job," flight controller Gerald Griffin radioed astronauts as they concluded their exploration.

Mission scientist Dr. Joseph Allen said the fact that the astronauts reported layering in the walls of the canyon is evidence that it might have been formed by several lava flows. Other lunar geologists said they could draw no conclusion until they examine the pictures and rocks being returned.

Scot and Irwin spent four hours and 45 minutes outside today, about one hour 15 minutes less than originally scheduled. They fell about 90 minutes behind time Sunday because of minor equipment problems, and that delay carried over.

On the three excursions, they totalled nearly 19 hours outside and drove their $8-million moon car about 15 miles. The curtailment today cut off nearly five miles of planned driving.

★ ★ ★

They drove the runabout a mile today through a desert-like field of craters to the rim of the boulder-strewn canyon, one mile across and 1,200 feet deep.

They had not intended to climb down into the canyon, but they found the upper 30 to 40 feet was a gentle slope and they walked down easily that far to a terrace. Beyond that the wall dropped off sharply.

Scott and Irwin brought back more geological treasure, hoping to equal what they collected Sunday when they discovered what some scientists believe may be rocks dating back 4.6 billion years to the birth of the solar system. The astronauts' enthusiasm was based on the fact that the prize rocks, found in a crater, contain several of the large crystals of the type that may have made up original lunar crust.

The orbiting Worden may have added to the growing evidence that volcanoes once seethed beneath the lunar surface when he reported he could see cinder cones in the southeast corner of the Sea of Serinity.

Before leaving the moon with more than 200 pounds of rocks, Scott and Irwin cancelled a special U.S. Postal Service stamp depicting the astronauts in the lunar Rover on the moon with the landing craft beside them.

Red Envoys Ejected

Sudan ordered the top Soviet diplomat in Khartoum to leave within 48 hours and also gave the Bulgarian ambassador orders to get out. The leading Soviet diplomat is counsellor of the embassy.

The Sudanese government, angered by Soviet press attacks on its anti-Communist policy, earlier had recalled its ambassadors from Moscow and Sofia. A government spokesman said the rest of the embassy staff in Moscow would remain.

Earlier, Egypt's Middle East news agency said that Sudan had threatened to break relations with Moscow unless the Soviet press stopped its attacks on President Jaafar el-Nimeiri's regime.

Canoeists to Arrive in Time For Dip in New Crofton Pool

CROFTON — A visit from the 12 canoe teams in the Fort St. James-Victoria voyageur race will be a feature attraction at the official opening of the Crofton Centennial Pool next Tuesday.

"The canoe pageant will arrive at the Crofton government wharf at 4:30 in the afternoon on its last leg of the race," centennial committee member Bob Vye said today.

Vye said the canoeists and their accompanying land party, which includes a pipe band and a land force with old time cannons, will set up an overnight camp in Crofton.

●

The $13,000 community pool will be opened by "Princess" Claire Hague that evening. Other highlights will be a salmon barbecue in a beer garden.

The pool, completed in seven weeks, was largely the work of volunteers. The $6,400 North Cowichan centennial grant, $1,400 from the volunteer fire department and local fund-raising functions financed the project.

●

The 60x24-foot open-air pool was first used on July 2, since that time, and until the end of August, there have been two full-time lifeguards and Red Cross instructors on duty.

Supervisor 21-year-old Frank Carter, of Victoria, and his assistant, Barbara Scott, 18, of Campbell river, said Monday they still have many vacancies for swimming lessons.

To date they have taught about 100 children and said they have at least 150 more enrolled.

"The swimming lessons are open to anyone in the area," Carter said. "Not just crofton residents. It is $3 for members of the community centre and $5 for others for lessons."

Carter and Miss Scott said they work about 13 hours a day.

They have classes for infants (four months to two years of age); water adjustment (two to six years); floaters (five to seven); fish frog (six to eight), and all other phases of swimming instruction.

●

After the morning lessons the supervisors are then on duty for public swimming.

"We are starting adult classes from 6 to 7 on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings," Carter said, the first class will be Wednesday. These will be followed by lifesaving classes."

SKIPPER 'SATISFACTORY' AFTER CRUISER BURNS

A Ladysmith man is in satisfactory condition with first- and second-degree burns in Nanaimo Regional Hospital after being rescued from his 21-foot burning pleasure boat on the weekend.

Len Porcella, 37, was alone on his cruiser when she was ripped by an explosion and caught fire off Parksville. He was rescued by sport fisherman Bill Norman and taken to French Creek harbor.

After receiving emergency treatment from the Parksville fire department, he was taken to hospital.

Although his boat was some distance off Parksville she could be seen as a mass of flames until she burned to the waterline and appeared to sink.

She was surrounded by a small armada of assorted craft, trying to help. Several attempts to tow her ashore failed.

Bulldozers Retreat In 'Mudflats Battle'

Times News Services

WEST VANCOUVER — The squatters stood pat and bulldozers retreated Monday in round one of the battle of the mudflats.

The squatters, ordered evicted by the district council, had not moved when the bulldozer arrived to knock down their shacks.

And the employees decided it was not their job to carry out the eviction order.

"We're not paid to evict people," said one worker, and the bulldozer retreated.

The municipality wants the squatters removed to make way for a shopping and marina development on the flats near the Dollarton Highway.

Dan Clemens, one of the equatters, said council has so far refused to grant them a hearing.

Many of the squatters paid $500 or more for their shacks and want some compensation for them, he said.

In addition, the squatters are concerned that the municipality's plans will wreck the ecology of one of the North Shore's few remaining stretches of natural waterfront.

"We intend to fight the issue in the courts," one of them said. "There was no trouble with the municipal employees."

District Mayor Ron Andrews would not comment on what the municipality's next move might be.

He has previously stated that the site is lacking in proper sanitary conditions and does not fit into an urban municipality.

Clemens said the natural condition of the mudflats at the moment is its main attraction to the people who live there.

The land is also considered as a bird sanctuary.

Grants Awarded for Effluent Study

Nine grants totalling $545,850 for the study of pulp and paper mill effluents have been awarded by the federal department of the environment.

The nine contracts granted are mainly for continuation of research begun in 1970. They totalled $545,850.

B.C. researchers got five of the grants.

B.C. Research was granted $50,000 to investigate microbiological characteristics of pulp and paper mill effluents; $77,000 to study the sub-lethal effects of bleached kraft mill effluents on fish; $40,700 to study isolation of toxic constituents from bleached kraft pulp mill effluents, and $23,500 to study the sources of toxicity and biochemical oxygen demand in the bleached kraft process.

In addition, MacMillan Bloedel Research Ltd. got $41,000 to study alkaline pulping processes without sulfide.

The other grants were three totalling $263,650 to the Pulp and Paper Research Institute of Canada and $50,000 to the Ontario Research Foundation.

The grants come from a federal fund set up to promote pollution abatement techniques in pulp mills.

The 1970 allotment of $500,000 was doubled this year and for the next four years until private firms start to finance their research to a greater extent.
